Richter's Dream.

The manner in which Dr. Atherton pictured this dream was such as to draw forth general comment. It in no way detracted merit from the address, but on the other hand, only made it seem the more forcible and clear. His words to the graduating class were brief and very appropriate. When the twenty-three members of the class of '90 stood up to hear the last words of good advice and admonition, it was then that the true significance of the Baccalaureate Sermon was appreciated. The real meaning of graduation commences to dawn upon one; and we see the dividing line between the pleasant fields of study and preparation, and the busy, pushing, practical pathway of real life. When the benediction was pronounced by the Rev. E. F. Davis, each one left the chapel, feeling that it was rarely ¹ one's privilege to listen to such an able discourse.

MONDAY, JUNE 23.

The feature of interest on this day was the address before the Y. M. C. A., by Major General Oliver O. Howard, U. S. A. General Howard addressed a large audience on "The Value of Character." The address was clear, distinct and forcible. Numerous illustrations were used, notably that of the life of Wushington. After the address, General Howard in company with Lieut. and Mrs. Wolf, met the members of the Y. M. C. A. in their room.

TUESDAY.

Tuesday was a beautiful day and was appreciated as such by the many visitors. Groups and couples were seen everywhere enjoying the cool shades or the beautiful walks of the campus. There was little going on during the day that was of general interest to the visitors; but in the evening was Junior contest. There was a large and interested audience gathered in the chapel to witness the oratorical contest. The contest brought out some fine oratorical display, and the substance of the orations, showed well matured thought. The programme of the evening was as follows: Music, Overture—"Night in Granada," - Kreuzer. Oration, "The Race Problem." Walter Mason Camp, Wyalusing.

Oration. - - - "Public and Parochial Schools." Hugh Hamilton Jr, Thompsontown.

THURSDAY, JUNE 26.

The last day of Commencement was one of the most interesting of the week, not because it was the day on which was held the exercises which gives reason for Commencement, but because the program of the day was carried out in such a complete and interesting manner. The addresses by the graduating members were especially interesting, as was the commencement address by the Hon, Stewart L. Woodford. The music furnished by the Stopper & Fisk orchestra, of Williamsport, was a feature of the exercises.

The following is the order of exercises :
