

The Education of the Heart. It is the vice of the age to substitute learning for wisdom—to educate the head, and forget that there is a more important education necessary for the heart. The reason is cultivated at an age when nature does not furnish the elements necessary to its successful cultivation of it; and the child is solicited to reflection, when he is only capable of sensation and emotion. In infancy the attention and the memory are only excited strongly by things which impress the senses, and move the heart, and a father shall impart more solid and available instruction in an hour spent in the fields, where wisdom and goodness are exemplified, seen and felt, than in a month spent in the study, where they are expounded in stereotyped aphorisms. No physician doubts that precocious children in fifty cases for one, are much the worse for the discipline they have undergone. The mind seems to have been strained, and the foundations for insanity are laid. When the studies of maturer years are stuffed into the head of a child, people do not reflect on the anatomical fact, the brain of an infant is not the brain of a man; that the one is confirmed and can bear exertion, the other is growing, and requires repose; that to force the attention to abstract facts, to load the memory with chronological and historical or scientific detail; in short, to expect a child's brain to bear with impunity the exertions of a man's, is just as rational as it would be to hazard the same sort of experiment on its muscles. The first eight or ten years of life should be devoted to the education of the heart—to the formation of principles, rather than to the acquirement of what is usually termed knowledge. Nature herself points out such a course; for the emotions are then the liveliest, and most easily moulded, being as yet unalloyed by passion. It is from this source that the mass of men hereafter to draw their sum of happiness or misery, the actions of the immense majority are, under all circumstances, determined much more by feeling than reflection; in truth, life presents an infinity of occasions where it is essential to happiness that we should feel rightly; very few where it is at all necessary that we should think profoundly. Up to the seventh year of life, very great changes are going on in the structure of the brain, and demand, therefore, the utmost attention not to interrupt them by improper or over exertion. Just that degree of exercise should be given to the brain at this period, as is necessary to its health; and the best is oral instruction, exemplified by objects which strike the senses. It is perhaps unnecessary to add, that at this period of life, special attention should be given, both by parents and teachers, to the physical development of the child. Pure air and free exercise are indispensable, and wherever these are withheld, the consequences will be certain to extend themselves over the whole future life. The seeds of protracted and hopeless suffering have, in innumerable instances, been sown in the constitution of the child simply through ignorance of this great fundamental physical law; and the time has come when the united voices of these innocent victims should ascend, "trumpet-tongued," to the ears of every parent and teacher in the land, "Give us free air and wholesome exercise; leave to develop our expanding energies, in accordance with the laws of our being, and full scope for the elastic and bounding impulses of our young blood."—London Quarterly Review.

How a GEORGIA JUDGE WAS HOAXED.—The following clever anecdote is copied from a letter received by a friend, from Roswell, Georgia. If our readers enjoy it as much as we did, we shall consider the space it occupies well filled: "We have about four miles from here, a certain Judge of the Inferior Court, an ignorant, pompous clown, who by dint of an infinity of dirty labor has contrived to creep on the Lower Bench, and who consequently thinks himself somebody. Well, about two weeks ago, he received a letter post marked 'Rome, Georgia,' from HENRY CLAY, (!) saying, 'that being on a political tour through upper Georgia, and hearing that Judge Berry (the scoundrel) our worthy rejoices in was a good Whig, and an influential man, he took the liberty of requesting a few nights' lodging of him for himself and suite, as he wished to address the citizens of Cobb—he would, if the request was granted, be with him in ten days.' The letter then finished with hinting that if elected to the Presidency in '48, he would not forget Judge Berry in the forming of his cabinet. Berry was astounded! stupefied! 'What! have the great Whig leader in my house!—the great immortal, glorious, splendid Henry Clay!!! However, he retained his faculties sufficiently to sit down and scratch off an answer expressive of the pride he felt in sheltering in his house such a Magnus Apollo as Mr. Clay,' and signifying his readiness to accommodate Mr. Clay, arrive when he would—'statesmen were always ready to greet those who coincide with them in party aims, he contended. After delivering himself of this, he mounted his horse and 'accounted as he went,' rode 13 miles to the nearest town, where he laid out $50 for 'crookery,' $20 for household furniture, and $6 for powder and lead, the last as he said for him and Mr. Clay to go a hunting with.' These preliminaries finished, he commenced to 'let out' the letter to every one he met, and bragging of his distinguished visitor. He returned home, spread it abroad, and for a week nothing was to be heard but fixing up and fixing down. The day determined upon, however, for Mr. Clay's arrival, passed—so did the next, and the next, and yet no Clay. Could it be? Yes—the truth flashed upon him. The Judge was hoaxed!

