GOOD NEWS AND TRUE—TO ONE SIDE OR THE OTHER!

What's the Name of the Fellow that's Elected?

AND THEN WE BOLDLY CHARGED THE BREACH, WE GRIZZLY-BEARDED MEN; CHARGED TO THE MIZZLE OF THE GUNS, AND THEN—PULL BACK AGAIN!

WHAT COUNTY GETS THE REPUBLICAN PRIZE BANNER?

LITTLE CAMBRIA NOT AFTER IT?

A SMALL VOTE, AND THAT PRINCIPALLY DEMOCRATIC!

DOES A. J. LIKE THE RESULT?—AND DO THE REBELS?

Delightful State of Uncertainty

AM I A MAN AND A BROTHER?

OR AMN'T I?

WM. A. WALLACE TO BE HEARD FROM.

Wednesday afternoon.—The election returns thus far are too meager to allow us to form any estimate of the result in the State. The vote is uniformly light, and considerable Democratic gains are apparent nearly everywhere. Philadelphia, which gave Geary 5,288 majority, gives Sharswood about 1,500 majority. We lose 1,200 votes in Alleghany county, and 1,000 in Chester. The returns yet to come in may put a different face on the matter, but just at present it looks as if the race might be a very close one between Williams and Sharswood.

In Ohio, we elect our Governor, Gen. Hayes. The constitutional amendment proposing to confer the right of suffrage upon the colored citizens of the State is probably lost.

In Indiana, the contest was simply for county officers.

In Iowa, the election of our Governor, Col. Merrill, is a matter of course.

We subjoin the vote of Cambria county as far as received:

(UNOFFICIAL.)

Table with columns for Judge, Assessor, Sheriff, and various Districts. Rows include Alleghany Twp, Blacklick Twp, Cambria Twp, etc.

Sharswood's majority as far as heard from, 935.

The above comprise the returns from all the districts in the county excepting Chest, Croyle, and Richland townships.—These three districts last year gave Clymer, Dem., 146 majority. The full returns will therefore probably give Sharswood 1080 majority in the county—a Democratic gain of 428 over Clymer's vote of last year. The Democratic county ticket is elected by about the same majority.

The vote in the county is about 1,000 less than it was last fall—25,000 less. So much for one day's work!

Italy and Rome.

By treaty of 1864, France agreed to withdraw from Rome the French troops that had been sustaining the Papal power in that small portion of country, forming part of the western border of Italy, known as the States of the Church, and which properly forms part of the Italian peninsula, while, on the part of Italy, it was stipulated to prevent any invasion of the dominions of the Pope from Italian soil. The treaty was never popular among the people of Italy, for they regarded the States of the Church as an inseparable part of their country, and looked upon Rome as their rightful capital. In September of last year, the French soldiers were withdrawn, in compliance with the treaty stipulations, and the upholding of the Pope's temporal authority left to his own soldiery, and the good faith of Italy in maintaining her obligation to prevent invasion from her soil. When, a few weeks ago, Garibaldi was about to march against the Eternal City, the Italian government promptly interfered by ordering his arrest and imprisonment, and beheld, as the event of the act, a tumult among the people which plainly told that if the government had the treaty, Garibaldi had the hearts of the people. But the Italian government in its arrest of the head of this movement against the temporality of the Pope was far from plucking out its heart, for it has its vitality among the people, not of Italy alone, but of the Church States also, as is fully manifested in the uprising of the people within the Pope's dominions. It is probably not possible, that the people of the Church States should unaided throw of the temporal sway of the Supreme Pontiff. But they will not be unaided. Italy cannot be required to act against a revolt within the States themselves, and if her government would interfere, it dare not, for fear of the people. Already has the Pope called upon King Victor Emmanuel to aid him in suppressing his rebellious subjects, and has met with a prompt refusal. Although the government may prevent armed bodies from crossing the border, it cannot prevent the passage of individuals.

