A Caravan from the Selkick Settlement. On the 10th of July there arrived at the vilre of St. Paul, near St. Peters and the Falls of St Anthony, on the Upper Mississippi, the most novel and original looking Caravan that sever appeared since Nosh's ark was evacued. Our readers are a ware that there is an isoded settlement of several thousand inhabitants a a high latitude of British North America, known as the "Selkirk Settlement." Cut off from the commerce of the world, they rely cotirely upon their own resources, their farms, their flocks, and fishing and hunting for support -being a community, so to speak, of Robinson Crupper.

Their crops having failed the two last reasons, they have been forced to break out of the wilds again and seek food in the market of the great brawling world. Formerly their chief point of contact with commerce was at Toronto; but now, owing to the increase of supplies on the Upper Mississippi and the abundance of game and forage on that route, they trade at St. Paul, the head of steamboat navigation on the Mississippi river. Into St. Paul there came on the 10th of July, a caravan of one hundred and twenty carts, in single file, wearily moving along by moonlight. Long after the head of the caravan had reached the village, the lengthened train of followers could be seen moving over the undulating prairie, partly visible and partly hidden between the billowy ridges of the extended plain, crawling on ward like some huge scrpent, the extreme rear being still invisible, and partly hidden in the dimners of distance.

They had travelled southward over the prairie six hundred miles, having been nineteen days on their way, through a region abounding in buffaloes; encamping at night in a tent around which the carts were ranged in a circle to fence in the cattle. They were hindered considerably in crossing some of the stresms, and in many places found a scarcity of fuel, and even the dry excrement of the buffalo, which they use for fuel. They often suffered for the want of water, as many of the smaller streams were so strongly impregnated with the excrement of the buffalo as to be an wholesome. They brought along a large elk, a bear, and some other animals which they had captured on their way, and many packages of furs. They had a very choice lot of buffielo robes, well dressed, which they sold at St. Paul by the lot at $3 50 cach.

They had with them also an abundance of specie, and waited a few days at St. Paul for the arrival of a steamboat load of flour and groceries. The carsvan was made up of men and boys of all ages, kindreds, tongues and complexjons, including a large propertion of Gumbos. Their dresses were as various as could be imagined, being uniform in only a single article of apparel-all wore moccasins. The carts were made wholly of wood and hides, the hubs being covered with bandages of green hide, drawn on while soft, and there shrinking until they became nearly as tight as bands of iron. Some of these old two-wheeled vihicles were drawn by little horses, and others by oxen, each animal, Bank of Swatara horse or ox, being greated in a harness of green | Bank of Washington

AN INCIDENT AT THE BATTLE OF MONTEREY. -While Col. Davis with his command, was hotly engaged with the enemy, exposed to their direct fire, a man in a long gray surtout suddenly rode up, and dismounting, placed himself in the middle of the street. There, in face of the enemy, amidst the thickest of their fire, he coolly drew from a case suspended about his person a spy-glass, with which, having adjusted it to a proper focus, he proceeded to reconnoitre the Mexican battery. Having satisfied himself as to the information he songht, he shut up the glass, returned it to its case, and approaching Col. Davis, said to him : "Sir, the enemy has but two pieces, and by making a detour to the right, you can take them in flank.' 'And who the d---- l are you !' 'I, sir, am Major Mansfield, of the Corps of Engineers' All right! Come on, boys !' responded the Colonel. The battery was then carried.
