

ODDS & ENDS.

Artemas Ward, in a recent letter, thus gives his idea of re-organization: "I never attempted to re-organize my wife but once. I shall never attempt it again. I'd bin to a public dinner, and had allowed myself to be betrayed into drinkin' several people's health, and wishin' to make 'em as robus as possible, I continued drinkin' their healths until my own became affected. Consekens was, I presented myself at Betsy's bedside late at nite, with considerable licker concealed about my person. I had somehow got perseshun of a horsewhip on my way home, and rememberin' some cranky observanshuns of Mrs. Ward's in the mornin', I snapt the whip putty lively, and in a loud voice I said, "Betsy, you need re-organizin'! I have come to re-organize!" I dreamed that nite that somebody had laid a horsewhip over me sev'rl consecooktive times; and when I woke up I found she had. I hain't drank much of anything since; and if I ever have another re-organization job on hand, I shall let it out."

Warm weather and hot suns are now upon us, and we may expect more or less of coup de soleil, or sunstroke, to follow. A person whose uncovered head is exposed to the rays of a vertical sun is not unfrequently attacked with a sort of fit which sometimes bears a resemblance to apoplexy, but at other times is more an ordinary swoon. The proper remedy for an attack of this kind, during the primary fit, is to pour cold water over the head. This is the course pursued by the natives of India, who are particularly exposed to the affection in question. It is said that sunstroke may be avoided by wearing a handkerchief or cloth soaked in water in one's hat while exposed to the rays of the sun.

Spooner was arrested for drunkenness the other day, and waxed indignant thereat. Spooner is loyal. "Now I axes," says he, "if it's right to go and 'rest a man for supporting the gov'ment?—Every drop of licker I swallows is taxed—taxed to support the war. S'pose all us fel's was to stop drinkin'?—why, the war'd stop, and the gov'ment'd stop.—That's the very reason I drinks. I don't like prog; I mortally hates it. If I follored my own inclination, I'd rather drink buttermilk, or ginger pop, or soda water. But I lickers for the good of my country, and to set an example of loyalty and virtuous resignation to the rising generation."

The rebel papers declare that Lee is getting Grant where he wants him; that Grant is really retreating, and Lee pursuing. This reminds us of the facetious Iowa editor who got a whaling in his printing office, and described it next day—giving all the facts, but making himself the hero. The narrative ran thus: "There was a blow. Somebody fell. We got up. Turning upon our antagonist, we then succeeded in winding his arms around our waist, and by a quick manoeuvre threw him on top of us, bringing our back at the same time, in contact with the bed of the printing press. Then inserting our nose between his teeth and his hands in our hair, we had him."

Wheeling, Va., is one of the oddest of all places. An exchange from that city gives the following sketch, vouching for its accuracy: "We saw yesterday, going up toward the upper ferry, a team of four animals—a horse, a pony, a mule, and a bull. The horse had the heaves, the pony was blind, the mule was lame, and the bull had no provision for fly-time. In the wagon, which was an ordinary one, sat a white man, a crippled negro, and a tame skunk. The skunk was firmly bound with a wisp of straw. The white man held the lines, the team held its own, and the nigger held the skunk!"

An eminent doctor communicates the following simple but highly efficacious remedy for dysentery. We would advise our readers to give it a trial:

Receipt: In a tea-cup half full of vinegar, dissolve as much salt as it will take up, leaving a little excess of salt at the bottom of the cup. Pour boiling water upon the solution, till the cup is two-thirds or three-quarters full. A scum will rise to the surface, which must be removed, and the solution allowed to cool. Dose: Tablespoonful three times a day until relieved.
