"Jake, I want you to go to the store," half a mile distant-"and get me a quarof soap."

Jake roused himself up, brushed the whittlings from his lap and started forward on his errand. He did not return. Ten years passed by, and no tidings were heard of the errand. Yesterday as the family were sitting down to their Thanksgiving dinner, the door opened and in came a tall, mustached, good looking man, with some bundles in his hand. It was Jake Stringer. All the family sprang to their feet in astonishment, but the mothand Jake were perfectly cool.

"Mother," said Jake "here's your sugar and soap."

"Lay them on the table and eat your dinner," said Mrs. Stringer; "you ought to be whipped for staying so long."

A philosopher stepped on board a ferryboat to cross a stream. On the passage he inquired of the ferryman if he understood arithmetic. The man looked astonished.

"Arithmetic ! No. sir." "I am very sorry; for one quarter of your life is gone.'

A few minutes after, he asked: "Do you understand mathematics?" The boatman smiled, and replied:

"No." "Well, then," said the philosopher, 'another quarter of your life is gone.' Just then the boat ran on a snag, and was sinking, when the ferryman jumped up, pulled off his coat, and asked the philosopher with great earnestness of manner: "Sir, can you swim?" "No sir."

"Well, then," said the ferryman "your whole life is gone, for the boat is going to the bottom.

An old gentleman who was never accused of being a wizzard, went out with his gun one day to shoot partridges, accompanied by his son. Before they approached the ground where they expected to find the game, the gun was charged with a severe load, and when at last the old gentleman discovered one of the birds, he took a rest and blazed away, expecting to see him fall, of course : but not so did it happen, for the gun recoiled with so much force as to "kick" him over. The old man got up and while rubbing the sparks out of his eyes, inquired of his son, "Alphy, did I point the right end of the gun to the birds."
