

ODDS & ENDS.

A GOOD STORY.—During Robert Heller's late brilliant engagement in Pittsburgh, the fame and excellence of his entertainments attracted all classes of people—the musical and refined, the millionaire and merchant prince, the mechanic and the artisan in fact every class of society found its representatives within the theatre each night of his performance.

One evening a genuine specimen of the genus veridant, with his girl on his arm, presented himself at the box office and demanded,

"What's the tax to the show?"

"Fifty cents," politely answered the ticket seller.

"Well, I guess I won't back out any how—here's your tin."

Receiving his tickets, greeny entered, dragging the young lady by the hand.—This peculiarity, and the oddity of their dress, soon made them the observed of all observers. Heller shortly after commenced his illusions, which were wondered at with eyes and mouth wide open by our rustic pair—he occasionally ejaculating in pretty loud tones, "Thunder," while she would exclaim, "Mercy, ain't it queer?"

Feat after feat was presented, and received with the plaudits of the audience, until the introduction of the "Aerial Bell," a glass bell suspended by a simple cord from the centre of the ceiling, and used in answering questions. After the usual performance with it, the question was asked:

"Is anybody in the house in love, who wishes to get married?"

"Yes."

"Please tell what part of the house they are in?"

The bell immediately designated our rustics, who sat looking at one another, as a pair of doves, apparently oblivious, in their own happiness, to all surroundings.

"Are they engaged?"

"No."

"Will they ever be?"

"Yes."

"When will it take place?"

"To night."

During these questions and answers, our rustic had been gradually opening himself out like a jack-knife, and now attained his full attitude; when pulling up his shirt collar, and stirring up his crop of flax colored hair, he exclaimed, breathless with joy and excitement:

"Say, say, you mister! just ax that thing if Nancy Jaue and me is to be spliced together, and if he says yes, I'll give you the best horse in Butler county, and call our first boy after you."

Shouts, yells and peals of laughter followed this announcement, and Nancy Jaue, suffused with blushes, pulled his coat tail, and begged him in her most entreating manner:

"Now, do, Ike, please sit down, won't you, now?"

Ike, however, too much elated with his success, and unmindful of all around, stretched his body as far as possible over the balustrade, and in a voice audible in every corner of the house, cried out:

"Dod rot it, mister, do jest get that thing to say yes, and dog my cats and buttons if I don't call all my babies, boys and girls, after you, and lick anybody that says grass to you, to boot."

You can readily imagine the entertainment was short that night, and when over, the happy couple were made still happier, as the minister made them one for life, in the presence of Robert Heller.

THE PRICE OF DRINKS.—An exchange, after announcing the increase in the price of drinks, says:—This will be sad news to tipplers and toppers, but "the rest of mankind" will rather rejoice at it. It will be a serious tax on the genteel drinker, who always calls for the best and never forgets to invite "his friends" who may be with or about him. The tippler, too, who must have his "nips" regularly, with or without the company of his friends, will find this the worst tax which he has yet been called upon to pay. And what will become of the toper—that wretched specimen of humanity who has passed from the class of tipplers into the low grade of a sot? The genteel drinker will have to make his visits less frequent, and he will have to be more exclusive in the selection of his friends. When he enters a bar room, he will not cast his eyes about to find all the familiar faces, but he will keep his eyes on the bar tender and give "spongers" the go-by. As to the tippler, he will have to do most of his drinking alone, and in taking his glass will fill it a "finger" or two higher than usual. Indeed, the poorer class of tipplers and toppers will have to quit the tavern altogether, and betake themselves to the bottle. They must have it—and in sufficient quantity, too—and if they cannot afford to get it at ten cents a guzzle, then they will patronize the wholesale dealer, and bring into vogue the old flask and jug. Then we may expect to see them not only with "bricks in their hats," but with flasks in their pockets.

A CARD.—
WTTMER'S BRIDGE.
Lancaster Tp. July 30, 1860.
MISSSES. EVANS AND WATSON: GENTLEMEN:
The small size No. 1 Salamander safe which I purchased from your agent, Mr. Adam B.
Bar, in Lancaster City, on July 20th, 1858,
has been subjected to a very severe test,
which it withstood in a most satisfactory manner. This safe, containing all my books together with valuable papers belonging to myself and some to my neighbors and friends, and representing a value of over Twenty Thousand Dollars, ($20,000) was in my mill which was destroyed on the night of the 27th of July, 1860, and passed through the fiery ordeal unscathed. The safe was on the second floor and fell to the basement of the mill, and was subjected for six hours to an intense heat, among the ruins, which was greatly increased by the combustion of a large quantity of grain confined within the brick walls. After the fire the safe was opened and the books and papers taken out in a state of perfect preservation, the paper not even being discolored.
This fact was, however, to many bystanders, a better recommendation of your safe than could be expressed in any other words.
Yours respectfully,
[Seal] SAMUEL RAY, JR.
