Late and Reliable from Co. 1, 11th Reserves, (Cambria Guards)-Their Participation in the Battles before Richmond-List of Killed and Wounded, &c., &c.

Correspondence of The Alleghanian. BELLEVUE HOSPITAL, NEW YORK, )

July 25. 1862. This being the first opportunity afforded me of corresponding since the battles before Richmond, I haste to send you a list of the killed and wounded of Co. A. Our company did nobly. We were first engaged with the enemy on Thursday evening. We were then on picket, but when the battle reached the picket line, our company was ordered in as skirmishers. We shortly discovered the Rebel a small tail-race which emptied into the knee. Chickahominy. We charged down to it and captured a North Carolinian, who surrendered to Sergt. John E. Scanlan. The 7th Tenn. opened upon our right, where the Captain was, obliging him to order a retreat, as we were then between two fires. I remained with the 2d platoon, we being under good cover, but the Rebels did not advance their skirmishers again. We were engaged two hours, when Adjt. M'Coy relieved us with two companies. We did not lose a man, and remained upon the battle-field all night.

We returned to camp next morning to get provisions and breakfast, but got no breakfast, by reason that orders came to double-quick back to the battle-field. We did so, when orders reached us to retreat to Gaines' house. There was a good deal of dissatisfaction expressed at this order, and we executed it with reluctance, it being known that 6,000 of the Reserves had regiment being held as a reserve,) until a A. Leavy, all of Co. A. quarter of 4 P. M., when we were ordered to relieve the 4th New Jersey. We went with a yell, and many a Rebel bit the dust when the 11th opened upon them with their minies. Capt. Lewis fell the first fire, wounded in the right knee. Nobly did the Cambria Guards stand to the work. Cambria has no reason to blush at the name of her sons.

I was wounded below the right knee one hour before the capture of our regiment. When I was carried off the field, there was no one left to command the | 3d. Chas A. Fagan, company but 4th Sergt. Chas. A. Fagan, the rest being either wounded or absent with wounded comrades.

Our regiment remained four hours under fire. The Rebels formed four lines of tattle during this time, showing that we had been contending against four times Evan Abrams, our number. The 4th New Jersey and 11th Reserves held the centre, while the right and left retreated. The first intimation we had of their retreat was the Rebels in front, on both flanks and in the rear of us demanding our surrender! It the general belief that we were sacrifieed to save the remainder of the Re-

Too much cannot be said in praise of our Colonel and staff officers. They were in all places, encouraging the men by word ind example. Adjt. M'Coy was as cool is a eucumber—as much self-possessed as if the battle were nothing but a dress parade.

In company with eight of our boys, I lay upon the battle-field twenty days, most of the time in a negro hut. The horrors the battle are nothing compared with remaining on the field, among the dead and wounded. The sufferings of the wounded were terrible, no attention having been paid them, or a majority of them, or five days. The name of Surgeon White, of Martindale's brigade, deserves to be cursed by every Northern man. His yranny and barbarism were unparalleled. He allowed the men to lie four and five days without dressing their wounds, thus producing excruciating pain to the sufferers! Our wounded who were unable to dress their own wounds got along well .-An assistant Surgeon furnished me with hree times a day.

We were removed to Richmond on the 7th inst., and remained there three days. e were then conveyed to City Point via etersburg, where we got on board the anderbilt, arriving at this city on the about 21 years. 3d. I do not know why we were sent ere, as two-thirds aboard were Pennsyl- on in Johnstown.

A man, attempting to get on a freight train in motion, at Johnstown, missed his hold and fell, the train passing over and cutting off one of his hands.

IRON CITY COLLEGE .- There is, perhaps, no institution in the country that has been so well sustained during the war as the Iron City College, of this city, and certainly none more deservedly so. This school, which has so long taken the lead in imparting to young men a thorough practical business education, was never, all things considered, in a more prosperous condition than at present. The perfection of its drill is truly wonderful, as may be seen in the workmanship of its by the Orphans' Court of Cambria county to graduates, which challenges comparison with that of any other similar institution in the world. Catalogues can be obtained on application to the principals, Jenkins & Smith .- Pittsburg Gazette.
