

ODDS & ENDS.

Savannah, the chief seaport of Georgia, is the largest city in the State, and contained in 1860 about 16,000 inhabitants. It is situated on a high bluff, on the river bearing its name, sixteen miles from the ocean. It is tastefully laid out in squares, and contains many elegant public buildings. A splendid new custom house was erected in 1860, and a number of fine brick blocks. Three or four elegant public parks, skirted by China trees, add to its beauty. A line of steamships connected it with New York and Philadelphia, and with Charleston and St. John, Florida, while the cities of the interior are reached by lines of railway. The prominent merchants are men of Northern birth, but there are a large number of wealthy cotton brokers and Jews. Previous to the war, the volunteer military force of Savannah was one of the most perfectly disciplined in the South. Much of the military ability of the rebel army may be traced to that city. The approaches to Savannah from the sea, by the river, were obstructed by chains, bars and torpedoes, besides water batteries and masked batteries in profusion.

A Nashville correspondent of one of the Cincinnati papers relates the following good thing: During the skirmish in the little reconnaissance made by Gen. Steedman on our left, a couple of soldiers of the colored brigade came upon three rebels whose guns were unloaded, and demanded their surrender. One of the Johnnies indignantly refused to surrender to a "d-nigger." "Berry sorry, massa," said Sambo, bringing his piece to a "ready," "but we're in a great hurry, and hain't got no time to send for a white man." The ominous click that accompanied this remark brought the scion of chivalry to time, and he was brought in crying and swearing all the way that his father would kill him if he ever heard that he had surrendered to a nigger.

As a lady of great beauty was walking along a narrow lane, she perceived, just behind her, a hawk of earthenware driving an ass with two panniers laden with his stock in trade. To give the animal and his master room to pass, the lady suddenly stepped aside, which so frightened the donkey that he ran away, breaking by the operation a great part of the crockery. The lady, in turn, became alarmed, lest the man should load her with abuse, if not offer her positive insult; but he passed it all over with the gallant remark—"Never mind, madam; Balaam's ass was frightened by an angel!"

A man applied to Dr. Jackson, the celebrated chemist, with a box of specimens. "Can you tell me what this is, sir?" quoth the man. "Certainly I can, sir," answered the Dr.; "that is iron pyrites." "What, sir?" in a voice of thunder. "Iron pyrites." "Iron pyrites—and what's that?" "That's what it is," said the chemist, putting a lot on the shovel over the hot coals, where it disappeared—"dross." "And what are iron pyrites worth?" "Nothing." "Nothing!" And there's a woman in our town who owns a whole hill of that—and I've married her!"

To be a woman of fashion is one of the easiest things in the world. Buy everything you don't want, and pay for nothing you get; smile on all mankind but your husband; be happy everywhere but at home; neglect your children and nurse lapdogs; go to church every time you get a new dress—do this, and you will be a fashionable woman.

A. T. Stewart, the New York dry goods man, lately paid an income tax of $250,000 upon a net income of $5,000,000. He does a business of $30,000,000 a year, has $14,000,000 invested in real estate, and is one of the richest men in the world.

A young lady was heard to declare that she couldn't go to fight for her country, but she was willing to allow the young men to go, and she would die an old maid—which she thought was as great a sacrifice as anybody could be called upon to make.

An exceedingly modest young lady, desiring a leg of chicken at the table, said: "I'll take the part that ought to be dressed in drawers." A nice young gentleman who sat opposite her immediately retorted: "I'll take the part which ought to wear the bustle!"

A CARD.—WILSON'S BROTHERS, Lancaster Tp., July 30, 1860. MRS. EVANS AND WATSON: Gentlemen—The small size No. 1 Salamander sack which I purchased from you, and Mr. Adam B. Bar, in Lancaster City, on July 20th, 1858, has been subjected to a very severe test, which it withstood in a most satisfactory manner. This sack, containing all my tools together with various papers belonging to myself, and some to my neighbors and friends, and representing a value of over Twenty Thousand Dollars, ($20,000) was in my Mill which was destroyed on the night of the 27th of July, 1860, and passed through the fire unscathed. The sack was on the second floor and fell to the basement of the Mill, and was subjected for six hours to an intense heat among the ruins, which was greatly increased by the combination of a large quantity of gas confined within the brick walls. After the fire the sack was opened and the books and papers, taken out in a state of perfect preservation, the paper not even being discolored. This fact was, however, to many gentlemen a better recommendation of your sack than could be expressed in any other words from me. Yours Respectfully, SAMUEL BANCK. [Seal] A large assortment of the above quality of Pipe and Three-Prong Saws always on hand and for sale at as low prices as any other firm, at EVANS & WATSON'S, No. 16 South Fourth St., Philadelphia.

1865. TINWARE. 1865. SHEET-IRON WARE. J. & H. HERRINGTON