While treaty stipulations will prevent the Italian King from gratifying the people, as well as his own desire, by making Rome the capital of his country by force of arms; France, on the other hand, the only nation on which the Pope could implicitly rely for succor, is as much bound by the same treaty not to aid him as Italy not to aid the insurgents. Should France give succor to his hostilities, Italy would be absolved from her obligations to suppress invasions from her territory, and would doubtless take active steps to accomplish an end so desirable to her inhabitants. France, however, is in no condition to become an active ally of the Pope. She already has full as much on her hands as she is able for, in watching the movements of Bismarck. She will not likely acquiesce without an effort in the sudden rise of Prussia to a first-class power, and the completion of the union between the North and the South German States; and while she is hoping to checkmate or humble her Prussian neighbor, she will have no time or aid to spare on his behalf. But even aside from the Prussian difficulty, the plainly avowed designs of Russia on the dominions of Mahomed, as indicated in the demand for the cession of Crete to Greece, will occupy the attention of France to no small extent. The chances are, then, that the Pope must contend single-handed and alone against his insurgent subjects and the many Italians who will cross the border to join him.

We do not disguise our desire that the Romans may succeed in releasing themselves from the temporal power of Pius IX. and his successors.

DEATH BED CONFESSION.—A woman named Maria Betryman, aged probably 40 or 50 years, died at the Millville County Poor House a few weeks ago, concerning whom various exaggerated reports have been in circulation as to the confession of murder she should have made. Common report stated that she had admitted having poisoned a daughter of one of our citizens several years ago, but this is not so. We learn from an authentic source that the confession she made to a young man and woman who had been setting up and waiting upon her the day before her death was in substance that she had poisoned a little girl about three years of age, an illegitimate daughter of her own, whom she attributed to a young man, but whom she subsequently, at least in part, exonerated, and gave as her motive that she did not want to be bothered with the child. She also expressed much contrition for her conduct to her father, whom, to use her own words, she had treated very badly; and also stated that on the following day she would tell them something more. The morning however passed away without any further communication, and toward the middle of the day she became senseless, and thus died—ending her life, like thousands of others, with an acquired knowledge, at too late an hour, that "the way of the transgressor is hard."—Lewis-ton Democrat.

Queen Victoria.

In the Chicago Advance, Grace Greenwood relates the following anecdotes of Queen Victoria: "A little anecdote, which shows her simplicity of character and shrewdness of perception, was told me by a gentleman who once enjoyed the pleasure of a very informal interview with her, under rather peculiar circumstances. My friend Mr. W.—, is a person of rather artistic tastes—a passionate picture-lover. He had seen all the great paintings in the public galleries of London, and had a desire to see those of Buckingham Palace, which, that not being a show-house, were inaccessible to an ordinary connoisseur. Fortune favored him at last. He was the brother of a London carpet merchant, who had an order to put down new carpets in the State apartments of the palace; and so it chanced that the temptation came to my friend to put on a workman's blouse and thus enter the royal precincts, while the flag indicating the presence of the august family floated defiantly over the roof. So he effected an entrance, and when once within the royal halls, dropped his assumed character, and devoted himself to the pictures. It happened that he remained in one of the apartments after the workmen had left, and while quite alone, the Queen came tripping in, wearing a plain morning dress and followed by two or three of her younger children, dressed with like simplicity. She approached the supposed workman, and said: "Pray can you tell me when the new carpet will be put down in the Privy Council Chamber?" and he thinking he had no right to appear to recognize the Queen under the circumstances, replied: "Really, madam, I cannot tell—but I will inquire." "Stay," she said abruptly, "who are you? I perceive that you are not one of the workmen."

—Mr. W., blushing and stammering somewhat, yet made a clean breast of it, and told the simple truth. The Queen seemed much amused with his rise, and for the sake of his love of art forgave it—then added, smiling, "I knew for all your dress that you were a gentleman, because you did not 'your Majesty' me. Pray look at the pictures as long as you will. Good morning! Come, chicks, we must go."

