CAMP AT SNICKERSVILLE, VA., Nov. 4, 1862. LETTER FROM CO. F, 133D PENNA. VOLS .-- ON THE MARCH-NOTINGS BY THE WAY.

Uorrespondence of The Alleghanian. "Circumstances alter cases;" so striking tents and packing knapsacks give promise of a new programme to us, and of something possibly of an interesting nature to make up a letter for the perusal of our friends at home. On Friday, 31st ultimo, at noon, we received orders to pack up and be ready to move in a quarter of an hour, to which mandate the boys responded with hearty cheers. In a few minutes, you could observe an unusual stir in the whole corps, and shortly after the expiration of the time allotted for packing up, regiment after regiment filed into the road, (the aggregate number of which I am not at hberty to state,) all heading Dixieward. Moving through Sharpsburg, and following the road to Frederick until we had crossed the Antietam bridge, we bore to the right, and pushed up the steep sides of South Mountain. On the top of the mountain was opened to our view the grandest and most romantic scenery that having their origin, apparently, under our dier's friend. What more need be said? very feet; steep declivities clothed with beautiful evergreens; with an occasional pillar of rocks, rearing its hoary head high in air-the whole forming a scene decidedly picturesque and grand. Getting over the mountain, we encamped for the night in a beautiful piece of woods thereunto adjacent-making a march of ent. about seven miles.

Next morning, reveille was beaten at 41 o'clock, and at 61 we commenced our march down Pleasant Valley-(not such a very pleasant valley to us, however.) Arrived at Harper's Ferry at about 12, on a pontoon bridge. Here we were tayored with the opportunity of witnessing the immense destruction of public property occasioned by Jackson's followers during their brief occupation of the place. We next crossed the Shenandoah river, and filed around the mountain into Loudon Valley, after proceeding four miles morning. In the meantime we were mus- | bonds. tered for pay--but the pay itself hasn't as yet made its appearance. This day's march was about fifteen miles.

Sunday morning, at 62 o'clock, we of Representatives in this State. moved up the valley, achieving a march of about eighteen miles by 5 P. M .-Since then we have remained pretty much dormant, doing a little picketing, however, now and then, by way of variety.

The village we are now encamped near -Spickersville-is situated in the mouth of Aldie's Gap, on the eastern slope of the Blue Ridge, and is about twenty-two miles from Harper's Ferry, thirteen from Leesburg, thirty from the Rappahannock, and thirty-five from Winchester. The valley has evidently been exempted from the blasting effects of war. It is highly productive, and its general appearance indicates thrift on the part of the population. At the present time, however, very few of the males are to be seen, and the females do not hesitate to avow their bitter hatred of the Union cause.

The boys stood the march remarkably well, being stimulated thereto by the booming of artillery in our front, occasioned by the Rebels attempting to occurace to secure this position, and ours were successful. Batteries were forthwith posted, and the Rebels forced back from the coveted gap in the mountain. O. K.

Although Camp Exchange promises prospective high old times in abundance, I am free to say that the last one of us would much rather be with our respective regiments.

There are eight of the Cambria Guards here—all captured by the Rebels at the battle of Gaines' Hill, before Richmond, June 27th. As follows: Corp. William H. Sechler, William W. Wagoner, John W. Moore, Richard R. Davis, Charles B. Litzinger, John M'Feely, George W. Brown and Thomas D. Litzinger. Some of the number have been sick, but all are now recovering.
