

ODDS & ENDS.

If you would render your children helpless all their lives, never compel or permit them to help themselves. The loud tones in which some people appeal to reason simply proves that reason is a great distance from them. The door between us and heaven cannot be opened if that between us and our fellow men is shut. Always be as witty as you can with your parting bow—your last speech is the one remembered. Absence is to love what fasting is to the body; a little stimulates it, but a long absence is fatal. Superficial knowledge is like oil upon water; it shines deceitfully but can easily be skimmed off. The loveliest are to be seen by moonlight, when one sees half with the eye and half with the fancy. Ambition often puts men to do the meanest offices; as climbing is performed in the same posture as creeping. Not in unmanly characters does mildness charm, but in manly ones; as energy does not in unwomanly ones, but in the womanly. Whosoever would feel the tenderest participation of joy, let him not look at happy children, but at the father and mother who rejoice to see them happy. A shilling idly spent by a fool, may be picked up by wise men, who know better what to do with it; so it is not lost. Women are fond of deferring; men of going ahead. With the former we gain by exhibiting patience; with the latter, as with public functionaries, by impatience. Men of quick fancy more easily reconcile themselves to the loved one when she is absent than when she is present. Well mated lovers are like the two wings of a dove, bearing one heart between them and always moving harmoniously.

A late letter by B. F. Taylor to the Chicago Journal, closes with this beautiful thought: "Leaving the gate of the Capitol, tonight, I met an old man hastening to the Baltimore cars. He carried a sword tenderly upon his arm, as if it had been an infant. And yet he was no soldier, and the weapon was no new toy. He was a father, fresh from the June fields of the West. The scabbard was battered, and the hilt was stained. He had given a son to God and liberty, and was going home with the sword! "It was not the first time I had seen old swords borne northward by hands unused to wield them, but it was the first time its fall meaning had come to me. It was sadder than a dirge; it was grander than a psalm. 'Old man! I thought, 'it is worth the price you paid—the price he paid! And, as if he had shaped it out in words, I seemed to hear him say: 'Priceless! The sword-wielders perish, but the truth abideth forever!'"

A writer, who has traveled in Ireland, states that one day he saw a rough-looking customer in custody of a policeman, and followed by a large concourse of the canaille. I inquired of one of the crowd, a verdant looking son of Erin, what offense the culprit had been guilty of. I was answered: "Sure, an' he attempted to commit suicide, he did." "Suicide!" I cried in surprise. "By what means, pray?" "By batin' his poor old father over the head with a club till he lay for dead, the born devil," rejoined my informant. It was some minutes ere I ceased to contemplate the depravity of mankind in general, and suicides in particular.

Army pies are so terribly tough that the soldiers call them leather pies. A poor fellow of Grant's army, whose arm had just been amputated, was being carried past a stand the other day where an old woman was selling pies, when he raised himself in the ambulance and called out, "I say old lady, are those pies sewed or pegged?"

A CARD—
WITMER'S BRIDGE,
Lancaster Tp. July 30, 1860.
MESSRS. EVANS AND WATSON: GENTLEMEN—The small size No. 1 Salamander safe which I purchased from your agent, Mr. Adam R. Bar, in Lancaster City, on July 20th, 1858, has been subjected to a very severe test, which it withstood in a most satisfactory manner. This safe, containing all my books, together with valuable papers belonging to myself and some to my neighbors and friends and representing a value of over Twenty Thousand Dollars, ($20,000) was in my Mill which was destroyed on the night of the 27th of July, 1860, and passed through the fiery ordeal unscathed. The safe was on the second floor and fell to the basement of the Mill, and was subjected for six hours to an intense heat among the ruins, which was greatly increased by the combustion of a large quantity of grain confined within the brick walls. After the fire the safe was opened and the books and papers taken out in a state of perfect preservation, the paper not even being discolored. This fact was, however, to many bystanders a better recommendation of your safe than could be expressed in any other words from me. Yours respectfully,
SAMUEL RANCK.

A large assortment of the above quality of Fire and Thief Proof Safes always on hand and for sale at as low rates as any other firm, at
