

ODDS & ENDS.

A Washington correspondent gives the following as Mr. Lincoln's last: "My opinion as to who will be the next President," said Mr. Lincoln not many days ago, "is very much like the opinion that Pat had about the handsome funeral. You see, Pat was standing opposite the State House in Springfield, with a short, black pipe in his mouth and his hands deeply buried in his empty breeches pockets."

"Pat, whose funeral is that passing?" inquired Old Jake Miller, who seemed impressed with the belief that an Irishman must know everything. "Plaze yer honor," replied Pat removing his pipe for a moment, "it isn't myself can say for sartin; but to the best of my belief, the funeral belongs to the gentleman or lady that's in the coffin."

"Now, it is very much the same," continued Mr. Lincoln, "about the next Presidency. I can't say for certain who will be the people's choice; but to the best of my belief it will be the successful candidate."

The question often recurs, "How shall we send letters to prisoners in the Confederacy so that they will reach their destination?" The following will answer the question: "Letters sent to prisoners and others within the rebel lines, must not exceed in length one page of a letter sheet, and must relate to merely personal and domestic matters. They must be sent, with five cents inclosed (in coin), if to go to Richmond, and ten cents (in coin) if they are to go beyond that point, enclosed to the Commanding General Department of Virginia, at Fortress Monroe. The letter for the prisoner must not be sealed. Persons having friends prisoners in the South should cut out and preserve this paragraph."

The Galena Democrat tells of a man who, in a buggy, was slowly passing a farm house, in the neighborhood of Warren, Ill., one of the cold days of the other week. The good woman of the house thinking that he must be very cold, called to him to come in and warm himself. He made no reply, but turning neither to the right or left, kept slowly by on his way. The lady fearing that the man would freeze—knowing that there was no house for five miles in the direction he was going—requested her husband to follow him and induce him to stop and warm himself. He did so, and on coming up found him frozen stiff, dead, with whip in one hand and lines in the other.

When any part of the body is frozen, it should be kept perfectly quiet till it is thawed out, which should be done as promptly as possible. As freezing takes place from the surface inwardly, so thawing should be the reverse order, from inside outwardly. The thawing out of a portion of flesh, without at the same time putting the blood from the heart into circulation through it, produces mortification; but by keeping the more external parts still congealed till the internal heat and the external blood gradually soften the more interior parts, and produce circulation of the blood as fast as thawing takes place, most of the dangers are obviated.

Army teamsters are proverbial for the scientific volubility with which they swear. A teamster, with the Cumberland Army, not long ago got stuck in the mud, and he let fly a stream of profane epithets that would have astonished "Our Army in Flanders" even. A Chaplain, passing at the time, was greatly shocked. "My friend," said he to the teamster, "do you know who died for sinners?" "D—n your conundrums. Don't you understand I am stuck in the mud?"

Perhaps every farmer is not aware that water for fattening swine is almost as essential as food. Some farmers feed swill liberally—frequently hot,—but never think of giving water. In the summer, though the food of pigs is milk, they will revel in a trough of cold water. A fattening hog, furnished with plenty of cold water, and salted liberally, will probably fatten upon 25 per cent less corn than one deprived of those two essential condiments of his dry food.

"What is the reason that men never kiss each other, while the ladies waste a world of kisses on feminine faces?" said the Captain to Gussie, the other day, up at Normal. Gussie cogitated a minute, and then answered, "Because, the men have something better to kiss, and the women haven't." The Captain "saw it" immediately.

A CARD.—
WITMER'S BRIDGE.
Lancaster Tp. July 30, 1860.
MESSRS. EVANS AND WATSON: GENTLEMEN—
The small size No. 1 Salamander sack which I purchased from your agent, Mr. Adam L.
Bar, in Lancaster City, on July 20th, 1858,
has been subjected to a very severe test,
which it withstood in a most satisfactory manner. This safe, containing all my books, together with valuable papers belonging to myself and some to my neighbors and friends,
and representing a value of over Twenty Thousand Dollars, ($20,000) was in my Mill which was destroyed on the night of the 27th of July, 1860, and passed through the fiery ordeal unscathed. The safe was on the second floor and fell to the basement or the Mill, and was subjected for six hours to an intense heat
among the ruins, which was greatly increased by the combustion of a large quantity of grain confined within the brick walls. After the fire the safe was opened and the books and papers taken out in a state of perfect preservation, the paper not even being discolored.
This fact was, however, to many bystanders
a better recommendation of your safe than could be expressed in any other words from
me. Yours Respectfully,
SAMUEL RANKIN.
