

dents, especially if they can afford the pleasure of wearing a stiff hat without getting the gable end stove in. Quite a number of new lights figure in the arena.

The cane-rush between the Sophs. and Freshies terminated in a draw. The Freshman were not fully represented. Some of their number preferred to stay in their rooms and be silent spectators; otherwise the result might have been different.

Breneman came into the sanctum, and after reading the Ladies' column in a prominent magazine, picked up a base-ball mask and asked, "what ladies' bustle is this; they're making them stronger than they used to, aren't they?"

You all know "Lucy" was in Bellefonte attending a Republican meeting. Well, while there he met a young lady. While entertaining her in his well-known fine style, a gentleman in passing along said: "Ah there Lucy!" The young lady said to 'Lucy,' "He is not speaking to me is he, that's not my name."

C. M. Green, of class '91, who was injured when on guard at camp last June, is back again to college. Although his eye is not altogether well he is able to pursue his studies. Glad to see you back again, "Bobby."

The College Boarding Club which has been so long located in the college building has, on account of the improvements, been removed to the Snyder building. It has now forty-six members.

Five new names have been added to the list of the Soph. class: George Johnston, Arthur McKee, H. M. Davidson, F. H. Bates, and C. F. Moore. Notwithstanding some members failed to return the class still has thirty enrolled.

The political spirit of our students, as is natural, increases as the time of election draws near. Care should be taken, however, that it does not develop into the bitter unreasonable rivalry so common in many places. Instead let there be a dissemination of political truths as they prominently appear in the several platforms of the parties, and are inculcated by the utterances of their respective leaders. Let there be a spirit of manly and wholesome debate of the principles involved. The efforts of the two college campaign clubs will aid much in this direction.

On Thursday, October 4, the Pennsylvania State College Chapter, The Alpha Upsilon of Beta Theta Pi was organized in this place. Entering thus, Beta Theta Pi is the second Greek letter fraternity on the ground. The exercises were conducted by F. M. Welsh, of Dickinson, '88, assisted by H. G. Budd, of Dickinson, '91, and H. T. Fernald, of Johns Hopkins University. After the formal initiatory exercises a fine "dorg" was carved and letters were read from Gov. Beaver, Senator Quay, and other prominent Betas. This new chapter has five men from class of '89, four from '90 and two from '91.

The growth of the institution is indicated not only by the additional new buildings and the great increase in the number of students, but by the higher plane the workings of the college have assumed. Every student seems to feel that he is moving in a wholly different air from that of two or three years ago. Each of the classes is well organized and bound together, having the interest of each individual member at heart. Discordant feelings and existing jealousies between societies, parties and factions must be laid aside or abandoned and the classes bound together into one harmonious whole to insure success in the students' undertakings.

Have you seen the wonderful cavern so lately discovered one mile west of Centre Furnace? It has gained great notoriety in a short time and bids fair to rival the most celebrated in the world. The exploration has not been
