

POLITENESS.—A correspondent says: In a district in the far West we had a gentleman teacher who thought it advisable to give some lessons in politeness. Among other things, he told the boys in addressing a gentleman they should always say Sir, and gave them examples and made quite a lesson of it. One boy was particularly delighted, and took occasion to speak to his teacher often, to show he profited by his teachings. When he came home to his dinner, his father said: "Tom, have some meat?" "Yes, sir, thank you."

The next thing the child knew, his father's hand came whack on his ear, and his father's voice thundered out: "I'll teach you to sass your dad!" Tom gave up being polite.

IMPORTANCE OF PUNCTUATION.—A school committee man writes: "We have a school-house large enough to accommodate four hundred pupils four stories high."

A newspaper says: "A child was run over by a wagon three years old and crossed-eyed with pantalots that never spoke afterward."

A description of a celebration goes on to say: "The procession was very fine and nearly two miles in length, as was also the prayer of the chaplain."

At a banquet, this toast was given: "Woman—without her man is a brute." But the reporter printed it—"Woman without her man, is a brute."

A GENERAL HINT.—At a concert which took place lately, a gentleman in the audience rose up just as the third piece in the programme had been performed, and said: "Mr. Conductor, will you oblige me, sir, by requesting your vocalists to sing louder, or to sing in a whisper, as there is a conversation going on close by where I sit, that is conducted in such a loud tone as to hinder my enjoyment of the music; but if I cannot be so privileged, I desire to hear the concert." There was an extremely quiet and attentive audience during the rest of the evening.

THE DULL SEASON.—"No visible means of support" makes a man a vagabond in the eye of the law, but there will be no more vagabonds if they all adopt the calling of the Frenchman who was arraigned in Court for vagrancy. "You are a loafer," said the Judge—"a man without a calling."

"I beg your pardon, your honor, but I have a vocation."

"What is it?"

"I smoke glasses for eclipses, but just now it is our dull season!"

A MODEL VERDICT.—A Coroner's jury in West Amesbury, Mass., a few days ago, gave the following verdict on the case of a man who was killed by falling down stairs: "That the said Stephen Hoyatt came to his death, probably, by reason of a fall (breaking his collar-bone and bringing on concussion of the brain) down the stairs leading from the bar-room into the second story of the barn, to the first story of the same, belonging to Ezra P. Downing, of Amesbury."

PERHAPS.—Punch illustrates "unbecoming levity," by presenting a wood cut of the scene in a church wherein a crowd of spectators are awaiting the arrival of a wedding party. To the scene is appended this dialogue, by way of glossary: Fair Young Lady—"I see somebody in the crowd outside waving a handkerchief. I suppose the bride is approaching."

Light Young Man—"Handkerchief? White one? By Jove, perhaps it's a reprieve!"

PULL.—When Fitz John Porter was at Yorktown, in command of the troops at that point, he went up in a balloon to take an observation. The balloon began to move off toward the enemy. Frightened almost to death, he exclaimed—"What shall I do! oh, what shall I do!" "Pull the valve rope, you d—d fool!" was shouted from below. The advice so respectfully given was promptly taken by the scared general, and he was saved.

EPITAPH.—"The following is the conclusion of an epitaph on a tombstone in East Tennessee: "She lived a life of virtue and died of the cholera morbus, caused by eating green fruit, in the full hope of a blessed immortality, at the early age of 21 years, 7 months, and 16 days. Reader, go thou and do likewise."