SOMETHING NEW!

THE subscriber has the exclusive right of vending J. M. FRATHER'S Hot Blast Hot Air Cooking STOVE, in the counties of Northumberland, Columbia and Schuylkill; and from the encouragement met with already, they expect to do a large business. This stove is constructed on an entirely new principle, and on the only principle that can make both a good wood and coal stove. The inventor has overcome all the difficulties that so frequently belong to other stoves. He has by his arrangement, constructed a boiling (or frying) in front, where in broiling, roasting, or baking may be done, and all the small that arises therefrom must pass into the combustible chamber, and is not at all thrown out into the room. Besides this, there is an oven only two inches less than the whole size of the stove, wherein baking or roasting may be done as well as it can be in the common brick oven. This oven is always fit for use when the stove is heated, as the whole draught of hot air passes around it constantly. Public attention is particularly called to this stove. It can be seen at our Store and Tin Establishment in North Danville, at the sign of the Columbian Tin shop, and at the Foundry of Rohrbach & Clement in Sunbury, where its particular qualities will be fully shown and explained to any person wishing to examine it. The subscribers continue to have on hand all kinds of parlor stoves, such as radiators, cylinder, fancy and plain, suitable for all who may favor us with a call; also common sheet and Russia Iron, which can be made in any desirable shape; together with a general assortment of tin and japanned ware, wholesale and retail. Country merchants are invited to call and examine our stock, as our work cannot be surpassed, and prices moderate. N. B. We can safely recommend the above mentioned stove to persons who wish to embark in a good business. The patentee will sell either county or state rights, to suit purchasers, and on reasonable terms. He or his agents may be found in Danville, Pa. J. & J. ARTER.

The undersigned, having seen in operation the hot blast hot air cooking stove, invented and patented by J. M. Frather, certify that we believe, from the manner of its construction and operation, that it is the best one ever offered to the public. The arrangement is so complete and the construction so judicious, that there is a saving of one half the fuel and time, in doing any given amount of service, over other celebrated stoves. In short we recommend it in preference to all others, for the simple reason that it embraces every branch of economy. Samuel Garrett, John W. Garrett, David Chaffin, W. F. Kitchin, John M. Gray, E. Thompson, Smith Thompson, J. D. Hahn, John Oakes, Henrich Bear, Elias F. Cooper, Geo. M. Carter, Daniel Huffman, Henry H. Russell, P. H. Archer, Daniel Dreisbach, Joseph Vankirk, Brooks Epley. ### SHAVING CREAM.

THIS new and splendid article, as its name denotes, is prepared to be superior to any shaving cream in the United States or Europe. It is unsurpassed for beauty, purity and fragrance, the somewhat analogous to Guestin's Ambrosial Cream and other similar compounds. It far surpasses them all by the excellent pasty consistency of its lather, which softens the beard as to render shaving pleasant and easy. It further possesses the advantage over the imported article, in being freshly prepared, so skill being wanting in its manufacture. E. Roussel having had many years' experience in the celebrated Laboratory of Laugur, Paris at Filz, now Renaud & Co., of Paris. Besides being the best, it is the cheapest article for shaving; it is elegantly put up in boxes, with splendid steel engraved labels. Price $3 per dozen, or 37 1/2 cents for a single box, to share one year. It is also sold at $1 50 per box, or 13 1/2 cents per oz., so that gentlemen can have their boxes filled at EUGENE ROUSSEL'S, Wholesale and Retail Perfumery and Mineral Water Establishment, 114 Chesnut Street, Dec. 19, 1846.— PHILADELPHIA.
