A FAREWELL TO SUMMER.—The subject of the following "pome" was evidentbria County Agricultural Society will ly suggested by the late style of weather, commence. As it is likely that on the which, to say the least of it, favored very success of this exhibition will hinge the strongly as if Old Boreas had unchained future course of the Society-that is to a few of his "biting blasts" to frighten say, that it will then be decided whether glorious Summer from her throne. In this, we are happy to say, he did not altogether succeed, for Summer still holds the stage of usefulness into the dark abyss her wonted sway-although slightnally debilitated by the fierce attack. It is written expressly for our columns by the inimical Blobbs:

Farewell to Summer! a long farewell! Winter's coming, coming; No more the bees through clover-fields Are merrily, joyously humming. But dreary, cold and chill the wind

Will soon be shricking, shricking, shricking, Fer what is now a Paradise-(Comparatively speaking.)

Fellers and gals then can't go out-Go out a walking, walking, walking,-But'll have to wearily sit in doors, And do their courting and talking. Our old plank-road'll no more resound To merry talking, laughing, shouting, For snow-drifts on its bosom'll lie,

And successfully prevent all go-outing. But, jev 'hove measure! this remains-We'll go sleighing, sleighing, sleighing: wo-phorty, sleigh, nice gal, and sich, And bells a jingling and playing;

Who cares for expenses or the cold-Tho' the latter be freezing, nipping, biting Tis Love that makes the world go round, And the world goes round a kiting.

Commonwealth vs. John W. Short, Indictnent, wilful fraud in discharge of his duties as Clerk of said Election. Jury unable to gree, and Deft, ordered into recognizance for his appearance at next Court

Indictments are also pending against Henry Reuseh for fraud in discharge of his duties as Inspector, and Charles Geisdants have not been taken

MISS VICKROY'S LECTURE.-We last week briefly adverted to the lecture delivered in this place by Miss Louise E. Vickrov, on the "Poetry and Poets of America." Miss Vickroy has herself achieved an enviable reputation as a poetess, and she is eminently fitted for the task of interesting an audience on such a subject. Her information with regard to the history of American poets and poetry from our earliest existence as a nation down to the present time is large and varied, and the arrangement of her many quotations showed a cultivated taste and vivid discernment of the beautiful. Altho' the evening was dark and damp and disagreeable, a large proportion of our citizens attended her lecture, and expressed in unmistakable terms their approbation of her effort. She is a native Cambrian, and one of whom we have just reason to

INTERESTING TO CELIBATES .- A friend informs us that he is at present engaged in collecting some statistics, which, when in a complete state, will give some curious information. He purposes, first, to ascertain, as far as possible, the number of unmarried marriageable ladies and gentlemen we have in our midst. After he has accomplished this task, he will cast about him and see how many passably-good matches he could manufacture out of the lot were the matter left to his disposal.-But as matches (except lucifers) are made in Heaven, these will not be binding. He also will satisfy himself as to the probable number who should have followed Nature's ago. We will publish the result of his labors when completed.
