

WHY WE SHOULD WEAR BEARDS.—There are more solid inducements for wearing the beard than the mere improvement of a man's personal appearance and the cultivation of such an aid to the every-day diplomacy of life. Nature combining, as she never fails to do, the useful with the ornamental, provides us with a far better respirator than science could make, and one that is never so hideous to wear as that black seal upon the face that looks like a passport to the realms of suffering and death. The hair of the moustache not only absorbs the moisture and miasma of the fogs, but it strains the air from the dust of our great smoky cities. It acts also in the most scientific manner, by taking heat from the warm breath as it leaves the chest, and supplying it to the cold air taken in. It is not only a respirator, but with the beard entire, we are provided with a comforter as well; and these are never left at home, like the umbrellas and all such appliances whenever they are wanted. Moffat and Livingston, the African explorers, and many other travelers, say that in the night no wrapper can equal the beard. The remarkable thing is, too, that the beard, like the hair of the head, protects against the heat of the sun; it acts as a thatch does to an ice house; but more than this, it becomes moist with the perspiration, and then, by evaporation, cools the skin. A man who accepts this protection of nature's, may face the rudest storm and the hardest winters. He may go from the hottest room into the coldest air without any dread; and we verily believe he might sleep in a morass with impunity—at least his chance of escaping the terrible fever would be better than his beardless companions.

ROMANCE IN A SENATOR'S LIFE.—Frazier's Magazine tells the following story, but does not mention the name of its hero, who is Senator Lane, of Kansas: "A distinguished politician of Indiana, becoming interested in the movement for making Kansas a free State, left his wife and repaired to that territory, intending to return soon. Becoming, however, identified with the struggles of Kansas, the Senator stayed away very long. His wife waited a little, and then wrote, declaring that unless he returned by a stated time, she would sue for a divorce. The Senator made no reply, but gave a glowing account of the patriotic movement in which he bore an important part.

"The next letter he received was from the clerk of a court in Indiana, informing him that his wife had filed a bill, with another from a lawyer offering to defend him. The Senator wrote back to the lawyer as follows: "Dear Sir—Yours to hand. My wife says she will not stand my long absence. If I were she, I would not stand it either. I shall offer no opposition to her suit. Yours, &c." Two years later, when the divorce had long been granted, the Senator returned to Washington as Senator of the free State of Kansas, visited his old home in Indiana, and found his wife still blooming and handsome, and surrounded by admirers. With the rest he visited her from time to time, became presently the accepted lover, and was re-married to her."

A HERO FOR THE TIMES.—The last financial operation on the street has just transpired. A dilapidated specimen of humanity, clad in garments of the composite order, was hobbling along with the aid of a cane, soliciting contributions on account of having been in the war. He had witnessed and taken part in the principal battles—Seven Oaks, Gettysburg, Chancellorsville, Shiloh, Chattanooga—and, as he rehearsed his thrilling story, the tear of sympathy rolled down many a cheek, and the dollars flowed in on him freely. The returned soldier was reaping a rich harvest. All at once, it occurred to one of the bystanders to ask—"Were you in Richmond when the city was captured?"

"Yes," returned the dis-banded hero, leisurely turning his quid in his mouth, "I was there through the whole of it." "In what corps?" continued the investigator. "In Ewell's corps!" exclaimed the horrified questioner, who had just given the fellow a dollar. "Yes—I ran away at the same time that Jeff did. And, stranger, if you'd like to know what tall traveling means, you ought to have been there!" A dozen canes were raised on the instant, and the signs of a rush were unmistakable, but the great dis-banded was equal to the emergency, for throwing down his cane, he took to his heels, and was speedily lost sight of around the corner.
