

...sucker
...foolish young
...one of the Mississippi steam-
...I was on the boat, said Deacon ...little, and saw the whole affair. The ...Virginia was continually combing his ...hair, brushing his clothes, or dusting his
...boots—to all which movements the sucker
...took exception, as being what he termed ...“a little to darned nice by half.” He ...finally drew up his chair beside the Vir...ginian and began:
“What might you be from, stranger?” “I am from Virginia, sir,” answered the gent.
“From old Virginny, I s’pose,” says the sucker.
“Yes, sir, old Virginia,” was the reply.
“You are poety high up in the pictures thar, I suppose?”
“I don’t know what you mean by that remark, sir.”
“Oh, nothin’,” says the sucker, “but that you are deap’rate rich, and have been brought up right nice.” “If the information will gratify you in any way,” said the gent patronizingly, “I belong to one of the first families.” “Oh, in course,” answered the sucker.
“Well, stranger, bein’ as you belong to the fust, I’ll just give you two of the fattest shoats in all Illinois if you’ll only find me a feller that belongs to one of the second Virginny families.” “You want to quarrel with me, sir,” said the Virginian.
“No, stranger, not an atom,” answered the sucker, “but I never seed one of the second family, and I’d gin sumtin’ to git a sight at one of ‘em. I know you are one of the fust, cause you look just like John Randolph.”
This mollified the Virginian; the hint of a resemblance to the statesman was flattering to his feelings, and he accordingly acknowledged relationship to the orator.
“He, you know, descended from the Inginal, Pocahontas.” “You are right, sir,” answered the other.
“Well, stranger,” said the sucker, “do you know thar is another queer thing allus puzzles me, and it’s this: I never seed a Virginian that didn’t claim to be either descended from an Inginal, John Randolph, or a nigger.”
We need not add that the sucker rolled off his chair—suddenly! They were separated until the sucker got off at a landing near his home. As he stepped ashore, he caught sight of the Virginian on the upper-deck, and hailed him at once with—“I say, old Virginny, remember two fat shoats for the fust feller you find belonging to the second Virginny family!”

“To-morrow.”—On the Little Miami Railroad is a station called Morrow. A new brakeman on the road, who did not know the names of the stations, was approached by a stranger the other day, while standing by his train at the depot, who inquired—
“Does this train go to Morrow to-day?” “No,” said the brakeman, who thought the stranger was making game of him, “it goes to-day, yesterday, week after next.”
“You don’t understand me,” persisted the stranger, “I want to go to Morrow.” “Well, why in thunder don’t you wait until to-morrow, then, and not come bothering around to-day. You can go to-morrow or any other day you please.” “Won’t you answer a civil question civilly? Will this train go to-day to Morrow?” “Not exactly. It will go to-day and come back to-morrow.”
As the stranger who wanted to go to Morrow was about to leave in disgust, another employee who knew the station alluded to came along and gave him the required information.
