streets. When I was at the Presbyterian Synod, I preached to a large congregation of slaves; it was the largest congregation I ever spoke to in my life. With one exception, that of the minister who sat beside me, they were all slaves, yet one-third of them were whiter than I am; so that slavery is not confined to color, because you often see red haired and blue-eyed slaves. Another question is, will they come North? I would reply to this, that if Freedom is proclaimed South, they will not come North, because they love freedom, but they hate labor. They would prefer to go South. I saw a certain suggestion in the papers to give them the State of Florida. I was glad to see it; let them have that beautiful territory of Ponce de Leon, so graphically alluded to.

We infer, from what Mr. Hoye says, that he has traveled extensively, and mingled with all classes of that strange, caste divided society. The following extract is the only allusion he makes to personal outrages:
The only other question I have been asked is this: Will there be harmony of feeling between the Southern and Northern States hereafter? I say there will not, so long as this institution of slavery exists. But let that institution be eradicated, and there is no obstacle to harmony. There is no feeling of resentment between the Mainites and Mississippians which may not pass away, and as for the loyal Mississippians, they demand the protection of the Star-Spangled Banner, and have reasons to detest the protection of the Stars and Bars, as my poor discolored ankles now testify.

After the Southern gentlemen were thro' the resolutions adopted, and the meeting about to adjourn, Horace Greeley was observed and loudly called for. He made a brief and forcible speech, and closed by proposing—

That the thanks of this meeting be tendered to the Union martyrs and heroes from the South who have addressed us to night, with the assurance that their cause is our cause, and that the arms of the Republic shall never be grounded until justice is done for them and upon their enemies.— [Loud and long continued applause.]

The resolution was enthusiastically adopted, and with three cheers for the President's Proclamation and the loyal men of the South, the meeting dispersed. Every speaker strongly and unequivocally gave his approbation to the Proclamation, not as an expedient measure merely, but as a great necessity—absolutely essential to the preservation of the government and the restoration of the Union.

During the week of battles in front of Washington, Gen. Bayard went forward, under a flag of truce, to meet and confer with his old comrade in arms, the now famous J. E. B. Stuart, of the Rebel cavalry. Less than two years ago Jeb. was first lieutenant and Bayard second lieutenant in the same company; but Jeb is now a major general, and Bayard a brigadier. During the interview, a wounded Union soldier, lying near, was groaning and asked for water. "Here Jeb," said Bayard—old time recollections making him familiar, as he tossed his bridle to the Rebel officer—"hold my horse a minute, will you, till I fetch that poor fellow some water." Jeb held the bridle. Bayard went to a stream and brought the wounded man some water. As Bayard mounted his horse, Jeb remarked that he had not for some time "played orderly to a Union general." The business upon which they met was soon arranged, and the old friends parted—a fight, which had ceased while they were engaged talking, recommencing with great fury on both sides the moment each got back to his own ranks.

Some contemporary, who seems to know all about the component parts of an editor, says he must possess the constitution of a horse, obstinacy of a mule, independence of a wood-sawyer, pertinacity of a dun, endurance of a beggar, entire resignation to the most confounded of all earthly treadmills, and another adds he must be a moving target for everybody to shoot at, and not grumble if he gets cow-headed.

An English farmer recently remarked that "he fed his land before it was hungry, rested it before it was weary, and weeded it before it was foul." We have seldom, if ever, seen so much agricultural wisdom condensed into a single sentence.

A CARD.—
WIMMER'S BRIDGE,
Lancaster Tp. July 30, 1860.
MESSRS. EVANS AND WATSON: GENTLEMEN—
The small size No. 1 Salamander safe which I purchased from your agent, Mr. Adam R.
Bar, in Lancaster City, on July 20th, 1858, has been subjected to a very severe test, which it withstood in a most satisfactory manner. This safe, containing all my books together with valuable papers belonging to myself and some to my neighbors and friends, and representing a value of over Twenty Thousand Dollars, ($20,000) was in my Mill which was destroyed on the night of the 27th of July, 1860, and passed through the fiery ordeal unscathed. The safe was on the second floor and fell to the basement of the Mill, and was subjected for six hours to an intense heat among the ruins, which was greatly increased by the combustion of a large quantity of grain confined within the brick walls. After the fire the safe was opened and the books and papers taken out in a state of perfect preservation, the paper not even being discolored.
This fact was, however, to many bystanders a better recommendation of your Safes than could be expressed in any other words from me.
Yours Respectfully,
SAMUEL RANCK.
A large assortment of the above quality of Fire and Thief Proof Safes always on hand and for sale at as low rates as any other

THE WEEKLY PRESS.

THE WEEKLY PRESS has been established on a secure and permanent foundation; but it is, in reality, a marvellous example of the good of favor which a rightly-conducted LI-BERAL, POLITICAL AND NEWS JOURNAL can receive at the hands of a liberal and enlightened Public.
The general features of the Paper, in addition to its POLITICAL AND NEWS DEPART-MENTS, will be POETRY, SKETCHES, BIOG-RAPHY and Original and Selected TALES, chosen for their lessons of Life, Illustrations of History, depicture of Manners, and general merit, and adapted, in their variety, to the tastes of both sexes and all ages.

THE LITERARY CHARACTER
OF THE WEEKLY PRESS, now universally acknowledged to be of an elevated stamp, shall not only maintain its present high standing, but shall be enhanced by important and valuable contributions from able Writers.
THE POLITICAL COURSE
OF THE WEEKLY PRESS need not be engendered upon here. Independent, steady and fearless, it has battled unflinchingly and zealously in defence of THE RIGHTS OF THE PEOPLE against Executive Usurpation and Unfair and Tyrannical Legislation; ever disclaiming and adhering to the doctrine of the POPULAR SOVEREIGNTY, constituting the fundamental basis of our free institutions, and that the intelligence and patriotism of our Citizens will always be preservative of a just and salutary Government. These are the principles to which THE WEEKLY PRESS has been committed, and to these it will adhere.
