THERMOMETRICAL OBSERVATIONS.—Prepared weekly, by Dr. R. S. Bunn. FOR WEEK ENDING APRIL 2.

Average temperature for the week 51 1/2°. Note.—Those marked thus *, are below 0, or zero.

EDITORIAL RECHINGS.—On Saturday night last, the quarterly election for officers for the Highland Division of Sons of Temperance, located in this place, was held, and the following result was had:—W. P., G. Alex. Kincaid; W. A., R. R. Davis; R. S., Samuel Davis; A. R. S., Lewis Rogers; F. S., Wm. Tibbott; T., Andrew Lewis; C., D. L. Evans; A. C., J. W. Roberts; I. S., Wm. D. Davis; O. S., Frank Stanley; Chaplain, John Gittings; Editor of Flag, Lemuel Davis.—Quite a number of our citizens changed their places of residence during the beginning of the present month, but the location of the different stores and business houses remain, as a general thing, as heretofore.—A man named Geist, an employee in the Johnston Rolling-mill, lately had both his eyes burned out by sparks from the furnace. On the fact becoming known to his fellow-workmen, they generously agreed to donate him the entire proceeds of one day's work, and upwards of $1700 was in this manner realized for the unfortunate sufferer.—We are happy to be able to state, for the benefit of those who are fond of a prime article of home-made cigars, that Shultzbaugh, formerly of Carrolltown, has arrived, and intends establishing in this place, a Tobacconist shop, where the business in all its varied details will be carried on.—A very interesting paper, giving much general information, is chapter VI. of the History of Cambria county. Give it a perusal.—The season for April showers and budding trees and opening flowers is here. But be not so premature, denizen of the mountain, as to imagine, for all this, that winter is over. If we have not yet several snow-storms, and perhaps one or two sleighing-parties, it will be an unaccountable oversight of the weather-clerk, indeed.—To those of our merchants who have not yet purchased their spring goods, we would suggest gratuitously, the propriety of examining the columns of The Alleghanian, and patronizing those city firms whose advertisements are found therein. They will have the reputation of selling at ruinously low prices.—It is argued that the year eighteen hundred and sixty is an epoch in the world's history, from the fact that, although March came in like a lamb, it went not out like a lion—but gently and calmly as sinks the evening sun to rest behind a summer cloud.—The water has been let into the "reging kanaw," and navigation has commenced.—The Huntington Globe has been informed, by a friend who went to the trouble to examine the record, that there are no less than sixty marriageable ladies residing in one street in that town. A friend of ours states, to his certain knowledge, that there are just about sixty old bachelors existing on High street, in this place. Put that and that together.—The farmers throughout this county are still extensively engaged in making maple sugar. The whole number of pounds manufactured this season, could the true statistics be arrived at, would form a fabulous sum.—Attention is directed to the advertisement in this week's paper of J. Stahl, Esq., proprietor of the Clock, Watch and Jewelry store. Mr. Stahl as a cunning workman in gold and silver is unsurpassed, while his prompt attention to business and his low schedule of prices are well known by all who have had the fortune to deal with him.—Mr. John Buzzard, an old citizen of Carroll township, while returning home, one day last week, was thrown from his horse, and seriously injured.—Snow to the depth of several inches fell on Monday night last, and the sleighing was excellent until noon.—Our friend Hamilton, of Wilkesboro, has for some time been supplying our citizens with a delicious article of fresh fish. The Major is a public benefactor.—Jonathan Focht, Colporteur, is now engaged in canvassing Johnston for the sale of the publications of the American Tract Society and Sunday School Union.—Mr. Edward D. Evans informs us that he will commence teaching a subscription school, in the Union School building, on Monday next. Mr. E. is a good teacher, and will no doubt secure a large attendance of scholars.—The streets are very muddy at present.

KIMMELL vs. BARNETT et al.—Some months ago, we gave a report of the trial and result of this interesting case, before the Court of Common Pleas of this county.

Our readers will remember that, under the charge of Judge Taylor, the jury found that the marriage between Barnett and Miss Kimmell was a fraudulent one on his part, and that a verdict was rendered against him and his surety, for the amount of the bond which they had executed in Miss Kimmell's favor. The case was subsequently carried to the Supreme Court, and an opinion has recently been delivered by Judge Read, which reverses the judgment given by Judge Taylor. The following is a syllabus of the facts and the law, as laid down in Judge Read's opinion: Theodore Barnett, a minor, with David Hamilton, his uncle, entered into a bond with warrant of attorney to Emma Kimmell, conditioned for the payment of $300 within sixty days from the 9th of June, 1858; and at the same time, Emma executed and delivered to them another instrument, which, after reciting the bond, provided that, if within sixty days Theodore proposed to marry Emma, and was rejected, or on the other hand, if his proposition was accepted, and he married her, then the bond was to be null and void. Theodore and Emma were married within the time fixed, but, since the marriage, he has refused to live with her. Rule was taken to show cause why the judgment entered on the bond should not be marked satisfied and an issue directed to try the question whether the condition expressed had been complied with. Held: that as there was no evidence of fraud, except that since the marriage the parties had not lived together, the stipulation had been complied with, and that the judgment entered should have been marked satisfied.—We may state, that Judge Strong dissented from the judgment of the majority of his brethren, and delivered an opinion in which he says he regards the instruction given by his honor, Judge Taylor, to the jury, "as strictly legal, and their verdict eminently just." Such is law.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE.—On Thursday afternoon last, a cooper-shop, in Chest township, belonging to A. A. Barker, Esq., of this place, and superintended by the Messrs. Kirkpatrick, was wholly consumed by fire.

