

RIGHT OR WRONG. WHEN RIGHT, TO BE KEPT RIGHT. WHEN WRONG, TO BE PUT RIGHT.

EBENSBURG: THURSDAY, JANUARY 9.

The Slanderer.

Yet did he spare his sheep, and hear the clock. Number the midnight watches, on his bed, Devising mischief; and early rose, And made most hellish meals of good men's names.

White on his face, thrown back by injured men. In characters of ever blushing shame, Appeared ten thousand slanders, all his own.

Like a certain individual, of whom HUBBARD or somebody else has made conspicuous mention, our good friend DIZZARD of the Dem. & Sent. has become quite renowned for profound and solid lying.

DIZZARD has, at divers times, and in sundry ways, honored us by expressing his entire disapprobation of our political, as well as our editorial career; and he has, on numerous occasions, dignified us, by making our humble self the object of lies, whose ponderosity and specific gravity it would be difficult to calculate.

Our readers are fully posted in regard to these matters; they know how we have met them; therefore we shall not trouble them with recapitulation; but are content that between him and us they shall be the arbiters.

Lo and behold! here it is: "Because we faithfully stood by the Union and the constitution of our Country, and refused to bow our knee to the foul spirit of Abolitionism, he (Barker) endeavored to incite a mob to rid out this establishment, and pointed us out as a traitor worthy to occupy a place in the dungeon of Fort Lafayette."

Now, this is "something new" to us, and we have no doubt it will be so to our readers. In the first place, it will be news to a great many that DIZZARD has been standing faithfully by the Union and the Constitution. There have been serious doubts on that point. It is well known that he has always been an advocate of Southern rights and institutions, and ever since he became an editor has been playing the lick-spittle and prating about the certainty of Disunion, instead of denouncing the absurd idea; and thus he has played second fiddle to men who would now scarcely condescend to kick him out of their way.

It is something new to us also, and we think it will be so to our readers, that we "endeavored to incite a mob to rid out his establishment." We have heard it said, however, that sometime last summer a party was being raised for that purpose, and that Democrats were at the head of it. Patriotism was running high, and owing to the tone of his paper, his loyalty had been seriously questioned for some time.

But if, after the expose we have given of the fellow, our readers do not conclude, that there have been and are better men in those dungeons than he is, then we'll agree that we are mistaken—that's all.

There is yet another portion of his article to which we must briefly turn our attention. The frenzied creature has even gone so far as to impugn our character for truth and veracity, intimating that he would not believe us on our oath. Nay more: in his madness, he has undertaken to ridicule our personal appearance. He says of us: "Even his personal appearance is against him. His countenance is that of a selfish and designing scoundrel, and an acute physiognomist would at once set him down as a fellow by the hand of nature marked, quoted and signed to do a deed of shame."

whole being the unmistakable index of a most cowardly though desperate character. It is hardly possible that he will die in his bed; his carcase will therefore be a fine subject for scientific investigation. And after he has passed the ordeal of the law, and the dissecting room, his skull ought to be taken to a phrenologist of experience and ability, but who never had the misfortune to know its owner.

In closing, we avail ourself of the opportunity to tender to DIZZARD renewed assurances of our most distinguished consideration. And if, at any other future time, we regard him as being worthy of it, we shall pay such attention to his case as the extremity of it may require.

Dizzard Belieated.

"Since your connection with The Alleghenian commenced, you have devoted considerable space in your columns to an individual known as CHARLES D. MURRAY. Do you really think such a creature is deserving of such distinguished considerations? Why spend your time in a controversy with a wretch who closes his ears to truth, rejects reason, despises argument, steals his heart against honest conviction, and turns his back upon everything that is manly and honorable? Why burden your columns and bore your readers with delineations and descriptions of one so far steeped in infamy, and who is loathed and despised by every man, woman and child in the community, whose opinion is worth having? Know you not that he was long since awarded a diploma by a unanimous vote of the college of blackguards, and he glories in the title of bachelor of that disgraceful institution? Here where he is known, his tongue is no scandal; his denunciation is approval, his abuse is praise. Surely you have nothing to gain in entering the lists with such a fellow. The truth, however searching, could not reach him, and no lie, however artful or imposing, could put him to shame. And as to the paper he publishes, instead of accomplishing the end he so much desires—that of robbing his neighbors of their good name—it serves only as the weekly register of his own disgrace.

—We submit the above as a specimen of the opinions and sentiments of gentlemen of both political parties verbally and voluntarily expressed to us since the appearance of the Democrat & Sentinel, of December 25th. That this specimen contains some sound logic, and some stern though homely truths, surely no one familiar with the circumstances under which it is given, can for a moment gainsay.

The trouble with England, growing out of the seizure of Mason and Slidell, has been settled by our government giving up the prisoners. Thus a war with England, which appeared so imminent, has been avoided. In giving up these prisoners, our government has only acted in accordance with her old policy on the right of search. The only persons now who will rail at the government for thus honorably avoiding a war with England, will be the traitors in the South, and their allies elsewhere, who wished for a war with that country, that the traitors might be the better able to accomplish the hellish purpose of breaking up this glorious Union.

the owners and proprietors of a Secession journal, or the hired miscreant who, in long and tedious articles, carries out their desires and reflects their opinions, that he, forsooth, may get his bread and butter.

For these and kindred reasons, our friends, we feel well assured, will bear patiently with us when occasionally we address ourself to the business of "taking down" and "laying out" the ostensible editor of the Democrat & Sentinel. We have accepted our editorial position with all its cares and responsibilities, and our duty as we understand it, we intend to discharge, faithfully and fearlessly. When, therefore, we smash the serpent's head, whip the dog, fight the Devil, or obfuscate his imp, our readers will appreciate our motives. Exterminating the skunk or agitating the matter aforesaid, are operations which we will avoid if possible, but if it be necessary for us to perform them, we shall approach our mark with care and caution, not forgetting to keep at a saving distance, and discharging our disagreeable duty through the instrumentality of a protracted stick of timber.

A Question Answered.

Our long-earred cotemporary up street last week lifted up his voice and bayed, among other things the following: "Will Mr. Barker deny that on a certain occasion he contended with Joseph P. Thompson, Esq., of Philadelphia, that a negro was as good as a white man? What say you; guilty or not guilty?"

Temperance Celebration.

The Ebensburg Temperance Association held its annual anniversary on New Year's day, in the Welsh Congregational Church. The first meeting was held at two o'clock, P. M., when the following officers were elected for the present term: President, Thomas J. Davis. Vice President, James Evans. Secretary, Daniel J. Jones. Treasurer, Samuel Baxter.

The Mason and Slidell Difficulty.

The trouble with England, growing out of the seizure of Mason and Slidell, has been settled by our government giving up the prisoners. Thus a war with England, which appeared so imminent, has been avoided. In giving up these prisoners, our government has only acted in accordance with her old policy on the right of search.

In this decision the President and every member of the Cabinet acquiesced, on the ground that the justice of the claim and the law of nations demanded it. There will be considerable soreness felt by our people on this subject, but we could not afford to do wrong just now at the expense of a war with England.
