

FOR THE FARMER.

A Common Error in Drainage.

The most of the draining yet attempted in this country is with open ditches, and in swamps. Three cases recently came under our observation, in which the failure is traceable to a common cause.

Mr. A.—reclaimed a swamp of twelve acres. It was thickly covered with brush, and had made a very heavy turf of roots and moss, a foot or more thick. A deep wide ditch was run through the middle, with a few side ditches running at right angles to the main ditch. There was no ditch put around the border to cut off the springs from the side hill. There was a good fall, and these ditches took off all the water from the pond and made the whole swamp ready for the plow. In 1856 he had good crops, and in 1857 still better, some of the stoniest corn in town. In 1858, the corn was not so good, even with the application of manure, and in 1859 the corn crop is a decided failure. The land had settled somewhat by the decay of the roots and vegetable matter in the soil, and had become so compact that the water from the sides could not readily escape into the ditches.

Mr. B.—drained some four acres with tile running from the edge of the swamp into a main open ditch in the middle. The tiles were put four rods apart, and even with this imperfect drainage, the land was very productive for four or five years, bearing good hood crops, and still better grass. Last year it was taken up a second time, and the corn was a failure, owing to the excessive moisture of the land. No border ditch had been made to cut off springs from the upland.

Mr. C.—had some ten acres of low wet land, underlaid by a hard pan, the soil in no place more than eighteen inches deep. A small brook ran through the middle. The bed of this was lowered some two feet, and two other ditches at a distance of ten rods were dug, going no deeper than the hard pan. There was no border ditch—and besides this error, Mr. C. fell into two others—having only one ditch where the land needed three—and digging only eighteen inches, where he should have gone down three feet. The land lies on an inclined plane, has a good fall, and might be easily made to produce two tons of good herds-grass to the acre. Instead of that, the wild sour grasses have never been eradicated, and it has never yielded over three quarters of a ton of hay to the acre.

These gentlemen are somewhat inclined to look upon the drainage as a humbug, when that term is more appropriately applied to the style of their works. It was not more than half done. A border drain is indispensable, in all cases of reclaiming swamp land. This cuts off the enemy from the outside, and leaves the other ditches to dispose of the surface water.

These open ditches are but a poor substitute for thorough drainage, at best, but they are the first advances toward the improvement of wet land, likely to be made by most farmers. It is of great importance that the errors pointed out in these cases should be avoided.—American Agriculturist.

GOOD STOCK THE MOST PROFITABLE.

—In my father's yard during the winter are several head of cattle, young and old. Some are natives, but the greater portion are grades with from one-half to seven-eighths Short-horn blood in them. All the stock are treated alike, and receive the same food, and the same care and attention. The cows are warmly stabled, and the young stock have good warm sheds, and plenty of straw. The native cows eat their meals quickly, and then grab all they can from their neighbors. The native stock in the yard do the same. The grades eat quietly and contentedly, and submit to being plundered of their last morsels by the others. Yet the grades come out in the spring, increased in size, in good condition and with sleek coats, while the natives seem to stop growing, and get so poor that it requires a summer pasturage to get up their condition and start their growth again.

PROPAGATING FRUIT TREES.—The Chinese have a singular method of propagating fruit trees. They strip a ring of bark about an inch in width, from a bearing branch in the spring of the year. The place is then surrounded with a ball of rich earth or loam, bound to the limb with a piece of matting. Over this is suspended a small vessel containing water, and having a hole in the bottom, just large enough to let the water drop slowly through on the ball of earth, in order to keep it constantly moist. Rootspringing out from the branch just above the ring, and enter the ball of earth, where they grow and spread out. In the autumn, the limb is cut off just below this ball, and then planted out at the time of the fall of the leaf. The following year this small tree produces fruit.

HOW TO KNOW A HORSE'S AGE.—The Wool Grower says, after the horse is nine years of age, a wrinkle comes on the eyelids, at the upper corner of the lower lid; and every year thereafter he has one defined wrinkle for each year over nine.—Add the number of wrinkles to nine, and you will then know the age of the animal. Will some one ascertain the truth of this statement?—Genesee Farmer.

CURE FOR BURNS.—Indian meal poultice covered over with young hyson tea, softened with warm water, and laid over burns or frozen flesh, as hot as can be borne, will relieve the pain in five minutes. If blisters have not risen before, they will not after this is put on; and one poultice is generally sufficient to effect a cure.
