REPUBLICAN UNION TICKET. With malice toward none, with charity for all, with firmness in the right, as God gives us to see the right, let us strive on to finish the work we are in; to bind up the nation's wounds; to care for him who shall have borne the battle, and for his widow and his orphan; to do all which may achieve and cherish a just and a lasting peace among ourselves and all nations .- Abraham Lincoln's Second Inaugural Address.

ELLIS, of Johnstown. REGISTER AND RECOPDER : WILLIAM A M'DERMITT, of Clearfield tp COMMISSIONER: HENRY FOSTER, of White township. AUDITOR : JAMES M. COOPER, of Taylor township. Peace in Europe.

War has once more made way for peace. A treaty of peace was to be signed on the 22d inst., between Austria and Prussia, and Bavaria and Prussia. The Prussian government, in consequence of their hostile attitude towards Prussia during the war, has annexed Hanover, Electoral Hesse, Nassau, and the hitherto free city of Frankfort to the Prussian Kingdom, and directed the King of Hanover to abdicate his throne. 'The Prussian armies are to evacuate Bohemia without delay. France recedes from her demand for the extension of her territory to the Rhine. Italy gets Venetia. All that Prussia and Italy gain is virtually lost to Austria. In Venetia she loses part of her empire, and in Hanover, Hesse, Nassau and Frankfort, her old confederates; and for rallying round her in opposition to Prussia, they now forfeit their independence. To Prussia belongs all the glory of the war. and all the results for which she at any time expressed a desire. Austria loses her place, as head of Germany and over two millions of population from her dominion. Prussia gains to her empire the Duchy of Schleswig, the Duchy of Holstein, and that of Lauenberg, containing in all 1,000,000 of people and 7,227 square miles of territory, the kingdom of Hanover containing 1,888,070 people and 15.000 square miles of territory, the Electoral of Hesse with 738,454 inhabitants and 4,450 square miles of territory, the Duchy of Nassau with 456,567 inhabitants and 1,710 square miles of terri tory, and the free city of Frankfort with 83,000 inhabitants and 43 square miles of territory, aggregating four millions one hundred and sixty-six thousand and ninety-one people, and twenty-six thousand and forty-three square miles of territory. In other words, Prussia gains a population about equal to that of the State of New York and territory nearly equal in extent to two thirds of Pennsylvania. Her kingdom, heretofore divided into two parts, is now united. Hitherto without a sea-port on the North Sea, she now has Hamburg, perhaps the chief of the commercial cities of Germany, as also Bremen upon the same sea, and Kiel on the Baltic. Her influence among the German States soon to be confederated will be in the future what the influence of Austria has been in the past-supreme. All that is gained to Prussia is the result of four or five weeks of decision, activity, and cou-

If we mistake not, the French troops are to be withdrawn from Rome during the coming month of September. After their withdrawal by France, Austria will be the only sovereignty on earth upon whom the Pope can implicitly rely for the defence of his temporal authority .-But the power of Austria is broken by that of protestant Prussia. Italy, since her independence in 1859, has sought the acquisition of Venetia and the overthrow of the temporal rule of the Pope. She has gained the first object and smoothed the way for gaining the second.

"Theu madest him (man) a little noble name and blood or he would not lower than the angels."-Hebrews 2:7 .- thus show himself the friend of poor The question is, whether the angels have come down a peg or the President gene up one.

"Christ is not God, but the chief and best of all men, and hence God's well beloved son." So hold the Unitarians. And as a consequence of their teaching and "Andy's" opinion of himself, Andy has risen to be the equal of the "chief and best of all men." Hard on the Unitarians!

Cockalorum Lamostok.

