

ODDS & ENDS.

A Cheap Dinner.

A man went into Parker's Restaurant and called for dinner. He looked at the bill of fare, and was asked, "What will you have, sir?"

"Well I'll take a little of all you've got," was the reply. The waiter threw a glance at the fellow's stomach, and thought of the extent of his wallet, as he was going "through the bill of fare."

"What! tew what!—well what in time do you charge for what I've eat now?" asked the green customer.

"I'll bring your bill, sir, in a moment," said the waiter. The bill was presented—two dollars and sixty-two cents.

"Two dollars and sixty-two cents for a dinner! This is Gibbs' Hotel, isn't it?"

"No it is Parker's." "Yew don't say so! why I seed a kard in the railroad saying that yew could get a dinner at Gibbs' for ninnepence, and that's all the money I've got; so you'll have to take that for my dinner."

"Oh, that is more than we ask," said Parker as he approached his customer, "we only charge a fourpence for a dinner; and rather than lose your custom, you can take a bottle of wine for the other fourpence."

"I'll give you three cents for the wine," said Jonathan. "Done," said Parker.

Out came the ninnepence, and Parker gave back the three cents. "Now you'd orter throw in a cigar, arter I've bought a dinner and a bottle of wine of ye," said the greenhorn.

"Oh, yes, take two—only you will have to smoke in the street, as we don't allow smoking in the dining hall."

"Oh, sarin! I've got better manners than to smoke here while people are eating," said the fellow as he walked out—Boston Bee.

ONE GOOD TURN DESERVES ANOTHER.—Mr Pilkinson, a small farmer in Pennsylvania, was some time since drafted for the service of his country. The wife, though she possessed but a small stock of general information, is one of the best conjugal partners, and she was much troubled at the thought of parting with her husband. As she was engaged in scrubbing off her door-steps, a rough-looking man came up and thus addressed her:

"I hear ma'am that your husband has been drafted."

"Yes, sir, he was," answered Mrs. Pilkinson, "though, dear knows, there's few men that couldn't better be spared from their families."

"Well, ma'am I've come to offer myself as a substitute for him."

"A what?" asked Mrs. Pilkinson with some excitement. "I'm willing to take his place," said the stranger.

"You take the place of my husband, you wretch! I'll teach you to insult a distressed woman that way, you vagabond!" said she, as she discharged the dirty scoundrels in the face of the discomfited and astonished substitute who took to his heels just in time to escape having his head broken by the bucket.

In a town "way down East," there resides a certain M. D., who never had any desire to be disturbed, after he had yielded to the influences of the "drowsy god." One very cold night last winter, he was aroused from his peaceful slumbers by a loud knocking at his door. After some hesitation, he arose, went to the window, and yelled—

"Who's there?" "Friend," was the answer. "What do you want?" was the next inquiry.

"Want to stay here all night?" "Stay there, then, and be hanged!" was the benevolent reply.

A CARD.—WITMER'S BRIDGE, Lancaster Tp. July 30, 1860. MESSRS. EVANS AND WATSON: GENTLEMEN—The small size No. 1 Salamander safe which I purchased from your agent, Mr. Adam B. Barr, in Lancaster City, on July 20th, 1858, has been subjected to a very severe test, which it withstood in a most satisfactory manner. This safe, containing all my books together with valuable papers belonging to myself and some to my neighbors and friends, and representing a value of over Twenty Thousand Dollars, ($20,000) was in my Mill which was destroyed on the night of the 27th of July, 1860, and passed through the fiery ordeal unscathed. The safe was on the second floor and fell to the basement of the Mill, and was subjected for six hours to an intense heat among the ruins, which was greatly increased by the combustion of a large quantity of grain confined within the brick walls. After the fire the safe was opened and the books and papers taken out in a state of perfect preservation, the paper not even being discolored. This fact was, however, to many bystanders a better recommendation of your safes than could be expressed in any other words from me. Yours Respectfully, SAMUEL RANCK. [Sep 13]
