

The Alleghanian. THURSDAY, MARCH 6. LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

EBENSBURG AND CRESSON RAILROAD. On and after Monday, March 3, 1862, trains on this road will run as follows:

LEAVE CRESSON—At 7.00 A. M., on departure of Fast Line East. At 11.05 A. M., on departure of Mail Train East. LEAVE EBENSBURG—At 8.10 A. M., connecting with Through Express West. At 3.10 P. M., connecting with Mail Train West.

LOCAL ETCHINGS.—Subscribe for The Alleghanian. Read it carefully each week. Then file it away for future reference. Pay for it invariably in advance. Tell your neighbors to do likewise. Subscription price—only $1.50. Friday of last week was the coldest day of the season thus far. The "maple sugar" season is about at hand.

The measles are quite prevalent among the juveniles of Johnstown at the present time. We have on file for publication next week, an interesting letter from our Kentucky correspondent, "Boanerges."

The Cambria Tribune says that a little girl named Morgan was frightfully if not fatally burned in Johnstown one day last week, by her clothing taking fire. The sleighing hereabout is excellent at present, and the silvery music of the merry bells is heard from morn till night.—As this may be about the last wag of the hammer, our advice is—"Go it!"

The Cambria Tribune says that Dr. J. L. Marbourg, of Johnstown, received orders last week to report himself at Harrisburg immediately, for duty as Assistant Surgeon of volunteers. Glad to hear it, and hope it is true!

The attendance at Court this week is quite respectable. The case of the Commonwealth vs. Samuel Welsh, indictment for rape, was reached yesterday, (Tuesday,) but is not yet concluded. We will give a synopsis of the most important proceedings in our next issue.

As it is possible that many of our subscribers may have no particular objection to saving the small matter of twenty-five cents, we beg leave to suggest the following feasible method: Call and pay your subscription to this paper within the next two weeks—$1.50. After that time, according to our terms, our charge will be $1.75. Vous comprendez?

Col. John M. Bowman, of the Johnstown Tribune, was in town on Tuesday, and dropped in on us for a few minutes. He reports Johnstown as being in a flourishing condition, albeit greatly exercised concerning the celebrated new song, "John Brown's soul is a marching on." The Colonel is a gentleman, and his paper a tip-top sheet. We wish both success.

The present is the proper season to attend to the work of trimming trees, before the sap begins to ascend from the roots to the trunk and limbs, and thus insure a plentiful growth of shoots and consequently an abundant foliage, which, as every housekeeper knows, is a very desirable thing around one's dwelling during the sultry months of summer. Next month will do well enough for preparing and planting out young trees, but it is rather too late for trimming.

The stormy March has come at last, with wind, and clouds, and changing skies, I hear the rushing of the blast that thro' the snowy valley flies. Thus far, Mrs. Hemans. Furthermore, if we remember bright, the aforesaid month was successfully ushered into existence on Saturday morning by fair weather, a bright sky, and cheerful surroundings generally. "When March comes in like a lamb, it goes out like a lion." So saith the proverb, and all provers are indisputable. Wherefore, reader, seduce yourself not with the belief that Winter is yet over. By no means.

A report was put in circulation in this place last week, to the effect that Gen. M'Call had marched against Leesburg on Thursday, and succeeded in taking that stronghold, but not until after his division had been almost entirely cut to pieces by the rebels. The rumor proved to be utterly false, but it had the natural effect for the time being of causing our citizens—many of whom have relatives and friends in that division of the army—to be extremely solicitous as to the credibility of the statement. These false reports of victories and defeats are becoming altogether too common, and the scoundrels who give them currency should be put through a severe and protracted course of sprouts forthwith.

CAMP CURTIN.—We are sorry that we have not room this week to publish entire the interesting letter of our Silver Gray correspondent, "High Private." Here-with we give an extract from it, touching the order for the removal of the troops at Camp Curtin to Washington city: Camp Curtin is being "cleaned out." On Wednesday, the camp was electrified by the intelligence, that an immediate onward march had been ordered. The news was received with an enthusiasm which illustrates the restraint upon the eagerness of the men, that has kept them from a participation in the recent conflicts with the enemy. The men seem to walk with an elasticity not distinguishable before, bearing their heads aloft with a pride that bespeaks their desire to strike—and that effectually—for their country, its constitution, and its unity. Tents are being struck—knapsacks packed—baggage loaded—soldiers are yelling with delight—confusion seems to reign supreme—in a word, men appear to be mad, yet there seems to be "method in their madness," as every one is found in his proper place when the word "March" is given.

The 54th regiment—better known as the "Cambria County Regiment," and for several months past stationed at Camp Curtin—were among the number thus ordered to take up their "onward march." They are now with the Grand Army of the Potomac.

LITERARY.—The annexed acrostic and sentiment have been sent us by a loyal son of New England. They are worthy the patriotic head and heart that conceived them. To wit:

ACROSTIC. A friend of country, and of God, Brought forth to rule 'mid strife and blood; A high the overwhelming wave! Awful for sin the scourging day! Hope yet hopes—the President may A sinking country save. Many Heaven unaided can no salvation bring. Lord God of Hosts, thine aid afford! Imperil the vile rebel horde! Nor let Thy mercy cease; Come bless the land, and loyal hosts— On all the States, through all our coasts, Let fall a lasting peace. No man by Heaven unaided can salvation bring. SENTIMENT. As the first President of our glorious Union was appropriately denominated Father of his Country, so, it is justly hoped, the present President may be devoutly named Saviour of his Country. Here.