"Another anecdote, illustrating Victoria's admirable good sense and strict domestic discipline, came to me directly from one who witnessed the occurrence. One day when the Queen was in her carriage at a military review, the Princess Royal, then rather a willful girl of about thirteen, sitting on the front seat, seemed disposed to be rather familiar and coquetish with some of the young officers of the escort. Her Majesty gave several reproving looks without avail—twinked at her, but she would not stay winked. At length in flinging her handkerchief over the side of the carriage, she dropped it, too evidently to accident. Instantly two or three young heroes sprang from their saddles to return it to her fair hand—but the awful voice of royalty stayed them. "Stop gentlemen!" exclaimed the Queen—leave it just where it lies. Now, my daughter, get down from the carriage, and pick up your handkerchief! There was no help for it. The royal footman led down the steps for the little royal lady, who proceeded to lift from the dust the pretty piece of cambric and lace. She blushed a good deal, though she tossed her head rather audaciously, and was doubtless angry enough, but the mortifying lesson may have dipped in the bud her first impulse toward coquetry. It was hard, but it was wholesome. How many American mothers would be equal to such a piece of Spartan discipline?"

THE HACKMEN OF NEW YORK.—A New York letter writer is after the hackmen of that city with a sharp pen. He says: "Of the amount of crime perpetrated by these miscreants no adequate estimate can be formed. A stranger comes to the city and goes out to see the elephant and elephantees of which he has so much and so often heard. He drinks more than is good or safe for him, and is endeavoring to find his way home. The hackman discovers his condition, and gets him into his vehicle. A confederate or two is at hand, and either get in with the stranger or else are located inside. If drunkenness has not already done the work of stupefaction, chloroform is called upon to complete it, and the next morning the victim wakes, if he wakes at all, to find himself stripped of his clothing and his money, in some obscure part of the city, utterly unable to tell how he came there. If it is necessary to resort to violence, this is not hesitated at, and the extreme measures are resorted to. On the whole, the latter, perhaps, is the sadder way, since it is commonly admitted that dead men tell no tales. Here 'stiffs' are found lying around in such promiscuous confusion that even corpses have no voice. A body is found floating among the docks with a bruise on the head, caused by striking on the pier from which he fell when intoxicated, say the jurors, and the dripping mass is hurried off to the Morgue. Nine times in ten some one among the hackmen could tell how the body came where it was found, and how death was brought about. But they are wise and keep their own counsels."

—In the Paris Exposition a machine was exhibited which was used by the Post-office for obliterating the postage stamp, and at the same time marking the place where posted, the date and the number of the mail despatched. There was also a model of a traveling railway post-office, with all its contrivances for the accommodation of porters, and also a model of the American apparatus by which the mail bags are delivered and received without stopping the train.

Christian Convention.

To the Pastors and Brethren of the Christian Churches in Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and West Virginia: A desire has been expressed that the Pastors and Brethren of all the churches of Christ in Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and West Virginia should meet together for the purpose of stimulating each other to greater activity in the cause of Christ, by means of united prayers to the Head of the Church, and by a free interchange of opinions and experience in regard to questions pertaining to practical Christian effort. Never was there greater need for united Christian activity. The fields are ripe for the harvest. The work of Christ among the young; home evangelization; efforts to be made to spread the Gospel among the poor and neglected, and the duties of Christians as connected with these efforts, are subjects of such importance that united prayers and consultation seem to be most desirable. To this end, The Young Men's Christian Association of Pittsburgh, in conjunction with the Pastors and Ministers whose names are annexed, have decided to call a Christian Convention, similar in character and objects to those which have been held in Massachusetts, Maine, Wisconsin, Illinois and other States, and which have been already so fruitful of good to all connected with them. We do, therefore, most cordially invite all the Christian Churches of Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and West Virginia, to send delegations of the Pastor and two or three laymen, to meet in Convention with us at Pittsburgh, on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, the 22d, 23d, 24th of October next.

The Convention will assemble for organization and devotional exercises on Tuesday evening, at 7 1/2 o'clock, and the sessions of the Convention will close on Thursday. On Thursday evening will be held the Anniversary Exercises of the Young Men's Christian Association. No credentials will be required; but it is desirable that parties should notify the Recording Secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association of their intention to attend the Convention, and that on their arrival in the city they should report at the Association Rooms, No. 23 Fifth Street, that homes may be provided for them. Arrangements are being made with the various railroads, by which persons who attend the Convention, and pay full fare to this city, will be furnished with return tickets over the route by which they came.

PITTSBURGH, PA., Sept. 1, 1867.

