AGRICULTURAL.

THE OUESTION OFMANURE

In all the brinches of agriculture, there perhaps no particular one which causes such a great difference of opinion, both in the and practice as the formation and care of manure. Some prefer one mode of preservation and some another ; but all agree pon one point, viz: that it should be well heltered from the sun and rain. The best method of attaining this point is the subject of various discussions and disputes. If manure is allowed to lay as it was formed in the yard until spring, and then thrown into heaps under shelter, it is liable to heat and "fire fang," and in this way lose more in value than was gained by shelter from the sum and rain. Some contend that the better plan is to allow the manure to remain as it was formed until spring, and as soon as the cattle are turned out to pasture cover it with straw, or earth. Those who adopt the latter plan argue that if no water is allowed to escape from the yard, the rain will, by keeping the manure moist, benefit it. Their argument is that if the water cannot escape by any other outlet than that of evaporation it cannot carry with it any of the valuable portions of the manure. 10 10 10

But it has been clearly proven that when manure is exposed to the atmosphere there is a waste of its essential parts in the form of gases, and that this waste is only at or near the surface, where the manure comes in contact with the air. When the manupe is allowed to remain spread our the yard as it wasformed, there is a large amount of surface, and consequently a large amount of waste, in the form of gases. It is therefore to our interest to collect our manure into such J. P. DINSMORE, Proprietor, 36 Dev St. New York SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS. piles as will expose the smallest amount of surface in proportion to their cubical contents and still farther to prevent loss, to cover the pile with earth or sods. But in doing this we must use care to prevent the manure from attaining too great a degree of heat, and thus defeating our aim.

The best plan is to throw it under the sheds during the winter, and thus make the cattle pack it down as the season advances by this plan we avoid all danger from "fire fanging." When the last of the manure 'is thus thrown up, the whole heap may be covered with earth or sod, and thus there will he but very little waste of gaseous particles, which constitute a very valuable portion of all manure.

It is a common practice with some to use common plaster or gypsum as an absorbent for the gases, which issue from their manure heaps. That it acts (under certain conditions) as an absorbent, cannot be denied, but whether it benefits the person who applies it, is entirely another question. If we take fresh manure from a horse stable which has not been cleaned out for a week or two, and tramp it into a pile as solid as possible, after covering it with plaster we will find ammonia will no longer be given off, and we would at once be led to suppose that we were saving so much of what would otherwise be lost to our manure head ; but if we carry the experiment a little farther, I think we will find that the absorption, like the Irizhman's su. prise, will be "the other way."

If to carry out the experiment we allow the manure and plaster to remain for a month or two, we will find that it will begin to give off ammonia, because plaster will only act as an absorbent in the presence of moisture, and when that moisture has evaporated will give off the gases absorbed. Those who apply plaster to the floors of their horse stables with the view of promoting the health and comfort of their horses may attain this result but when applied as an absorbent of ammonia it is of little use unless the manure is afterward kept moist or damp.

There is also a great variety of opinion as to the proper depth for plowing when turning under manure, but I believe that most of Grace's C. lebrated alve our scientific agriculturists agree that the result is about the same, whether it is turned under to the depth of four or eight inches; when near the surface, it decomposes sooner, and hence acts sooner, and the supply is It is prompt in action, removes pain at once and re duces the mest angry-looking swellings and units soon exhausted ; when turned under deeper its action is more extended and slow. Hence if applied just before the crop is intended to benefit, it should be turned under by a shallow furrow; but if the interval between the manuring and the crop is prolonged, the furrow should be deepened in the same proportion.-Germantowu Telegraph.

FLUID EXTRACT SARSAPARILLA COMBINED WITH

IODIDE OF LIME. PREPARED FOR G. W. PETTES, BOSTON,

By JAMES R. MICHOLS & CO.

Manufacturing Chemists, MANUFACTURERS OF THE

ELIXIR PERUVIAN BARK WITH Protoxide of Iren.

> Which has become so favorably known as a TONIC AND RESTORATIVE. By Physicians and Invalids in all parts of the coun

The new preparation. "Sarsaparilla in combina-tion with follide of Lime," presents one of the most prompt alterative agents, in a form capable of exerting full action upon the system, and this in minute and pleasant dozes. It is conceded that the altera tive resolvent, or tonic effects of lodine are exert cil most decidedly when associated with other alter acress, in combination ; and the Sarsaparilla seem to fulfill perfectly all the favorable requisitions.

The first off of usually observed when "SARSAPANILLA WITH IODIDE OF LIME" is taken, is an increase of appetite showing that it has tonic properties of a marked character. Its al-terative effects are manifest in its ready combina-tion with the blood and tissues. Pule, acrefulous women and children improve rapidly under its use, and the vital functions assume a healthy condition. It is admirably adapted to a large number of chron ic or acute all ctions peculiar to children. It is suit-ed to them both by the mildness and efficiency of medicinal effect and the pleasant, attractive form of the remedy. It may be given for a long period where institutional influences are desired, and no repugnance, or disinclinat on to take the syrup, encoun-tered, in White Swedings, Hip-Joint Disease, and Distortions of the Spine, it should be given persist ently, in moderate doses, notil relief is obtained.

In the Spring of the Year, and during the * Warm Weather, the accumulation of morbid matters in the system seems to become manifest and very troublesome Lassitude, Headache, Boils, Costiveness, Loss of Appctite, Pains in the Joints. Indigestion, etc., are very common. Nothing ever devised is better adapted to exterminate or drive off these aff ctions than this new combination of SARSAFARILLA WITH IODIDE Grain of all kinds will be taken in exchange for OF LIME.

No preparation like it, or which approximates to is as an Alterative, or Blood Purifier, n∦ This establishment is loca.ed near the Lackawa-na & Bloomsburg Railroad Depot. PETER BILLMYES. has ever before been placed within the reach of invalids Indeed, it is an entirely new and scientific combina-tion. In no respect resembling anything hitherto em?