TO PARENTS.—By reference to our advertising columns, it will be seen that Mr. D. W. Evans proposes opening a select school in this place, commencing on next Monday, 10th inst. Mr. E. has officiated for some months as Superintendent of our Union School, in the discharge of the duties of which position he gave very general satisfaction. We unhesitatingly recommend him to the favorable consideration of heads of families.

ACCIDENT.—A German, whose name we did not learn, met with a rather serious accident at Wilmore on Tuesday of last week. On attempting to cross the railroad track at that place with a two-horse wagon, he was run into by a train, killing both his horses, shattering the wagon, and severely injuring himself. Look out for the locomotive!

SUDDEN DEATH.—Col. H. C. Hughes, formerly Superintendent of the telegraph department at Pittsburg, died at Maj. Hamilton's hotel, Wilmore, on Sunday week. He resided at Hagerstown, Md., but had been sojourning at Maj. Hamilton's for a considerable length of time.

TRIAL LIST.—The following is the list of causes set down for trial at the Court of Common Pleas of Cambria county, commencing on Monday, 10th of March, 1862:

Table with 2 columns: Name and Opponent. Includes cases like Johnson vs George et al, Paden vs Lye, Mutual Ins. Co vs Besop, Whittle & Orrick vs Burk et al, etc.

THE CAMPAIGN IN THE INTERIOR. BEULAH, March 3, 1862. From Our Particular Man of War. Victory perches upon our banner! We have met the enemy, and they are the subscriber's. Allah is great! The battle came off on Friday. It was a very large battle. During the beginning of the past week, I received the following telegram from the Secretary of War. It explains itself.—That is to say:

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26, 1862. Special Order No. 2761. Capt. Smith, Beulah, Pa.—Caleb: Information has been received by this Department to the effect that the Rebels are fortifying a position on the Lower Blacklick, with the ultimate intention of blockading that river.—Don't let them!

Which I immediately didn't. I went down upon them, like a wolf onto the fold, and dissipated them. Communication with the Federal Capital must be kept open, by land likewise by water.

Nature had done much for the position they had occupied: Art had done more. Between the two, it was a rather strong fortification than otherwise. All this didn't deter me in the least from acting up to the letter of my instructions. I never get deterred.

On the contrary... I moved upon the enemy, by both land and water, at precisely 9 A. M. We fought until noon, when I drew off my forces to allow the Rebels eat their dinner. This act of courtesy was reciprocated by the Rebel fuzgleman presenting me with three plugs of Baltimorean Twist and a colored sky-rocket.

My men, in their hurry-scurried departure from camp in the morning, absolutely forgot to take any grubular along.— This is a charming fact, and demonstrates beyond the possibility of a reasonable doubt, that, when a desire to right the Right is the prevailing incentive, a man can fight as well on whisky-'n-water as on anything else. As the sequel will show.

At one o'clock, we again moved on the enemy. Two or three odd hours were squandered in scientific sockdolagery, when I—becoming distinctly disgusted with science and that sort of thing—ordered a good, old-fashioned "charge bayonets!" on the works. "Charge for the guns!" I said, "be there no man dismayed—onto the sons of guns!"

Recovering myself, I added: "The country expects every man to do his whole duty. Obsequious-verconstampedalixerostationarybousterr'raeio and sometimes w and y!"

This is the talisman of my company. It acted like magic. The men started off like talismanians, with a burrah and a run, pantaloons strapped over, and three beats to the measure. However—before we had attained the breastworks of the enemy—the Stars and Bars were hauled down, and we were confronted by a flag of truce.

"Where's the commander of the Federal forces—one Smith?" inquired the bearer of this latter commodity. "Behold the individual," replied I, stepping forward and suffering my majestic proportions to loom up before his astonished gaze.

This was at about 6 o'clock, P. M. He looked at me—and the longer he looked the more his wonder grew—until fully 6.14. Becoming impatient, I ordered a corporal to cave in his hat for him. Which had the desired effect.

"So you're S-m-i-t-h, be you? Well, my name's Briggs: I'm commander of you there fort: what's your terms of capitulation?" ejaculated, interpolated and interrogated the apparition before me. "Thank you, I don't drink: unconditional surrender's the word!" answered I. This most likely got him.

After a long silence, he spoke—"Capturing Smith," said he, "I take my pen in hand to inform you that I cave. I embrace this occasion, however, to enter my protest against your injudicious and unchivalric use of the bayonet. That instrument are not recognized in the code of Southern: differs from our preconceived ideas of matters and things, you know: Southern constitution being by no means infallible, you know. Take any other form but that!"

I told him if I did I would, otherwise probably not. We captured something less than 25,000 prisoners, together with numerous cannon, small arms, etc., over 1,000 of whom were commissioned officers.

This is the most severe blow the Rebellion has yet received. For further particulars see small bills.

The Rebels have abandoned the idea of blockading the Blacklick just yet. The prisoners were all released after taking a strong decoction of oath yesterday. The fort is in possession of a portion of my command. They can hold it against any force that may be bro't against them. All quiet on the Upper Blacklick. A forward move may be expected in due course of time, however. In Triumphantly, CALEB SMITH.
