

ODDS & ENDS.

A highly instructive as well as amusing incident took place in one of the business houses on one of the principal streets of Nashville last Saturday, while the colored regiment was marching along to the music of the national airs. Several gentlemen were looking on the parade, among them a wealthy planter of Alabama, who is a large slaveholder. One of the group stepped out of the door, looked for a few minutes, and indignantly turning on his heel, addressed himself to the grave Alabamian, to the following purport: "Well, I'll be d-d if that is not a burning disgrace which no decent white man can tolerate. Isn't that nigger regiment too great an insult?"

The Alabamian jumped to his feet, and replied, while his eyes flashed fire, "Sir, there is not a negro in that regiment who is not a better man than a rebel to this government, and for whom I have not a thousand times more respect than I have for a traitor to his country. I think that the best possible use the government can make of the negroes is to take them and make them fight against the rebels. No traitor is too good to be killed by a negro, no weapon too severe to use against the wretches who are endeavoring to overthrow the government. Now, sir, swallow that whether you like it or not."

The rebel darted off in utter amazement, without uttering a syllable of reply, leaving the sturdy Alabamian, who cherished the jewel of patriotism as something more precious than flocks of slaves, "alone in his glory."

Did I tell you ever, among the affecting little things one is always seeing in these stirring war times, how I saw on the Bull Run battle field, pretty, pure, delicate flowers growing out of emptied ammunition boxes, a rose thrusting up its graceful head through the head of a Union drum, which doubtless sounded its last charge (or retreat, as the case may have been) in that battle, and a cunning scarlet verbeena peeping out of a fragment of bursted shell in which strange cup it had been planted? Wasn't that peace growing out of war? Even so shall the graceful and beautiful ever grow out of the horrid and terrible things that transpire in this changing but ever advancing world. Nature covers even the battle grounds with verdure and bloom. Peace and plenty soon spring up in the track of devastating campaigns, and all things in nature and society shall work out the progress of mankind and harmony of God's great design.

A great earthquake has recently shaken the ocean-bedded foundations of Old England. Mr. Charles Dickens describes it as "a singular heaving motion, exactly as if some great beast had been crouching under the bed, and was shaking itself and trying to arise." It had an undulating motion from east to west. It is remarkable that an earthquake equally startling has of late shaken the foundations of America, and its motion is also exactly like that of a great beast trying to rise, but held down by some superior strength. But, unlike the English earthquake, ours had an original movement from south to north, now reversed, and passing away with a mumbering and subsiding noise towards the Gulf of Mexico.

A correspondent of a London paper writes: "I have just returned from Germany after a month's knocking about. I had glorious weather, and saw all the little kings at Frankfurt. There is a good anecdote of one of them. He wanted his army instructed in the use of the Armstrong gun, and got one, but was obliged to ask leave of the next king to have the target put up in his kingdom, his own not being big enough for the Armstrong range."

A manufacturer of thread having accidentally cut his nose, took one of his gummed spool labels to close the incision. On going home he wondered why every one laughed at him. He was enlightened by looking into his glass and discovering that his nose was "warranted three hundred and fifty yards long."

A lady who had boasted highly, at a dinner party, of the good manners of her little darling, thus addressed him: "Charley, my dear, won't you have some beans?" "No!" was the reply of the petulant cherub. "No what, Charley, my love?" "No beans!" answered the child.

Jones complained of a noxious smell about the post office, and asked Brown what it meant. "Dead letters!" suggested the latter.

Punch says that women resorted to tight lacing to prove to men how well they could bear squeezing.

A CARD.—WYMER'S BOOK MESSRS. EVANS AND WATSON'S Great small size No. 1 Salmagundi I purchased from your agent, Mr. A. Barker, in Lancaster City, on July 25th, has been subjected to a very serious which it withstood in a most unbecoming manner. This safe, containing all my together with valuable papers belonging myself and some to my neighbors, and representing a value of over Twenty Dollars, ($20,000) was in my possession, destroyed on the 27th of the month of July, 1860, and passed through the streets unsearched. The safe was in the basement and fell to the basement of a building subjected for six hours to an intense among the ruins, which was greatly aided by the combustion of a large quantity of confined within the brick walls. The fire the safe was opened and the papers taken out in a state of perfect preservation, the paper not even being scorched. This fact was, however, to many a better recommendation of your safe than could be expressed in any other manner. Yours respectfully, SAMUEL BELFORD.
