

The Farmer's Department.

CUTTING TIMBER IN AUGUST.—A correspondent of the Rural American says: "If oak, hickory or chestnut be felled in August, in the second running of the sap, and barked, quite a large tree will season perfectly, and even the twigs will remain sound for years; whereas that cut in winter, and remaining until the next fall, (as thick as your wrist,) will be completely sap-rotten, and will be almost unfit for any purpose. The body of the oak split into rails will not last more than ten or twelve years. Chestnut will last longer, but no comparison to that cut in August. Hickory cut in August is not subject to be worm eaten, and will last a long time for fencing. When I began farming in 1802, it was the practice to cut timber for post fencing in the winter. White oak posts and black oak rails, cut at that time, would not last more than 10 or 12 years. In 1808, I began cutting fence timber in August. Many of the oak rails cut that year are yet sound, as well as most of the chestnut. If the bark is not taken off this month, it will of itself peel off the second or third year, and leave the tree perfectly sound. The tops of the trees are also more valuable for fuel, than when cut in winter or spring. I advise young farmers to try the experiment, and if post fences do not last twice as long, I will forfeit all my experience as worthless."

GO TO FARMING.—A good living is what comparatively few men succeed in making in village or city life, and yet nothing is more easy of accomplishment on the farm. Besides, there is a pleasure in cultivating and embellishing the earth, improving and increasing its products, and thus adding to the aggregate of human happiness. Why, then, should young men hesitate to become farmers? It is both profitable and honorable. It is the nearest approximation to independence, that man, as a member of society, can make. A gentleman farmer—and all farmers are, or should be, gentlemen—belongs to an order of nobility that is not indebted to place-holders for its installation, and may, if he chooses, be ranked among the greatest benefactors of the human race. Let all idle young men go to work on farms, and quit seeking third and fourth rate clerkships. In short, go to farming and quit begging.

FOUNDER.—I send you a recipe for founder, which, having used for five years, know to be too valuable to keep from the public. One tablespoonful of pulverized alum thrown well back in a horse's mouth just as soon as you find out he is founder. Keep from water during the day.—In every case that I have tried it, it has proved a sure cure. A friend of mine had a young mare he thought a great deal of. We were out in the country and drove pretty fast. On coming home he told the boy to feed her a little corn; and he gave her a good feed of corn and afterwards some oats. In the morning she was badly founder. I gave her a dose of alum as above, and no water till night; next day you would not have known it.—The above is worthy of a trial; but it is better not to feed or water your horse when hot by hard driving.—Rural World.

RURAL AXIOMS.—An axe costing $2, with which a laborer may cut fifty cords of wood a month, is a cheaper tool than an axe costing one dollar, and with which he can cut only forty cords. A "cheap plough," at $5, costing in one season $3 in repairs, and $3 more in lost time to teams, men, and by retarding crops, is a dearer plough than one at $10, requiring no repair. A cow bought for $10, whose milk but pays for her keeping, affords less profit than one at $80, that gives double the amount of milk afforded by the other. A ten acre field, costing fifty dollars per acre, and ditching, manuring and improving fifty dollars more, so as to give double crops, is much more valuable and profitable than ten acres unimproved, costing double the money.

TOMATO VINEGAR.—We find the following receipt for the manufacture of Tomato Vinegar in an exchange; it is stated that excellent vinegar is made in this manner: Take one bushel of ripe tomatoes, wash them in an open tub, and add one quart of molasses that weighs eleven pounds to the gallon, and thoroughly mix the whole together, in which condition let the tub stand several days, not neglecting to frequently stir the mixture in it. When a decided vinegar odor is given off, the juice should be strained from the pomace and put into casks and let stand until the process is completed. Vinegar thus made is equal to the best, and to succeed in its manufacture only requires to faithfully follow out these directions.

THE MAINE FARMER SAYS: The best way to preserve hams from flies is, as soon as they are smoked, to wrap them in two old newspapers, first with one end and then with another, and tie the ends of the paper or paste them down. Let the string to hang them up by come through the paper, being very careful that the hole shall only be large enough to let the string through. No insect can get through paper. Woolens and furs can be kept in the same way, being careful that the egg of the moth is not previously deposited.

A TRIAL of a steam plow, near San Francisco, recently resulted very satisfactorily, according to a statement in the California Farmer. It was put to work upon a road which was as compact as long travel could make it, and out it up in excellent style. It is equal to the task of plowing and seeding fifty acres per day in the most acceptable manner.

He who by the plow would thrive, must either hold himself or drive.
