

FOR THE FARMER.

How to Burn Coal.

Nine out of ten who attempt to burn coal in a stove, waste about as much coal as is necessary to be consumed for the obtaining of all the heat desirable. Observe the following rules. We will suppose the stove cleaned out.

First, To make a coal fire: Put in a double handful of shavings, or light kindling-wood instead. Fill the earthen cavity (if the stove has one) nearly full of chunks of dry wood, say four or six inches in length. On the top put a dozen lumps of egg coal. Light with a paper from beneath. In ten minutes add about twenty lumps more of coal. As soon as the wood has burnt out, fill the cavity half or two-thirds full of coal. The fire will be a good one. The coal will, by following these directions, become thoroughly ignited.

Second, Never fill a stove more than half or two-thirds full of coal, even in the coldest weather.

Third, When the fire is low, never shake the grate or disturb the ashes, but add from ten to fifteen small lumps of coal and set the draft open. When these are heated through and somewhat ignited, add the amount necessary for a new fire, but do not disturb the ashes yet. Let the draft be open half an hour. Now shake out the ashes. The coal will be thoroughly ignited, and will keep the stove at a high heat from six to twelve hours, according to the coldness of the weather.

Fourth, For very cold weather. After the fire is made, according to the rules first and third, add every hour about fifteen or twenty lumps of egg coal. You will find that the ashes made each hour will be about in that ratio.

Get your Grain Ready:

Every indication goes to show that the coming year will be one of unparalleled commercial and industrial activity. Manufacturing will employ more labor and capital than ever before; trading will flourish more than ever before; and a great number of producers will draw off to the Pike's Peak, California, Arizona and Nevada gold and silver mines. All this will create a demand for agricultural products, such as the country has never seen before, and we should not be surprised, should wheat reach a higher figure during the winter of 1859-61, than it ever has yet. The course for our farmers to pursue is obvious. They should prepare to put all the grain in the ground possible, next spring. Put your wheat in very early. He who gets it in first gets it out first, and has the largest crop. But don't depend on wheat alone; vary your crops; put in rye, barley, buckwheat, in season—prepare to plant potatoes and vegetables of all kinds; raise hogs and chickens, make butter and cheese. Tend to your business closely this year, and avoid the politicians. By this means and with care and economy, next year you will see us all in a good condition.—Rockford News.

EXTERMINATING BRIERS.—In fields newly cleared of wood, an abundant growth of blackberry, raspberry, and other briery plants usually spring up from seeds carried there by birds. These seeds have been waiting for the sunshine to bring them to life. Burning the brush and rubbish gives them a fine top dressing, from which they will thrive with great vigor, often requiring years of thorough culture with hoe crops, to eradicate them. We have found pasturing such fields with sheep an effectual remedy. They are very fond of the leaves and tender young shoots, and will keep them so closely cropped down, that they will have no chance for life. The following year the land can be plowed with much less difficulty than where a thicket of rank briars disputes the passage of the team.

WINTER WORK.—The Winter is the proper time to prepare labels, sticks, trawls, &c., for spring or summer use. Good pine or cedar shingles are excellent for labels, splitting them into pieces of convenient width, and painting them with white paint. If the name be written with a lead pencil before the paint dries, it will never be effaced by the action of the weather. For rods for supporting the stem of plants, split the shingles—round the pieces and paint them green. We have already recommended iron wire, cut into proper lengths and painted green, or galvanized wire without paint, as excellent for the purpose.

LIME.—An English publication says that a large plantation of trees has been formed in that country, within a few years past, without the loss of a single tree, by putting a small quantity of lime in the hole when planting the tree. Four bushels of lime are said to be sufficient for an acre. The lime is thoroughly mixed with the soil, in order that it may be reached by the roots, with equal facility in every direction, as its principal effect is to push forward the tree during the first precarious stages of growth.

USE OF BONES.—There is nothing like decaying bones for all sorts of fruit trees. They are perhaps best for apples, and then for quinces; but are good for any kind of fruit unless it be cranberries, which seem to live and grow on little bit of air and water. If it is not convenient to reduce the bones in sulphuric acid, break them up small and place them about the roots of the tree.

NEVER harrow the feelings of your wife.