Peculiarities belong to great men .-

Lord Byron had many of them, among which was an antipathy to seeing a woman

eat, a fondness for having Noel prefixed to his name, because his initials thereby became N. B. and, as he said, they were the initials of only two men in all the world, himself and Napoleon Bonaparte. Had Byron and Napoleon continued in existence to our day, they would both have cast aside N. B., as standing for Nota Bena, Take Notice, and assumed those of C. L. C-o-c-k-a-l-o-r-u-m L-a-f-f-i-n-s-t-o k. Johnson, the giant of literature, had also singular peculiarities. He it was, if we mistake not, who could not abide a cat Another celebrity would never go into a room or a house without putting his right foot foremost. Another noted character was accustomed to imagine himself followed by a blue dog, and another that he was made of glass, and if touched would fall to pieces. We had once among our acquaintances a man who would never leave his home for his place of business on Monday mornings until the clock had struck nine, for fear he would meet a red-headed woman. He ascribed as a reason for his idiosyncrasy that to meet a red-headed woman before nine cn a Monday morning was a sure precursor of bad luck throughout the week. Another peculiarity of Byron was that of expressing himself very freely in regard to others .-This last peculiarity (singular coincidence !) seems to have been even less engrafted upon Byren than upon Cockalorum .-These introductory remarks made, we will now proceed to give the "Beauties of Ceekalorum" somewhat after the manner of the "Beauties of Sterne." We might also state that very emineat authorities have stubbornly held that in the same ratio in which any people advanced in civilization and refinement, they also sought to soften, improve, and purify their language. Hence the character of a people or of individuals may be judged by their language. So judge of Cockalorum, and answer to yourself whether or not he is worthy to be descended from distinguished ancestors and to have in his veins the pure Laffinstok blood. We think he is.

COCKALOBUM'S CANDOR.

"The Alleghanian office is trump this week. Next week we shall euchre them. So says Laffinstok in his last week's issue. If any of our readers should not comprehend the full meaning of the terms we have italieised, they must consider that they have not moved in the same circle as our distinguished friend and fellow-citizen Cockalorum Laffinstok. We are under a vague impression, however, that any high bred gentleman, especially of Laffinstok lineage, who has spent his leisure hours in what plain, unsophisticated people call gambling, can tell them. Any very anxious person might call on Cockalorum.

A CHOICE EXTRACT.

Says this scion of the Laffinstoks: "Agents wanted to canvass for the life and public services of Hon. A. A. Barker, member of Congress from the 17th Congressional District, Proprietor of the Alleghanian office, owner of shook shops and White Slaves, Agent for the sale of Seller's Worm Vermifuge, Comptroller of Muse Teams, and Boss of Mutes. Written by Jaytod, High Priest and Business Manager of a blue-bellied Yankee from the State of Maine. This is a desirable publication, and should be in every family. His speeches are noted for streams of eloqueace; while his public services are rendered impresive by Jaytod in such a beautiful manner that the most illiterate person can appreciate them. Agents are now making from ten to twenty cents per day, canvassing for the sale of this valuable work. Send for a circular, or remit five cents to Jaytod and receive a copy of the work. All orders must be accompanied by the cash."

You see, reader, that extraordinary origin does not prevent one like Laffinstok from having the fullest sympathy with those whose origin is humble and whose lot compels them to daily toil. If, perchance, you are a working man, we bid you appreciate the sympathy that denominates you a "white slave." Feel no anger in your heart because of your new name. Remember that Cockalorum pities you because of your condition. It is through sympathy for you, no doubt, that he calls you "mules," for the Laffinstoks are men of unbounded bearts. This high man who has come among us intimating something about "color" in his blood, is a man of close discrimination, and gives "mule teams" a "controller," and "mules" a "boss"-a word used carelessly, by plain people of the United States."-President | people, to designate the foreman among workmen, or, as Luffinstok calls them, to the Philadelphia Convention delega- "mules." Laffinstok is not proud of his mules. Laffinstok is a Democrat. Are

MORE POETRY.

The following is from Laffinstok's own pen. It ought to be appreciated. Being written by himself, it ought to be authentic. It appears in last week's Dem. &

'Many a bright eved damsel would have gladly been my cook, Many a true and loving heart was by my beauty shook,

They couldn't eatch a rhinoceros by grabbing at the tail." We could give many other refined extracts from the pen of Laffinstok, but we will only quote the pith of one, which is that we gave our readers "two whole columns of nonsense" in last week's issue .-In this declaration of Laffinstok is to be seen a peculiarity of his greatness, for as we remarked at the start, peculiarities are peculiar to great men. This last declaration of Laffinstok is at least half true, for one of the two columns was quotations from the pen of Laffinstok, and he ought to be a good judge of his own writings .-No previous great man had this peculiarity of calling his own efforts nonsense .-Our readers being plain people, addicted to the notions of plain people, we will not lay before them certain very beautiful passages from this wonderful prodigy's pen lest they might foolishly take offence at us and tell us we published a paper unfit for plain people to read.

SOTTO VOCE.

