

The Alleghenian.

RIGHT OR WRONG. WHEN RIGHT, TO BE KEPT RIGHT, WHEN WRONG, TO BE PUT RIGHT.

EBENSBURG: THURSDAY MARCH 31.

FOR PRESIDENT: ABRAHAM LINCOLN, of Illinois.

The Verdict.

Elsewhere in to-day's paper we print a couple of criticisms concerning the verdict in the late Moore-Marbourg murder case...

We introduce the article from the Mercury, furthermore, to say that, in so far as it relates to Judge Taylor, it is bigoted, intolerant, false, and malicious.

THE MAN who opposes immediate emancipation, and who professes to favor gradual emancipation, we suppose, would oppose the immediate suppression of the rebellion...

We have no hesitancy in saying that Judge Taylor performed his whole duty, as he understood it. He may have been ultra in some of the positions assumed by him...

Mr. Robert L. Johnston, for the defence, conducted it with signal ability. He brought his vast abilities to his support in this case, conducted it manly, and openly; squarely and justly—the blame does not lay with him.

Such is, according to the census of 1860, the white population, so nearly as may be, of the entire area this day held by the rebels; and it does not exceed the population of the single State of New York.

matter to stand off at a safe distance and preach orthodox moderation and Christianity. Professions are cheap. It costs nothing to give advice, and to say what a man ought and ought not to do under such and such circumstances.

—We are no advocate of the idea that a man, generally speaking, is at liberty to "take the law into his own hands."

—We always thought the duties of a Judge was to hear the evidence, define it and the law. But it appears we were wrong. The jury are only such in name and law; not distinguishing the offence, they render such a verdict as the Court orders and commands.

Hoary-headed, lecherous villains like Marbourg, have full sway given their lustful propensities. Soldiers, in camp and hospital, may well tremble for the sanctity of their household. Glad and full permission is given by this verdict to the wealthy, lecherous-eyed nabob, like Marbourg, to ravish the wife and daughters of the absent soldier.

The Moore-Marbourg Murder Trial.

THE VERDICT AWAY FROM HOME.

[From the Phila. Sunday Mercury.]

By reference to our report of the Marbourg-Moore trial, it will be seen that the jury have returned their verdict—that of murder in the second degree. The verdict—a singular one—creates a deal of surprise.

—We are no advocate of the idea that a man, generally speaking, is at liberty to "take the law into his own hands."

—We always thought the duties of a Judge was to hear the evidence, define it and the law. But it appears we were wrong. The jury are only such in name and law; not distinguishing the offence, they render such a verdict as the Court orders and commands.

man of murder in the second degree. It was due to the majesty and force of the law. It was necessary to the safety of human life. All the faithless wives that ever lived, are not worth the hazard of a human soul; the risk of hell, in imbruing men's hands in the life of a fellow being.

The Campaign Before Us.

When our civil war commenced in earnest, the rebellion was in practical, substantial command of the resources of the slave States. Missouri had more men fighting for it than Alabama and Florida together; Kentucky covered her weakest frontier for hundreds of miles by her neutrality, and sent quite a number of regiments to the Secession armies before she gave one to those of the Union.

The Real and the Counterfeit.

[Communication.]

Obey God Rather than Man.

There is a real and a counterfeit view of affairs in the South, says the Pittsburg Commercial. The real is obtained from the private letters which, though not written for publication—and all the more reliable for that reason—nevertheless are an unreserved representation of the true state of the case.

Obey God Rather than Man.

[Communication.]

Obey God Rather than Man.

God has pronounced war against the law-makers, because they obey man rather than God. Adam's crime may appear small, but it was very great, because he broke God's command. God cursed the ground for his crime. God has pronounced murder and adultery to be alike, in that He has pronounced death as the penalty in both cases; and He has never modified the punishment of adultery, no more than He has modified that of murder.
