

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION!—The "Republican State Convention" will meet at the "Herdic House," in Williamsport, on Wednesday, 26th of June next, at 10 o'clock, a. m., to nominate a candidate for Judge of the Supreme Court, and to initiate proper measures for the ensuing State canvass.

A Little Previous.

Our neighbor, the Freeman, a week or so since gave vent to its repressed feelings in a eulogistic article upon the conduct of the Southern people. Forgetting for the occasion the wholesome restraint of the Military Reconstruction Act, it saw only the effects of it, which were duly ascribed to the magnanimity of the chivalrous ex-rebels.

"To say that this act strikes ten sovereign States from the 'Flag of the Union,' obliterates ten stars from our 'Starry Banner,' and practically dissolves the Union as much as a successful rebellion would have done, does not sufficiently stigmatize the act in question.

But full of anxiety, the other week, to testify in behalf of its ex-rebel friends, the Freeman spoke thus:

"But these changes (accounts of riots, &c.) have vanished from the radical papers, and you hear nothing of the kind from that quarter.

Indeed, radicalism itself has furnished the best contradiction to this assertion—Henry Wilson, the Senator from Massachusetts—one of the most violent and vindictive radicals in the Senate—is even now making a political tour through the South, delivering radical speeches at every town to mixed assemblages of white and black auditors.

He preaches radical doctrines from every stump as freely and as fiercely as he did in the Senate. And yet he is never molested—he passes along with the same impunity as he would in his own State, makes his speeches, and transmits their substance to his friends in the North. Judge Kelley, of Philadelphia, and other radicals are to follow him. These men are not the least afraid to go down among the 'red handed rebels' of the South when a political purpose is to be gained by it."

If, now, in answer to this bright fancy, we simply say "Mobile!" we doubt not the Freeman will perceive its relevancy. Neighbor, the legs of the lame can't be equal.

A Stirring Appeal.

The National Committee of the Republican party have issued an appeal to the Republican voters of the Northern States that ought, as it undoubtedly will, receive a general and magnanimous response.—Since the day of its first formation, that party has most unjustly labored under the charge of being a purely sectional party, and to this charge plausibility was given from the fact that its advocates were not allowed in fifteen States of the Union to proclaim its principles, save at the risk of being tattooed with bowie knives, coated with tar and feathers, or made to dangle at the end of a hemp rope.

The Republican party has been gravely told that its mission is over, that it was a fit party to carry on war, but now that peace has come it ought to die. But it will not die. Yet if it would live, it must have its existence in all the States of this Union. It cannot live and allow itself to be confined to the States of the North and West. Though not sectional in the past, in any of its principles or of its deeds, it, or any other political organization situated as it now is, must in time become sectional by being confined to only a part of the Union.

We hope, therefore, the appeal of the National Committee, which is printed in another column, will not go unheeded.

ANOTHER RECRUIT! Equal justice to all men! Equal suffrage!

We * * * announce that hereafter this paper will stand unequivocally for Equal Justice to All Men—white and black.—Johnstown Tribune, May 17.

Better late than never, friend Swank; better express yourself awkwardly than not at all; and better be a slow coach, than no coach at all. The Alleghanian has been on the equal suffrage platform these many days, and wondered why you lagged behind. Keep a stiff upper lip, and you may yet get in sight of The Alleghanian.

A Slight Variation.

The Radical Convention will be composed of those who are opposed to the Union of the States, and the old War Democrats, who gave the Union party its strength and prestige are not even invited into its deliberations.

The Democratic convention will be composed of those who were opposed to the war for the Union of the States, but (the Freeman's "and" is very bad English to come from a critic) the old soldiers who gave the Union army its strength and prestige are not even wanted in its deliberations.

Why did not the Freeman state the terms of the "call" in accordance with the facts of the case? Evidently because it has espoused a cause at war with right and justice—a cause that is better supported by dodges and artifices than by plain, honest words. The "call" is more properly a mere announcement, and "invites" no particular portion of the people, but simply declares the Convention will meet at a stated time and place, and leaves to the Republican people the choice of the delegates to be sent.

A Notable Difference.

We do not know of a single paper in the State that undertakes to defend the late Legislature against the charges brought against it of unfaithfulness and corruption. The organs of the Republican party, almost without exception, unite in reprobating the evil and those who are responsible for it, refusing to shield their own partisans from just opprobrium. It is thus the Republican party shows itself the true ally of political and legislative purity.

Print the Laws!

It is almost impossible to find out what Acts of Legislature have become laws.—We see it stated, in some of our exchanges, that the bill to apportion the State tax among the several counties had passed both Houses and become a law, while others have it that the bill failed in one branch of the Legislature, for want of time. By the present absurd mode of publishing laws, the public do not get to know what laws have been passed, for six or eight months after the adjournment of the Legislature, when the Pamphlet Laws make their appearance. And even then, in this shape, they only reach county officers and Justices of the Peace, whilst the people, who are bound to obey laws, never get to see them in print.

The indications in North Carolina are that a large portion of the whites who were non-slaveholders will affiliate with the Republicans. This will be the case in all the once slave States. It will not require many years to show the white men of the South, who never owned a slave, that all their sufferings, while slavery existed, were due to that institution, and that under no sense of security can they affiliate with the white men who once bought and sold human flesh and bones.

