FATTENING FOWLS-All summer long the farmer and his family have fussed with the poultry: the young chickens need care in the long rain storms, and protection gainst nocturnal depredators. Just as they are fully grown and out of danger, the shrewd huckster makes his appearance, buys fattens, and prepares them for market, and packets the profits for his smartness. Obviously the farmer had better fatten his fowls and send them to market himself. He can do it with less trouble, perhaps, than e imagines. Feed liberally at all times, so s to keep them growing thriftily but about venty days before being slaughtered feed em in this way : Make a coop for one dozfowls, more should not be put together. he coop should be three feet long, two ide, and two and a half high. Make the apart, the top of a board. Place this in a comfortable room, elevated about two feet from the floor, in the barn or poultry house, where the cold winds will be kept away and where the light will be dim. Attach feeding troughs all around the outside. Commence feeding very light, giving but little water the first day. Then feed regular three or four times per day with the richest food, as oat meal mixed with milk, boiled barley or corn. Observe the utmost cleanliness, and give a supply of fresh water. In twenty days the poultry should be killed, and for such the farmer would find plenty greedy buyers, willing to pay the highest price. -

ENGLISH AND FRENCH HORSES.-Engishmen are justly proud of their horses .-The superiority of their breeds of race and lraft horses has long been admitted by other nations. Indeed, the French and Italians, Germans, Prussians, &c., have been for more than a century among the best customers of the English breeders. This has been ascribed to peculiarities of climate, by some, but agricultural writers generally find a sufficient cause for the great excellence of English horses in the care and skill of the British farmer, in respect to selection, rearing and feeding. "By these means," says Mr. William Percival, a lecturer and writer of note, "we have progressed from good to better, losing sight of no subsidary help, until we have attained perfection in horseflesh unknown in the whole world beside.' With such claim to acknowleged superiority in breeds, the late victories of French horses on English ground have been exceedingly martifying to English pride.

A HINT IN BREEDING .- Mr. Torr, the MUSLIN, EDGINGS, DRESS well-known breeder of Short-Horn cattle and Liecester Sheep, in the course of some remarks at his recent letting of the latter, touching on breeding in general, he said :-"The way to establish uniformity or family Ekeness is to begin by putting the best male to the best female, and continue to put the best to the best," secondly, "not to put opposite characters together, or the traits of both will be lost, but if any fresh characteristic is required to be imparted to the issue of present stock of animals, this must be done by degrees, or by that discreet selection which will yield a little more wool, or size and substance, the first year, and a little more and more the second and third genera-

ELIXIR PERUVLAN BARK Protoxide of Iron. Which has become so favorably known as a TONIC AND RESTORATIVE,

By Physicians and Invalids in all parts of the coun-The new preparation, "Sarsaparilla in combina-tion with Indide of Lime," presents one of the most prompt alterative agents, in a form capable of exert ing full action upon the system, and this in minute and pleasant doses. It is conceded that the aftera tive resolvent, or tonic effects of lodine are exertd most decidedly when associated with other alter nives, in combination; and the Sarsaparilla seem o fulfill perfectly all the favorable requisitions. The first effect usually observed when

"SARSAPASILLA WITH IODIDE OF LIME" staken, is an increase of appetite showing that it has tonic properties of a marked character. terative effects are manifest in its ready combinavomen and children improve rapidly under its use and the vital functions assume a healthy condition It is admirably adapted to a large number of three ic or acute affections peculiar to children. It is suited to them both by the mildness and efficiency of medicinal effect and the pleasant, attractive form of the remedy. It may be given for a long period wher constitutional influences are desired, and no repug nance, or disinclinat on to take the syrap. tered. In White Swellings, Hip-Joint Disease, and Distortions of the Spine, it should be given persist-ently, in moderate doses, until relief is obtained.

In the Spring of the Year, and during the Warm Weather, the accumulation of morbid matters in the system seems to become manifest and very troublesome Lassitude, Headache, Boils, Costiveness, Loss of Appetite, Parus in the Joints, Indigestion, etc., are very common. Nothing ever devised is better adapted to exterminate or drive off these affections than this new combination of SARSAPARILLA WITH IODIDE
