

Signs of Cold Weather.—Punch notices the following signs of a cold snap: It is probably sharp winter weather—When you think that you don't know whether the first bell has been rung or not.

When it strikes, you think that your watch is at least ten minutes fast; and so if you get up when the minute hand is at "a quarter to" you'll be in capital time. That if you could only be taken out of bed to be washed and dressed in a second by machinery, you wouldn't mind getting up.

That another five minutes' sleep would make you feel all right for the day. That it's three minutes to the half hour, and you'll get up exactly at the half-hour. That it's just one minute past the half hour, so you'll get up exactly at the thirty-five minutes.

That as five minutes won't make much difference, say, get up exactly at the quarter punctually. The following considerations will also lead you to the conclusion that winter has come at last: That you can't get up without hot water.

That you don't think the water is quite hot. That he had better bring a little more water, please; and take care it's quite hot. That you can't get up till your clothes are all ready for you.

That a little snooze while James is bringing the clothes, (and while he fetches some more hot water,) will do you all the good in the world. That when you get up you won't be a second dressing. That you'll get up in exactly two minutes from now.

That (the two minutes having passed,) you'll just settle what you're going to do to-day, and then get up. That, if that's the first bell, you've plenty of time; and if it's the second, it's no good hurrying up now, as you're late anyhow.

The consideration that is generally required before making a move out of bed, is in itself a pretty sure sign of the presence of winter.

A STRANGE LORD.—In 1774 Burke's Peerage, or its predecessor, it was not extant at that time, as better understood in the English Parliament than the Bible. In that year Dr. Webster was a popular preacher of the kirk of Scotland, in Edinburgh. Business brought him to London, and one day when passing the House of Lords, his curiosity induced him to make an effort to see them. None were admitted without an order, except noblemen's servants. Webster being ignorant of the rule, requested admittance.

"What Lord do you belong to?" asked the doorkeeper. "To the Lord Jehovah," replied Webster. "To the Lord Jehovah?" queried the doorkeeper; "I have kept here seven years but have not heard of such a Lord. Jack," said he to his fellow-keeper on the front steps, "here is a chap who says he belongs to the Lord Jehovah! Do you know such a Lord?"

"Never heard of him," said Jack. "But," said the Doctor, "there is such a Lord." "Pass 'im in," said Jack; "I suppose it's some poor Scotch Lord." This occurred at a period when there was not one in twenty of all the manufacturing and rural districts in England who could read the Bible or write his own name. Sabbath schools were introduced in 1773.

DIDN'T WANT TO BE EXPOSED.—A highwayman undertook to rob Mr. Jones. He met Jones in a woods. He asked Jones for his pocket book. Jones refused to yield. Highwayman took Jones by the neck and undertook to choke him. Jones made fight and kept it up for half an hour. At the expiration of that time Jones caved in, and the highwayman commenced rifling his pockets. The contents amounted to eighteen cents.

"Is that all you've got?" "Every cent." "What made you fight so long?" "Didn't want to be exposed. Bad enough to have only eighteen cents—a great deal worse to have anybody know it."

A BALLAD.—A frequent excuse put forth by persons asked to sing, is the declaration that "they would be delighted, if they could only remember the words." As words, in the present style of singing, really matter very little, we subjoin the following verses as a sample of the kind of thing that may be sung by people of short memories:

"Oh, if I had lumpy tum lumpy tum too, In the land of the olive and fig, I would sing of the lumpy tum lumpy to you, And play on the thimbley jig. And if in the lumpy tum battle I fall, A lumpy tum's all that I crave: Oh, bury me deep in the what-you-may-call, And plant thimblebobs over my grave."

Law of Newspapers.
1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary, are considered as wishing to continue their subscription.
2. If subscribers order the discontinuance of their Periodicals, the Publisher may continue to send them until all arrearages are paid.
3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their periodicals from the offices to which they are directed, they are held responsible till they have settled the bill and ordered them
discontinued.
4. If subscribers remove to other places without informing the publishers, and the papers are sent to the former direction, they are held responsible.
5. The Courts have decided, that refusing to take periodicals from the office or removing and leaving them uncalled for, is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.
