

THE MACEDONIAN.

Our readers are aware that from some difficult... the U. S. frigate Macedonian—one of the vessels granted by Congress to carry provisions to the starving poor of Ireland and Scotland—has been detained for some time at New York. It will be gratifying to the friends of the sufferers to learn, that more effective measures have been taken to bring about the object desired, and that the vessel will leave in a short time "A great country this," truly. While we are engaged in bloody warfare, giving the world evidence of our determination to resist all encroachments upon our rights, we are rescuing a famishing people from the grave. The following lines, by Mrs. Hale, upon the subject, are appropriate.—Ed.

As morning light on stormy seas, As stars through clouds of night, So give her banner to the breeze, And spread her canvass white, And fair will be the skies above, And smooth the seas below, While with her armament of love, She sails to meet the foe. On! on!—they stretch the pleasing band, From Erin's blasted shore; Gaunt famine and his vampire hand, There press the battle sore; On, like a warrior meet the foe, And stay the deadly strife; And like heaven's messenger, bestow The bread of human life. Oh! never 'mid a scene of blood Each glorious deed was done; Not when Decatur conqueror stood, The Macedonian won— As now, when freighted forth she goes, A food-ship on the sea; Bearing to those who then were foes, The free gifts of the Free. The golden fleece the Argo bore, When sweeping proudly home; But laden with a richer store, Our noble ship will come, And blessings breathed from broken hearts To hope restored again, As Winter's death-cold ice departs Beneath Spring's gentle rain. Then give her banner to the breeze, Like stars through clouds of night; And like the morn on stormy seas, Unfurled her canvass white. Swelled by glad thoughts, like airs from heav'n, That we in funnies live, And from the bounty God hath given, We have the means to give.

PRAYERS VS MANURE.—A German priest walking in procession at the head of his parishioners over cultivated fields, in order to procure a blessing upon his crops; when he came to one of unpromising appearance, he would pass on saying: "Here prayers and singing will avail nothing—this must have manure."

SIX PLAGUES.—Sorbonne says that the six plagues of a small town are, a lawyer with great knowledge, great sophistry, and no sense of justice; an eminent physician, with little skill or manners; a preacher, without any conscience; a quarrelsome soldier; a politician without principles; and a man of letters who eternally dogmatizes.

"Come here my lad," said an attorney to a boy about nine years of age. The boy came, and asked the attorney what case was to be tried next. The lawyer answered "a case between the pope and the devil—which do you think will gain the action?" The boy replied, "I guess it will be a pretty tight squeeze—the pope has the most money but the devil has the most lawyers."
