Be Recently a number of rebel prisoners from Tennessee were sent to Fort Delaware via Philadelphia, on the steamboat Major Roybold. Before the boat started from the wharf, a Philadelphia copperhead scraped the acquaintance of a Major among the rebel party. The doughface was profuse in attention to him, and paid marked deference to the prisoner. He finally left him with warm professions of regard, and carnest protestations of willingness to do anything in his power to serve him. A feeling of disgust was evident in the face of the rebel, and this feeling found utterance in words when the Copperhead left the boat. To a gentleman with whom the prisoner had engaged in conversation a little while before, the latter used the strongest lauguage of contempt and disgust to the Copperhead. He called him a miserable sneaking traitor, who was sympathizing with the open enemies of the Government under the protection of which he was living, and to which he owed allegiance. He said that Southern men despised such contemptible recreants, and he expressed surprise that society in the North should tolerate such traitors, and that the Government should suffer them to go unpunished. Such sentiments from the lips of rebel soldiers, like the recent editorial in the Richmond Inquirer upon Northern Copperheads, should make the latter feel particularly mean.

In a small town on the Schuylkill river there is a church in which the singing "had run completely down."

It had been led tor many years by one of the deacons, whose voice and musical power had been gradually failing."

One evening the clergyman gave out the hymn, which was in metrical measure, rather harder than usual, and the deacon led off. Upon its conclusions the minister arose and said :"

"Brother B-will please repeat the hymn, as I cannot conscientiously pray after such singing!"

The deacon very composedly pitched it to another tune, with a manifest improvement upon the first effort, and the elergyman proceeded with his prayer .-Having finished, he took up a book to give the second hymn, when he was interrupted by the deacon gravely getting up and saving in a voice audible to the whole congregation:

prayer? It will be impossible for me to sing after such praying as that?"

Nor' Wester, the New York correspondent of the Boston Post, relates the following incident of one of the fortunate speculations of the day :

In the summer of 1861, a young man who happened to have $10,000 burning in his pocket, but whose fears conseled him to keep it out of the usual channels of trade, called on one of our heavy shipping merchants, who is also president of a city bank, and asked his advice as to how to use his money. The merchant suggested his investing in a purchase of tar, the article at that time selling at one dollar a barrel, with every prospect of soon being on the advance. The young man took the advice, bought ten thousand barrels of tar, and stored it away for a rise. After keeping it until last fall, he concluded to realize on his investment, and sold out at $40 per barrel, or forty times its original cost, receiving his original capital of $10,000, and the slight accumulation of $390,000 as the dividend

Green copperas dissolved in water will effectually concentrate and destroy the foulest smells, and if placed under a bed in hospitals and sick rooms will render the atmosphere free and pure. For butcher's stalls, fish markets, sinks, and wherever there are offensive, putrid gases, dissolved copperas sprinkled about will in a day or two purify the atmosphere, and an application once a week will keep it sweet and healthy.

"India, my boy," said an Irishman on his arrival at Calcutta, "has just the finest climate under the sun, but a lot of young fellows come out here, and they dhrink and they ate, and they ate and they dhrink, and they dies; and then they jist write home to their friends a pack of lies, and say it's the climate as has killed

Here is an interesting scrap from the prayer of a man who was in the habit of filling the breaks in his petitious with the syllable 'er :'

"O, Lord, we pray for our poor brother, Lord's side-er, and has one foot in the grave-er, and the other all but-er."

CARD.

WITMER'S BRIDGE, Lancaster Tp. July 30, 1860. MESSRS. EVANS AND WATSON: GENTLEMEN-The small size No. 1 Salamander safe which I purchased from your agent, Mr. Adam R. Barr, in Lancaster City, on July 20th, 1858, has been subjected to a very severe test, which it withstood in a most satisfactory manner. This Safe, containing all my books together with valuable papers belonging to myself and some to my neighbors and friends, and represeting a value of over Twenty Thousand Dollars, ($20,000) was in my Mill which was destroyed on the night of the 27th of July, 1860, and passed through the fiery ordeal unscathed. The Safe was on the second floor and fell to the basement of the Mill, and was subjected for six hours to an intense heat among the rui.is, which was greatly increased by the combustion of a large quantity of grain confined within the brick walls. After the fire the safe was opened and the books and papers taken out in a state of perfect preservation, the paper not even being discolored. This fact was, however, to many bystanders a better recommendation of your Safes than could be expressed in any other words from Yours Respectfully, SAMUEL RANCK.
