CAMP NEAR HARRISON'S LANDING, ) August 8, 1862.

Correspondence of The Alleghanian.

Perhaps some information concerning the welfare of the Cambria Guards-the number killed, wounded and taken prisoper in the battles before Richmond-would not be uninteresting to the people of Ebensburg and vicinity.

The 11th regiment P. R. C. went out on picket on the 25th of June. The next day-Thursday-it collegeasily be seen there were some movements of importance going on within the Rebel lines. Heavy columns of their infantry were being moved on the other side of the Chickahominy towards Mechanicsville, and before long they opened their batteries upon the first and third brigades P. R. C. As econ as the battle had commenced, the second brigade, Gen. Meade's, was ordered to double quick to the scene of action .-The batteries of the Reserve were soon brought up, and went into action, the men working the pieces with their coats off and sleeves rolled up. The infantry also marched into the rifle-pits, to give the John M'Clune.

enemy a bloody welcome. The rebels were soon seen advancing over the brow of a hill, and within range | Sergt. J. E. Scanlan, John M'Bride, of the muskets of the Reserves. Then the battle began in earnest. The rebel force consisted of three divisions, numbering about thirty thousand men. The Reserves numbered about six thousand men. They charged three times upon our batteries, but the grape and canister of the artillery and the minies of the men were too much for them, and they were obliged to retreat back every time.

Co. A occupied the position on picket nearest the battle, and the company was ordered to deploy as skirmishers. We advanced to a mill-race, where there was good cover, and discovered the enemy's skirmishers advancing on the other side. We poured volley after volley into them, and compelled them to fall back.

When Co. A was fighting here, a company of the 7th Reserves was ordered to support us; but owing to the smoke and darkness, they supposed us to be rebels, and fired into us. Fortunately, however, they fired too high, and no one was hurt. We were relieved by the 9th regiment.

We laid on our arms all night. Early next morning, the battle was renewed .-After considerable marching and countermarching, we formed in line of battle on Dr Gaines' farm, where we awaited the approach of the enemy. They were not long coming; but just here the 83d Penna. regiment executed one of the most brilback in confusion. The fighting had now of her floral offering ! become general along the whole line .-The 11th regiment was ordered to the left, to support DeHart's battery; but the fighting having become heavier in the centre, it was ordered up to support that point. We marched to a strip of woods, where | Ebensburg ! we were ordered to lie down. In the meantime, the bullets and shell were flying like hail about us, but the boys stood it like veterans. We were soon ordered up, and marched to relieve the 4th New Jersey. We came to the edge of a ravine in the woods, where we halted and commenced firing. The 4th New Jersey fell back through our regiment, the rebels seeing which charged after them. They did not see us, however, and we let them little in this camp except soldiers, tents come to the edge of the ravine, when we and-dust. This latter article, moreover, poured a volley into them that sent them is a friend that sticketh considerably cloback reeling. They charged on us twice, half an hour after we went into the fight, soldiers to rejoice. until we were taken prisoners.

company. Al! the men that were killed will get the remainder ere long.

this cross fire from the right.

We fought two hours and forty minutes in the woods, when the Colonel ordered us to fall back into the field. When we reached the field, we found four rebel regiments drawn up in line all around us .-The rebel officers ordered us to surrender, but the boys wouldn't do it. We were then fired into from every side, the rebels, however, killing more of their own men in the operation than they did of ours.

When we saw that further resistance was useless, we broke our guns by striking them against trees and stones. Many of us were marched into Richmond that night, while others remained on the battle-field all night and were removed to the Burns Patrick A, city next morning.

Our officers behaved with the greatest bravery. Col. Gallagher went into the battle smoking a cigar! Lt. Col. Jackson. Major Johns and Adjutant M'Coy were every where encouraging the men. Capt. Lewis was all the time at the head of his company, waving his sword, cheering the boys, and telling them not to fire until they could do good execution. He was wounded in the leg, rendering amputation necessary, from the effects of which he died July 2d. A braver man never carried a sword. Lieuts. Burke and Jones were wherever the balls fell fastest and thickest, and acted like men that knew no

After we had been captured, the rebels asked us how many regiments fought against them. We told them one. They said, "We (the rebels) had a brigade, and you nearly annihilated two regiments!"

The following is a list of the killed and wounded of Co. A. I believe it to be correct:

Correspondence of The Alleghanian. Two weeks ago a meeting was held in Ebensburg, to raise a company to go forth in defence of the rights most dear to Northern freemen. You recollect the proceedings of that meeting-thirteen men then and there signed the muster-roll of Capt. John M. Jones' company. Well, patriotic young men flocked to the standard of the Union, and in one week a full company was ready to enter the service of Uncle Sam. On last Tuesday, we organized, were sworn into the service of the Federal Government, and elected our commissioned officers. The next morning, at half past five o'clock, amid the adieux and God-speeds of friends, we left the Mountain Village for the term of nine months

At every station along our journey, we were welcomed with hearty herrals by the men and the waving of handkerchiefs by the ladies. At one of the stations, a beautiful bouquet was thrown in at the car window, which your correspondent had the good fortune to secure. Thanks to the fair donor, and may her pathway thro' hant charges ever made, driving the rebels | life be sweet and pleasant as the fragrance

At two o'clock, we arrived at Harrisburg depot. From thence we marched to the Pennsylvania House, where we partook of dinner; after which we marched to camp. The same evening we received our tents and one day's rations, but nothing else, so the first night's sleep in camp for the greater portion of us was upon the hard ground. Ground, I say, and not soft green grass, for recollect, there is very ser than a poor relation! CAMBRIAN. Yours, &c., [We learn that a new regiment—the 133d Penna.-was organized in Camp Curtin last week, composed of the one Ebensburg company, two Johnstown companies, three Perry companies, two Somerset companies, and two Bedford companies. The officers are as follows : Colonel Spiekman, of Perry; Lieut. Colonel Kopelin, of Cambria; Major Schrock, of Somerset. The regiment left for Washington on Tuesday morning. 1

WHOLESALE CLOTHING, &c .- We direct the attention of our merchants and others to the card of Solomon Gans, wholesale dealer in Clothing, 409 Market st., Phila., to be found in another column.-This establishment bears an enviable reputation for honorable dealing and integrity, and merchants may rely upon all orders for goods being executed promptly and faithfully. Mr. John Hewitt, the salesman for this section, is a gentleman in every sense of the word, and we take pleasure in recommending him to the confidence of customers.

SAD ACCIDENT .- On Saturday of last week, an accident of a heart-rending character occurred in Cambria township, this county, by which a young daughter of John Rees, Jr., was almost instantly killed. The unfortunate girl, it appears, and a companion were riding a race on horseback, and when at the top of speed, she was thrown violently to the ground, thereby dislocating her neck and causing death to ensue in a half hour. The deceased was buried on Sunday at Bethel

UNION PLANING MILL.-We would beg leave to inform our readers at a distance that if they need anything after the manner of Worked Lumber, Sash and Loors, Mouldings, &c., they should send their orders to B. F. Williams, of the Ebensburg Union Planing Mill. He possesses unequalled tacilities for turning out superior workmanship, and his schedule of prices is altogether satisfactory. See advertisement in another column.
