

Temperance.
ROSLAND, April 2, 1863.
[To The Alleghanian.]
A few weeks ago the writer spent a week in Ebensburg, in attendance upon the Court then in session. Although the criminal business was comparatively unimportant, yet there was something connected with it that should arrest the attention of every Christian and philanthropist throughout the land. I refer to this—that a majority of the cases disposed of grew directly or indirectly out of the sale and use of intoxicating liquors. This is true, I may add, of all criminal prosecutions in the Commonwealth. The question arises, Why is this permitted? Why is it that the happiness and future hopes of thousands may be blasted through this nefarious traffic? Why is it that men of the brightest minds and most towering intellect, whom nature hath qualified to be giants in the cause of a world's renovation, fall, Lucifer-like, before the demon Alcohol? Why is it that our jails, penitentiaries and almshouses are crowded with the unhappy victims of intemperance? Why is it that temperate and virtuous citizens are being burdened by taxation in order to support the victim of the rum-seller? Why is it that thousands annually in our own heaven-favored Commonwealth are going down to a drunkard's grave and a drunkard's hell?
It is not time that the Christian moralist and philanthropist would look at this evil as the magnitude of its proportions demands? A few years ago a strong effort was made against this monstrous evil, but temperance men seem to have relaxed their efforts, and rum is again obtaining the ascendancy. Whilst all true men are laboring to crush the unholy rebellion of the Southern States, we are allowing an insidious foe, more to be dreaded, if possible, than disunion, to fasten itself around our very vitals.—Awake, Christian! Awake, every lover of your race!—buckle on your armor, and go forth to meet this fell monster. In the strength of the God of might and right, lay the ax at the root of this I'pas tree of death. What if the law does legalize it? That does not make it morally right. Let us seek to amend our statutes on this subject. What if there be liquor leagues in existence to uphold this unholy business? Should this deter us from putting forth an effort to quell a great moral evil? The prince of darkness is in league with evil men everywhere, and yet the Christian is called to wage incessant warfare against his kingdom. Are there not organizations to uphold rebellion, and to extend aid and comfort to armed traitors? Loyal men seek to counteract the unholy influence of these organizations by the formation of Union Leagues, composed of men pledged to the support of the government. It is only by conflict that truth and right shall triumph. In union there is strength—let there be a combination of effort upon the part of temperance men, to stem the mighty torrent of intemperance that is sweeping so many immortal beings to destruction.
HOWARD.

THE PENNSYLVANIA CANAL.—The Pennsylvania Railroad Company intend letting the water into the Eastern division of the Pennsylvania Canal on the 1st of April, and the other Divisions on the 15th. This Division, which extends a distance of forty-six miles from Columbia, as far as Junction, where the Pennsylvania canal is connected with the canal on the north and west branches of the Susquehanna river, has been recently very extensively repaired. Many of the old locks have been removed, and others of a larger and more massive frame of workmanship substituted; and the locks have all been widened to admit of the passage of two boats, either in the same or opposite directions at one time. To accommodate the increased wants of the people trafficking on the upper and lower Juniata Divisions of the canal, the repairs have been very heavy. The entire bed of the canal has been rebuilt on the Upper Juniata, from Hollidaysburg down to Huntingdon, a distance of forty-four miles. Formerly the greatest tonnage that could be passed on this Division was about 140,000 tons; but the bed of the canal has been deepened to admit of the passage of boats drawing nearly six feet of water, and the substitution of new locks for the old worn out ones has been more extensively pursued than ever in the lower sections of the canal.
"Slavery is a divine institution," said George Francis Train, during his discussion with C. M. Clay, in New York. "So is hell!" shouted an old man in the audience, and the house came down with terrific demonstrations.

NOTICE.
Having associated with Hugh Jones in the Grocery business, I hereby give notice to the people having standing accounts with me, to come forward and settle the same. Feeling thankful to the citizens of Ebensburg and vicinity for their former patronage, I would respectfully solicit a continuance of the same, under the firm of Tudor and Jones.

A CARD.
WITNESS' BRIDGE,
Lancaster Tp. July 30, 1860.
Messrs. EVANS and WATSON: GENTLEMEN, The small size No. 1 Salamander safe which I purchased from your agents, Mr. Adam R.
Barr, in Lancaster, City, on July 20th, 1858, has been subjected to a very severe test, which it has stood in a most satisfactory manner. This safe, containing all my books together with valuable papers belonging to myself and some to my neighbors and friends, and representing a value of over Twenty-Thousand Dollars, ($20,000) was held on the 27th of July, 1860, and passed through the fiery ordeal unscathed. The safe was on the second floor and set on fire to the basement of the Mill, and was subjected for six hours to an intense heat among the rafters, which was greatly increased by the combustion of a large quantity of grain and paper taken out in a state of perfect preservation, the paper not even being discolored.
This fact was, however, to many bystanders a better recommendation of your safe than could be expressed in any other words from me.
Yours Respectfully,
SAMUEL KANCK,
No. 16 South Fourth st., Philadelphia.

Law of Newspapers.
1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary, are considered as wishing to continue their subscription.
2. If subscribers order the discontinuance of their Periodicals, the Publisher reserves the right to send them until all arrearages are paid.
3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to fill their periodicals from the offices to which they are directed, they are held responsible for all they have settled the bill and ordered their discontinuance.
4. If subscribers remove to other places without informing the publishers, and their papers are sent to the former direction, they are held responsible.
5. The Courts have decided, that printing and leaving their names on bills is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.
