ELI SLIFER, Sec'y of the Commonwealth.

Tories---Federalists---Copperheads.

Scarcely a school boy can be found who does not understand something of the history of the tories of the American Revolution. They were a class of men who opposed the revolutionary war ;they had greater faith in aristocracy than they had in democracy ; their sympathies were with the English, with whom they took sides against their own Country after the commencement of the war, and all the way along up to the very moment it terminated they did everything they could against their own government and to favor its belligerent enemy. Benedict Arnold was a traitor and a tory. He turned his back upon his country when struggling against the despotism and oppression of Great Britain, and fought against his government and the brave patriots of his day. Those conversant with Revolutionary history will find that the heroes of the American Revolution were all agreed that a tory was worse than a Hessian-they were justly considered the meanest, most infamous foes with which our fathers had to contend,-and then and ever afterward were treated as such.

they rejoiced. When our armies in the war of 1812 triumphed, the federalists put on sackcloth ; when they met with disaster they sung te deums and thanked God. Just so now, a Federal victory sends the copperheads howling to their dens covered with tears ; a defeat brings thems out again to the light of day, hurrahing for Jeff. Davis and the rebellion, When Washington, under the laws of war, arrested the tories, as one man they all rose up and cursed him and the Continental Congress. When Madison for the same reasons made military arrests, the old federalism set up a howl against the alleged tyranny of Jim. Madison and the republicans. The same thing is seen now. The arrest of an atrocious traitor like Vallandigham is followed by a universal copperhead lament and vulgar abuse of the government.

The tories preferred a monarchy to Republic. They chose to live under King rather than a written constitution. The federalists speered at true democracy. preferring the aristocracy of the old World to the republicanism of the new. So now the copperheads love the slave despotism of Jeff. Davis better than the free institutions of our own Country.

The tories said the patriots of the revolution would fail in their attempts to establish free government ; the federalists declared that England would overwhelm us by her strong military power, both upon the sea and the land; and the copperheads, following in the footsteps of their infamous predecessors, as loudly declare this government can never subdue this rebellion.

These predictions of the tories and federalists failed and proved a "refuge of lies ;" so will the croakings of the copperheads. Our fathers fought their way to independence and gave us this glorious government ; their descendants in the war of 1812 brought the British king upon his knees, and compelled him to secure to us cur national rights; and so patriotic heroes of to-day will triumph over rebellit is morally certain that, through the influence of ruffianism, the Union vote was not fully out.

In Croyle township, a gentleman of our acquaintance-a Democrat-was assailed and brutally beaten by some Copperheads for daring to exercise his undoubted prerogative of voting for the Union candidates. This case will come up before our next Quarter Sessions for ventilation, so we forbear comment.

So much for "fraud" where we know all about the matter.

The 300,000 More.

In conformity with the President's cill or 300,000 volunteers, Governor Curtin has issued his proclamation, published lsewhere in these columns, calling upon the freemen of Penasylvania to cone forward and enroll themselves in their country's defence. However much ve may regret the crisis which makes this call necessary, we cannot as loyal men regret the call itself. One great cause why this war is not already closed, has been the want of a sufficiency of men. The proper, in fact only method by which to arrive at a speedy peace is to over whelm the enemy at all points, and this cannot be done without more men. Besides, if the war holds on beyond next Spring, the time of a great many of our three years men will expire, and it is none too early now to inaugurate measures to fill up the ranks as they shall become decimated by the three years limitation.

Another reason why we do not regret this call is this: The Copperhead journals throughout the State, when anathematizing the Conscription Law, were wont to say, Why not give us a chance to volunteer, instead of 'grafting us into the army, against our will and inclination, and often to the detriment of our business pursuits?" They are now afforded this much-coveted chance. They are allowed to volunteer. We shall see whether or not they will do
