FOR THE FARMER.

How to Fatten Chickens.

It is hopeless, says the London Gardener, to attempt to fatten them while they are at liberty. They must be put in a proper coop, and this, like most other poultry appurtenances, need not be expensive. To fatten twelve fowls, a coop may be three feet long, eighteen inches high, and eighteen inches deep, made entirely of bars. No part of it solid—neither top, sides, nor bottom. Discretion must be used according to the sizes of the chickens put up. They do not want room; indeed, the closer they are the better—provided they can all stand up at the same time. Care must be taken to put such as have been accustomed to be together, or they will fight. If one is quarrelsome, it is better to remove it at once; as, like other bad examples, it soon finds imitators.—A diseased chicken should not be put off.

The food should be ground oats, and may either be put in a trough, or on a flat board running along the front of the coop. It may be mixed with water or milk; the latter is better. It should be well slaked, forming a pulp as loose as can be, provided it does not run off the board. They must be well fed three or four times per day—the first as soon after daylight as may be possible or convenient, and then at intervals of four hours. Each meal should be as much and no more than they can eat up clean. When they have done feeding, the board should be wiped, and some gravel may be spread. It causes them to feed and thrive. After a fortnight of this treatment you will have good fat fowls.—If, however, there are but four or six to be fatted, they must not have as much room as though they were twelve. Nothing is easier than to allot them the proper space, as it is only necessary to have two or three pieces of wood to pass between the bars and form a partition. This may also serve when the fowls are put up in different degrees of fatness. This requires attention, or fowls will not keep fat and healthy.—As soon as the fowl is sufficiently fatted it must be killed, otherwise it will still get fat, but it will lose flesh. If fowls are intended for the market, of course they are, or may be, all fatted at once; but if for home consumption, it is better to put them up at such intervals as will suit the time when they will be required for the table. When the time arrives for killing, whether they are meant for market or otherwise, they should be fasted, without food or water, for twelve or fifteen hours. This enables them to be kept some time after being killed, even in hot weather.

Topping Corn.

Some of your contributors differ relative to the practicability of cutting off the tops of corn.

My limited experience in the culture of corn, much inclines me to favor the practice of cutting off the tops at an early day. The reasons for so doing in brief are as follows:

As soon as the corn is full, remove the top. The hot sun soon sears the cut end of the stock, and what supply of nourishment was intended for the top, is saved for the ear; consequently, the ear will ripen fuller than it otherwise would. If the tops are removed previous to the high winds accompanying Autumnal storms the corn will be partially, at least protected and saved. The corn will ripen sooner, and, I think, sounder.

The tops will be worth double what they otherwise would be to remain until the corn is sufficiently ripened to put into shocks.

The sugar contained in the stalk is its real value. The sooner the top is cut after it attains its full growth, the more is saved. If suffered to remain, nearly all of its value escapes by evaporation.

True, if you cut up and shock before the corn is quite ripe, you save a trifle in the value of the butt stalks; but not enough to compensate for the loss in the top stalks. The increased labor in tying up and shocking will quite balance that of topping.—Cor. New England Farmer.

Smut---Pickling Seed Wheat.

Smut in wheat is caused by a parasitic fungus which breaks out on the ear and decomposes the starch and gluten of the grain, and fills it with a fœtid black powder. Smut is usually caused by sowing seed to which, though invisible, the spores of the fungus are attached and the remedy for the evil consists in destroying these spores before sowing the seed wheat.—Moistening the grain with chamber lye, and then drying it with quick lime, is perhaps the oldest and most popular English remedy. Salt and water instead of lye, is also used, drying the wheat with lime, as in the former case. But the best remedy yet discovered is to wash the seed with a solution of blue vitriol (sulphate of copper.) For each bushel of seed, dissolve about three ounces of blue vitriol in one quart of hot water Let it cool before using. Spread the wheat on a floor, about six inches thick, and sprinkle the solution equally over it, and then mix thoroughly with shovels until the wheat has acquired a uniform degree of dampness! It will be ready for sowing in two or three hours, but it is better to perform the operation a day or two before sowing. When treated this way, lime should not be used, as it decomposes the vitriol, and does harm rather than good.—Genesee Farmer.