A NEW CURE FOR INSANITY.—Horace Burt, who was a lunatic twenty-four years of his life, and who describes the condition from which he was rescued as one of "hopeless insanity, wilful, headstrong, roving from place to place like a ship without a rudder, driven by the tempestuous waves of di-quietude and excited passion," has published a curious account of the agency by which his cure has been effected. The work was done, says the New York Times, by Mr. Noyes, the head of the Oneida Communists, who visited him, remonstrated with him, told him he was in the snare of the devil, and finally, says the lunatic, "I was convicted of insanity by his reasonings." He has now, according to his own account, been possessed of his wits nearly as long as he was without them, and has no intention of letting himself fall into Satan's snares again. His narrative finds confirmation in a statement of Mr. Noyes, who wrought the change upon him, and who tells how he attacked the man's insanity, convinced him by the most energetic reasoning that he had been snared by the devil, and that he was partially responsible for his condition, until finally he broke down into confession and penitence. Mr. Noyes holds that insanity, in at least some of the most terrible forms, can be cured instantaneously; that it yields to the appliances of spiritual therapeutics, and in calling the attention of the humane to this idea he asks: "Who knows but that this principle, when it is recognized and studied by the religious and scientific world as it should be, will assume the form of revivals, and empty the Lunatic Asylums?"

THE UNDERSIGNED, Auditor, appointed by the Orphans' Court of Cambria county, to report distribution of the funds in the hands of Emma Pringle, administratrix of John Pringle, deceased, hereby gives notice that he will attend to the duties of said appointment at his office, in Ebensburg, on Tuesday, the 5th day of November, next, at 2 o'clock, p. m., when and where all parties interested must present their claims or be debared from coming in for a share of said fund.

AUDITOR'S NOTICE.—The undersigned, Auditor, appointed by the Orphans' Court of Cambria county, to report distribution of the funds in the hands of George M. Reade, Esq., administrator of Robert Davis, deceased, hereby gives notice that he will attend to the duties of said appointment at his office, in Ebensburg, on Thursday, the 7th day of November, next, at 2 o'clock, p. m., when and where all parties interested must present their claims or be debared from coming in for any share of said fund.

DOCTOR LIVINGSTONE.—The chances of Dr. Livingstone's safety are growing better. A letter from a missionary at Bombay, with reference to this matter, contains, after an avowal of disbelief in his murder, the following: "Not a single one of the eleven Christian Africans who accompanied Livingstone from Bombay has returned to us, and we conclude that he has most likely gone with them into the unexplored lake country. Two of them, who were educated to a certain extent in the Mission Institution under myself, were young Ajawas whom he had brought to India, and they were well acquainted with the language of the country to which he was going. Had their master fallen, both they and their companions (who were all from the Church Mission at Nasik) would, we are confident, have sought to return to India, where they have many warm friends willing to assist them in a settlement in Africa were it necessary."

ERRORS OF YOUTH.—A gentleman who suffered for years from Nervous Debility, Premature Decay, and all the effects of youthful indiscretion, will, for the sake of suffering humanity, send free to all who need it, the recipe and directions for making the simple remedy by which he was cured. Sufferers wishing to profit by the advertiser's experience can do so by addressing, in perfect confidence, JOHN B. OGDEN, 42 Cedar st., N. Y.

IF YOU WANT THE BEST COOKING OR PARLOR STOVE in the world, go to GEO. HUNTLEY'S and get "Spear's Anti-Duster."

GOING VERY FAST!—Ours is an age of wonderful inventions. The minds of ingenious men have brought forth machinery thereby facilitating and making labor easy, and among the rest, the blacksmith has not been forgotten; for I. C. Singer has invented a machine which makes the process of bending heavy or light tires, bands, &c., an easy and pleasant task. This machine is guaged and numbered so as to show exactly where to place the rollers, in order to bend the desired diameter. Hundreds of references can be given. To get the machine, address, R. H. Singer, Ebensburg, Pa. The rights to sell this machine in a few States remain to be disposed of. None need apply for Pennsylvania, as the inventor is doing well selling machines, and intends holding it for that purpose.

N. B.—The place to get your horse well shod, wagon tire made and general blacksmithing done is at R. H. Singer's Shop, rear Isaac Evans' tannery.
