

Could not hard work and energy weld a strong league from these that would stir up interest and be a success? This is good food for thought. We advance all these statements merely as suggestions but we would like to add that the pennant of such a league would be well worth striving for and that the team of the season of '93 was just the right sort of timber for champions of that league.

WHETHER we enter a league with Lehigh or not, we must get a game with her next year. In the Fall of '92 she had a date to play here the Saturday after Thanksgiving, being then on their road home from Pittsburg where they played the Pittsburg Athletic Club. This was cancelled, greatly to our disappointment, as the Pittsburg alumni were going to give the team a banquet on Thanksgiving evening. This season we had several dates, but none of them were kept. One, on Sept. 30th, was cancelled by us as our team was then in no condition at all for a game. The other two were cancelled by Lehigh, one for her own grounds and one here. She offered two dates in the middle of the week which we were unable to accept, and so the matter dropped.

We must not leave the coming season pass without meeting them at least once, and our manager should leave no stone unturned that would help to bring it about. We beg leave to suggest that the date be arranged before this year closes so that we will have it sure and certain in the Autumn. Making the date this Spring, we can choose almost any day at all, and which would be more fitting than that gala day of football Thanksgiving. Both teams would wish to put forward their best strength and show the highest and best result of the year's training so that this last day of the season is especially fitting.

Being a holiday, much more interest could be aroused in the game, popular expectation could be worked up, and it would be an immense financial success. It would of course be necessary to meet on neutral ground in some large city to draw these crowds. Wilkesbarre, Harrisburg and Altoona suggest themselves. Wilkesbarre is nearer Lehigh and is a Lehigh stronghold, but it is doubtful if as large a crowd could be collected there as at the other two places. Harrisburg is more strictly neutral and having witnessed college football games on that day for two years past would turn out a very large attendance. Altoona however would give by far the largest and most enthusiastic audience, and, although it is quite a State stronghold, there are a great many Lehigh men there, and the audience would be by no means one-sided. The number of spectators would easily be double that of the other places as Altoona is football crazy and has a good team of her own, while all the surrounding towns are interested in the sport. But wherever we go, or wherever it is played, we must have a game with Lehigh next season.

THE inception of the glee club last term brought a banjo and guitar club this term, as might have been expected. In the resignation of Dr. Walker from the office of leader of the glee club to which he was elected last term, the club lost a valuable man, but they did the next best thing in electing Mr. C. M. Atherton to take his place. Mr. Atherton was also elected leader of the banjo club so that he has the reins of both in his hands and can get them to working harmoniously.

What is needed now is practice and lots of it. We have the material for good clubs if it is only properly trained. It remains with the members to say whether they will do the work. One thing must be attended to right off, now a manager has been selected, good dates should be secured. The trip must necessarily be taken during the short Spring vacation, and the work must be started soon, or it will be too late to arrange satisfactory days. If the club can only succeed in establishing a good reputation while on the trip, a number of short, single night trips may be made during the Spring which would be extremely profitable.