Cockalorum, you have given us your best wishes until a time soon, alas! to expire. Cockalorum, we are obliged .-You have our best regards as long as they are of any use to you. Cockalorum, we wish to speak solemnly just now. Cockalorum, do you understand? We do not, Cockalorum, presume to advise, for we never offer advice until it is asked for, and even then prefer a fee before giving it .-Cockalorum, do you understand? At the present time, we desire only publicly to state "our way," which is: When a stranger comes among us to wish him well .-We wished you well, Cockalorum. We wish you well now, Cockalorum, for you may make a very decent sort of fellow, Cockalorum, but have just begun to edit a newspaper, and start with "considerable vim, raciness and original wit." We do not believe in personalities, Cockalorum, unless by way of self defence. For instance, Cockalorum, if you wished us well, we would not in reply allude to your color, though white as a Caucasian's or black as an African's. We would not refer to our neighbor thoughtless, or else criminal, actions done by others toward ourself.

We would be careful, Cockalorum, of our words in regard to returned soldiers and worthy citizens, be the political creed of either whatever it might be. We would not, Cockalorum, insult the almost defenceless. Neither would your Democratic friends in this neighborhood. Now, Cockalorum, pursue your way. You are a "big injun."

The Declaration Amended.

The following is part of our Declaration of Independence so amended as to suit those who wish to have no government in our country but a "White man's government:" "We hold these truths to be self evident : that all white men are created equal; that all white men are endowed, by their Creator, with certain unalienable rights; that among these, are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among white men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the white men governed; that, whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the white people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute a new government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect the safety and happiness of white men." We are not afraid of this ery against an impartial suffrage basis. That once much feared word by some, "Abolitionist," was cried until it made abolitionists out of nearly an evidence of the utter desperation to the whole North and effected abolition through the entire South. A like result will follow an equally vigorous and long continued cry against impartial suffrage.

WHILE Democratic presses are unjustly charging the Republican Union party of Pennsylvania with having adopted as part of its teachings the equal right of all men to the ballot, it is well not to forget that the Democratic party (if such a party now exists) bitterly denounces any restriction of that right in regard to the rebels. The Democratic party avows greater sympathy for the men that massacred our soldiers at Fort Pillow, than for such Union colored soldiers as have survived that masished that we have "discovered" one act of all possible preparation to accommodate Address JOHNSTOWN MFG. CO. the Almighty that (in itself) signifies nothing. A second such act of the Almighty is that three years since He caused the Democratic party to nominate Hon. Geo. W. Woodward for Governor of Pennsylvania with hopes of electing him.

THE Johnstown Democrat has discovered that at the creation, the Deity made men and made them of different colors .-The Democrat has some wonderful knowledge. It appears to know what Moses has been abolished. never thought of.

The President's Tour.

It has already been given out that the President, accompanied by his Cabinet, would leave Washington on the 28th inst, for Chicago, in order to participate in the laying of the corner stone of Douglas' monument. It is stated by a Washington paper that this visit is really intended to be a sort of triumphal march, a Presidential campaign tour, which is to extend rom the East to the West, during which my policy" is to be presented to the people by its distinguished author, assisted by his constitutional advisers. It is the intention of the campaigners to stop a day at each of the principal cities and towns on the route, beginning with Philadelphia. In going to Chicago, it is proposed to strike the principal cities in the States of New York, Northern Ohio, and Indiana, returning by way of St. Louis, Cincinnati, and Pittsburg. Arrangements have already been made with prominent Johnson men, at the different places, for serenades and other demonstrations, which will allow the President and several members of the Cabinet an opportunity to make speeches. The object is, of course, to influence the fall elections, and the whole matter may justly be regarded as which the President's friends are reduced. Several reporters, including a representative of the Associated Press, will accompany the party, and herald their exploits te the country.

PENNSYLVANIA STATE FAIR .- The State Agricultural Fair, which will commence at Easton on the 25th of September, promises to be one of the very best exhibitions ever held. Nearly every county in the State will be represented in way of contributions of mechanical skill, stock and farm products. The exhibition will open on the 25th of September next, and continue four days. A. K. M'Clure, Esq., of Franklin county, will deliver the annual address, and arrangements are making for other addresses on agricultural subjects. General A. L. Russell, Adjutant General, will perform the duty of chief marshal, and the officers of the a superior article of those who may visit the industrious and aug16:3m] remantic portion of the State where it is proposed to hold the exhibition.
