

—The scheme of purchasing white helmets for drill during Commencement week is meeting with much favor.

—The Cresson Literary Society will give a banquet on Wednesday evening, June 27, from 9:30 to 11 p. m.

—H. D. Miles was considered by the guard at camp as the best Officer of the day. Good H., we know you were.

—The class of '91 has adopted a very neat class pin. The design includes the letters "P. S. C." and '91.

—The black-eyed girl thought "Lucy" was just too sweet when he sang "I had a girl and her name was Isabella."

—Linsy says they raise pickles in Philadelphia $1\frac{1}{2}$ yard long. Gilkey thinks the story is about 4 feet longer than the pickles.

—The "Preps" were raising Cain the other night, but were disappointed when a scion arose to 5th and shut off their gas.

—The Washington Literary Society's reception during Commencement week will be one of the society events of the Spring term.

—The annual game of base ball between the 1st nine of the college and the alumni will be played during commencement week.

—The degree "G. H." has been added to the category since returning from camp, and has been conferred on Dutch Brenneman, Buck Reber, Switz Dale and several others.

—That dignified Senior, G. W. Dolerclutch Downing, was walking out towards Lovers' Lane the other evening, and as he walked he sang: "Still there's Moore to follow."

—Did you catch on to Shields' crimson bugle? It's no wonder the fellows couldn't pass over his beat when he was on guard with such a luminous Fourth-of-July-celebration nose as that!

—Master Harry Hildebrand, of Philadelphia, is visiting his brother Charles. Like the majority of Philadelphia boys, Harry is quite an expert base ball pitcher, and throws several curves.

—The Pi Chapter of the Theta Nu Epsilon Fraternity has recently been established at this college. This is the sixteenth chapter of this sophomore society and promises to be one of the strongest in the Fraternity.

—A tennis tournament is being arranged by J. G. Patterson. All college and "prep" classes are to be permitted to send two contestants. We think such a tournament will prove a great success.

—The Du Quesne Club which was organized at the beginning of the term is in a flourishing condition. The members feel satisfied with their homelife treatment and intend to continue the organization next year.

—Prof. Barnard has made some valuable additions to the civil engineering department. A growing need was met by the purchase of a theodolite costing about $600. It is considered one of the finest instruments in the market.

—C. M. Green, of Class '91, when on guard at camp, while endeavoring to capture several foragers, fell and struck his head on a tin can making a very ugly and painful wound. He was taken to Bellefonte where surgical attendance was procured.

—Lieutenant explaining to Mr. Patterson the mode of constructing a tent: "Mr. P., you have been at a 'barn raising' and seen how they put up the ridge-pole?" Mr. P.: "No, sir, Lieutenant." Lieutenant: "Mr. Patterson, indeed your early education has been sadly neglected."

—Overheard on the fifth floor: "Now, see here, 'Bottle,' that's the third collar I've lent you this week! Don't you think you had better come out of the ice wagon?" And then Bottle was heard to murmur something about buying some collars next year if the price of brass remained good.

—There never was a time, at least in our belief, when the dress of ladies was as sensible and as appropriate as at the present time. The taste, as shown by our college girls on different occasions is probably what calls forth this saying. However, dressing is an art and our ladies seem to have mastered it.

—There was a valuable addition made to the assembled group of ladies in the "dear park" on last Sunday. This addition is known as the brotherhood and forms a contemplated double-hearted monopoly. Nocturnal meetings are held in which plans are discussed in regard to their commencement programme. Revolutions are expected.

—The following are the names of the contestants in the Junior Oratorical Contest, Tuesday evening, June 26, with the subjects of their ora-
