

the inspection drill it showed a total of  $4\frac{3}{4}$  miles. During the trials before inspection it was carried by members of the various companies, but in inspection it was carried by a member of Company A.

To the true student the summer weeks following the close of a college year do not present themselves as a favorable time for idleness, but rather for a healthful change which will secure to him not only needed rest, but physical, mental and moral stimulus. The summer schools in connection with universities and with various educational and religious movements afford excellent opportunities for spending at least a portion of the summer in a very profitable manner. The fraternity of Christian college students, known as the Intercollegiate Movement, which is now world-wide in its extent, initiated the system of students' summer conferences which have become so indispensable to the Christian work in the colleges on this continent and have extended their influence to the student fields of Europe and Asia. "Northfield" is a familiar and popular word among the students of the East. For the eleventh successive season Mr. D. L. Moody has invited them to meet near his home in the beautiful Connecticut Valley for nine days of conference, Bible study and recreation, and indications point to the usual representation of between four and five hundred students from the universities, colleges and schools of the United States and Canada. As an outgrowth of this gathering similar conferences for practical training in methods of Christian work in colleges have been successfully carried on for several years at Lake Geneva, Wis., for students of the West, and at Knoxville, Tenn., for students of the South. In response to a strong demand on the part of students in the distant region of the Rocky Mountains and Pacific Coast a fourth conference was this year established at Cazadero, Cal., in the celebrated redwood country.

$\phi K \Sigma$  gave a very pleasant reception to their friends in their chapter house on the evening of Monday, June 15. An unusually large number of guests were present, among them being many alumni. The house was tastefully decorated with Japanese lanterns.

The long looked for '97 "La Vie" made its appearance on June 8. The book as a whole is very well gotten up and although it shows defects in some places, it reflects great credit on the editors when we consider the peculiar conditions under which they worked.