All the tools used therein, together with 500 shooks and from 20,000 to 25,000 staves, were also destroyed. There was no insurance upon the property; and the whole loss is about $1,000, nearly all of which falls upon Mr. Barker. A considerable amount of property which would otherwise have been destroyed, was saved through the vigilance of those present.—The origin of the fire is not known.—We are informed that Mr. B. will have the shop re-built in a week or two, and that branch of his extensive business will be carried on there as usual.

Answer to last week's enigma—"Aulus Licinius Archias."

Mr. Ely's School.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ALLEGHANIAN:—Having had the pleasure of attending the closing exercises of Mr. Ely's school, I thought that, as you were not present, you would indulge me in a somewhat extended account of it, as it might be of interest to your numerous readers.

The weather on that day, to use the expressive language of another, was immense—indeed a more calm and lovely morn is scarcely to be numbered among the things that may be on the mountain; while the neat appearance and smiling faces of the scholars, as they danced their way to school for the last time for the session, was enough to tell all who saw them that it was indeed a gala day with them.

The morning exercises consisted of a close drill on the various branches that had occupied their time during the past winter, interspersed with rehearsals from some of their public performances. In the afternoon, the large room was filled to the full, with not only the immediate friends of the scholars, but with the young and gay of both sexes, all seeming to feel that there was a pleasure in the scene, recalling vividly to each one's mind, "the school-boy spid."

"We ne'er forget, tho' there we forgot." The performances consisted in declamations, dialogues, and some well selected pieces of music, which were performed to the admiration of all present. The evening exercises were interrupted by the crowd in attendance, which not only filled the space devoted to the audience, but so encroached upon the stage, that it was found impossible to proceed. In the confusion, some one suggested the court-house as a more fitting place; while others wished the exhibition postponed until morning. But as the majority were determined to see it through, a grand rush was made for the court-house, which seemed to fill almost as soon as the door opened. In the wildness of the excitement, every one seemed to think only of themselves, and we had the melancholy satisfaction of seeing ladies trawl aside by gentlemen, and almost trampled upon by some of their penderous hoofs. After quiet was in some measure obtained, Mr. R. L. Johnston made some rather lengthy but felicitous remarks, contrasting the schools and schoolmasters of the past and the present.

To notice the performers in detail would occupy more space than you could well spare; yet I cannot close without expressing my delight on hearing the Salutatory read by Miss Cornelia Myers, nor the comical appearance of my young friend, Master Ferd Kittell, in his character of "Yankee Jonathan," or the rich uncle of the fair but designing Julia. Let it suffice, however, to say, that the large audience separated at a late hour, well satisfied that the entertainment was one worthy of the scholars and the teacher.

On Saturday morning, Mr. Ely and a few friends met the scholars in the school building, and after some exercises had been gone through with, Mr. Johnston was called upon, and delivered a chaste and beautiful address on the subject of Education. He was followed by our young and brilliant friend, Phil S. Noon, Esq, who, in closing, introduced the "Nestor of the Ebensburg bar," Col. Magellan.—Messrs. Murray, Wills and Singer then spoke a few words, to the edification of the scholars and all present, after which the school closed with a few brief and well chosen remarks from Mr. Ely. Votes of thanks were returned by the scholars to the gentlemen who addressed them, and also to Mr. Ely, their much respected teacher.

Beemerville, Sussex co., N. J., March 20, 1866. Mr. I. C. SINGER.—Sir: Yours of 9th was received, and it affords me pleasure to answer it, and tell you what I think of the Patent Wheel. I bought the right of this county on the first of Jan., 1859, and consequently have been using it more than a year. I commenced the manufacture of these carriages in the face of all kinds of opposition. Some said it would give in one place, and some in another; but the wheel has proved strongest in the very parts found fault with most. Now I have no carriages ordered but the patent wheel. I have used 45 sets of these wheels, and to-day have ordered 12 sets more. It is my honest opinion that in five years there will be no call for the old wood wheel, where the patent wheel is used. The croakers will beset you on every side, but they must give it up. Get the wheels running, and you will be all right. Get the hardest driver in your neighborhood to try them, and then the people will see. Yours truly, ISAAC DOLSEN.

The Feed Cutters are selling fast, and give satisfaction as far as heard from. ASTHMA. BY THE INSTANT RELIEF AND PERMANENT CURE OF THIS DISTRESSING COMPLAINT, USE FENDT'S BRONCHIAL CIGARETTES.