GENERAL REGULATIONS.

The grand display of Horses, Cattle, Poultry, Agricultural and Horticultural Products, Manufactured Articles and Luxuries, will take place on the first and second days.

The Plowing Match will take place on the third day, at 10 o'clock, A. M., and the Ladies Riding Match the same day at 2 o'clock P. M.

Exhibitors, will, in all cases, be required to become members of the Society, and those who do not previously communicate with the Secretary, will be waited on by the Reception Committee at the Fair Grounds.

Everything intended for exhibition must be entered at the office, together with the name and residence of the owner, and will be marked and designated by a card numbered in the order of its entry.

No vicious animal will be entered, unless the owner takes measures to prevent any possible damage otherwise resulting therefrom.

Animals or articles on exhibition cannot be removed before the close of the Fair, without permission from the Managers.

Premiums not demanded within six months after they are awarded, will be held as donations to the Society.

Instructions to Judges.—The Judges are requested to report themselves at the Secretary's office, on the ground, on the first day, before 3 o'clock, P. M., at which time their names will be called, and vacancies (if any) filled.

They will report by the number on the article exhibited, and, in awarding Premiums, be governed by the printed lists furnished them by the Secretary.

They shall require such evidence from exhibitors, relative to the stock or articles on exhibition, as shall be to them entirely satisfactory.

Any deception in the statements of exhibitors, shall when discovered make a forfeiture of the premium, to which the party making it would otherwise be entitled.

All the articles specified in classes Nos. 10, 11 and 13 must have been manufactured in the County, in order to entitle them to premiums. Also, all animals entitled to premiums, must be such as have been raised in the County, or owned and kept therein for at least six months prior to the Fair.

No article exhibited shall be entitled to two premiums as, for instance, the best bushel of grain, receiving the premium, shall not be included in the best acre on which a premium is offered.

The Judges of the several classes will be required to report in writing the premiums awarded by them, respectively, with such remarks relating to the merits of the animals or articles coming under their examination, as they may think proper.

Any person exhibiting an article not mentioned in the printed list, but which may be deemed meritorious by the Judges, shall be awarded a Diploma.

The Judges will not permit any one to interfere with them during their adjudication, and when any judge is interested, he shall withdraw, and the balance shall decide on the merits of the articles.

The Judges of the various classes will meet on the ground, on the second day, at 10 o'clock, A. M., to enter upon the discharge of their respective duties, and their reports must be handed to the Secretary before 12 o'clock, M., on he last day of the exhibition.

Tickets, good only for a single admission, will issue at 25 cts. Children under 10 years old, half price.

Tickets good for the entire exhibition, will be issued to apprentice boys and servant girls, at 50 cents.

Application to be made at the Business Office, on the Ground.

☞ Each certificate or ticket will bear the name of the holder, and any transfer thereof will forfeit the same to the Society. And the person transferring or receiving such ticket, with intent to defraud the Society, shall not thereafter enter the enclosure upon any condition whatever.

Special Announcement.—The Managers confidently assure the public that such improvements will be made upon the arrangements of the four former Fairs, as will much better secure the comfort of the animals, the safety of the articles, and the convenience of the exhibitors.

The Ebensburg Brass Band has been engaged, and will be upon the ground during the entire exhibition.

In short nothing within the means of the Society will be left undone, which might have a tendency to render the Fair useful and attractive, and bring to it a respectable attendance.

☞ A reward of Ten Dollars will be paid by the Society for the apprehension and conviction of any person or persons found injuring, destroying, or in any manner wantonly interfering with any animal or article on exhibition.

The annual address will be delivered by HON. GEORGE TAYLOR, of Huntingdon, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon of the last day of the exhibition.