The New School Presbyterians, who met at Rochester, and the Old School Presbyterians, convened at Cincinnati, have proposed terms of reunion. Among other things, the terms prescribe that no rule or precedent which does not stand approved by both bodies shall be of any authority until re-established in the united body, and that judicatories, ministers and people of the united church shall guard against all needless offensive reference to the divine cause of slavery. Thus the Presbyterians of America may end a religious difference which has existed for thirty years.

Judge Underwood received the following singular telegram while the Jeff. Davis case was pending before his Court:

"WASHINGTON, May 13.—To Judge Underwood: Beware of Greeley. Remember Libby prison, Andersonville, and Belle Isle. Fifty millions are looking on and expect you to do your duty, while three hundred thousand patriots' graves cry aloud for revenge. YOUR FRIEND."

The Johnstown Tribune says that the "crowning glory" of the Lutheran church at Johnstown is the "ceiling of the audience room" in their new church edifice, and also that "the grandest and most religious feature" is this same ceiling. According to our neighbor, the Lutheran people of Johnstown must be a pack of infidels—which we know they are not.

Fogler, the murderer of Dinsmore, in Washington county, was hanged on Tuesday of last week. He left a written confession, in which he affirms that himself and "Babe" Montgomery, a son of Hon. Wm. Montgomery, of Washington, committed the deed of blood. "Babe" Montgomery, it will be remembered, was tried for the crime, but was acquitted, Fogler refusing to testify against him.

President Johnson, so we are magnificently informed by a correspondent, dresses for his afternoon walks with a scrupulous nicety, in itself sufficient to attract attention. He wears gloves, carries a cane, and has his iron gray hair smoothly rolled under.—Du tell! We wonder if he wears anything else beside gloves, cane, and iron gray hair smoothly rolled under. If he does not, it is not strange that he "attracts attention."

The Coming Campaign.

To the Republicans of the Union: The National Union Committee appeals to the Republicans of the country for their assistance and co-operation in this auspicious crisis of our country.

We deem it of the highest importance that the Republicans of every State should immediately reorganize for the remaining elections of 1867, preparatory to the coming Presidential contest. Especially should this organization be immediately effected in those States which have never before recognized, as the only basis of government, the equal and inalienable rights of men. Not a day should be lost in forming and strengthening within those States a public sentiment in consonance with the principles which underlie the great political organization to which we belong.

To this end we desire to prosecute a systematic and thorough canvass of the Southern States, by the most efficient speakers of both races. We would second their efforts by a distribution of documents, enforcing the principles, policy and aims of the Republican party. We would call, in every locality where it is possible, meetings for discussion, where those who are with us in principle may learn to act with unity and energy.—These measures are required to bring out the vote of the large body of Republican Unionists who now render the Southern States a battle-field of principles. It is the pressing need of the hour that bold, judicious, and able men, thoroughly imbued with our creed, should there explain our principles, establish our faithfulness to them, and prove that national greatness and human freedom depend upon the permanent triumph of our cause.

Beyond this, it is most essential that we should now establish in these States, Free Thought, Free Speech, and Free Press. Every part of this Republic must be open to the discussion of principles and measures. This must be sustained, as a cardinal point in our creed, at all and every hazard. Efforts to intimidate the humble and ignorant voter on the part of the Southern planter, must be met with the spirit of freemen, and the determination which a just cause sanctions.

In times past, the Republican party has struggled against the unjust reproach of being sectional in its aims and character, though its purposes and the means of effecting them were such as the fathers of the Republic approved. It was accused of being governed by selfish motives, and of desiring to aggrandize the North at the expense of the South. Its adversaries having the power to silence and crush all opposition, denied all discussion, and overawed even freedom of thought in fifteen States of the Union. It is, therefore, now an imperative duty which we owe to our party and to ourselves, to embrace the first opportunity of truly representing to those States how consistently we have contended for the interests, welfare and freedom of the whole Union.

The overthrow of slavery and the rebellion, and the enfranchisement of the freedmen rendering this overthrow secure and final, has happily vindicated our course and organization; but it is necessary to stamp the conviction of our loyalty and fidelity to the right, irrespective of section or race, upon the reconstructed States. For the first time in many years, the enthusiastic followers of our flag and confessions of our faith are taking part in the popular gatherings, and in many of the Southern States, we have reason to believe that they form a decided majority. They are, however, without organization, and lack the cohesion and discipline necessary to success. Three-fourths of its members have never voted, and have no political knowledge of the means whereby the popular will is expressed. With many of them, the habit is fixed of rendering implicit obedience to able and dexterous politicians, who are implacably hostile to our principles, and determined on the prostration of our cause.

Our immediate action is therefore imperative. We cannot delay without imperiling all for which so much has been sacrificed in the past. Confident in our strength in the North and West, and Pacific States, we must not forget that we have a great duty to perform towards the loyal and true men of the South.

Republicans! our appeal is to you, to carry on and sustain the work which a few loyal and true men have so nobly begun. We cannot ask speakers, in addition to giving their time and talents for months to this labor, to defray their own necessary expenses. We cannot print and distribute documents of the character required without a heavy outlay. We have no means of reliance except upon the generous spirit of that great party which holds the claim of humanity and freedom above all price. The patronage of the Government, brought into power by the loyalty of that party, will not aid us in this good work.

We must, therefore, appeal directly and personally to you. If you are rich give generously. If poor send us whatever you can afford. The generous purpose and the noble aim sanctify the humblest efforts. At all events, act promptly, and let us feel that the sympathy of the Republican party is with us in our purpose of making this great land the home of true Republican principles, where distinctions of race and color are unknown, and where Liberty, Virtue and Intelligence form the enduring basis of our greatness and prosperity.
