Who are Abolitionists?

A political abolitionist is one who desires and advocates, as a prominent feature of his political creed, the immediate and unconditional abolition of slavery. On the other hand, the Republican party, as a party—though there may be individual exceptions—never advocated any thing of the kind; nor do they now, or ever was, laid down in any of their party "platforms" or resolutions, and we defy any mortal man to show the contrary of this assertion. It answers a very good political purpose for the leaders of modern democracy, to keep up this illusion, which the rank and file take at first, as a matter of course: It is true, as we said before, that there may be here and there one that pretends to be a Republican and general voter—the Republican ticket, who despises the general and immediate abolition of slavery; but that the Republican party at large, contend, or have contended for any such a measure, is utterly untrue; for the history of parties for the last twenty years will abundantly show.

In 1844—Clay, Whig; Polk, Democrat; Birney, Abolitionist.
In 1848—Taylor, Whig; Cass, Democrat; Van Buren, F. S. Abolitionist.
In 1852—Scott, Whig; Pierce, Democrat; Hale, F. S. Abolitionist.
In 1856—Fremont, Republican; Buchanan, Democrat; Fillmore, Conservative; Smith, Abolitionist.
In 1860—Lincoln, Republican;
Breckinridge, Slaveholding; Breckinridge, Pro-slavery extension; Bell, Unionist; Smith, Abolitionist.

Now if the Republicans be the Abolition party, why didn't they vote for the Abolition candidates; and yet, did they ever pretend that either the party—who, under that name, was nominated by their opponents, the Abolition party—ever voted, as a part of James G. Birney, for Mr. Van Zandt; for John P. Hale, or for George Smith? Why then do Democratic leaders continue to practice this gross deception upon their followers, who, let alone, are generally supposed to be tolerably candid and
