

'94. Mr. J. Ed. Quigley stopped over to visit friends at the college on Nov. 19th, while en route to Philadelphia, where he will take a promising position with the B. F. Sturtevant Co. Mr. Quigley was with the Buffalo Forge Co., Buffalo, N. Y., since Feb., 1895, and practically had charge of their heating and ventilating department when he left them to take his present position.

Mr. James Curtis Mock was married to Miss Burns Moore Johnson, of Pittsburg, on September 15, '96. Mr. Mock is located at Niles, Michigan.

'93. In the December number of the American Journal of Science there appears an article under the heading: "Archelon Ischycoc, a New Gigantic Cryptodire Testudinate from the Fort Pierre Cretaceous of South Dakota," written by Mr. Geo. R. Wieland, '93. In this paper the author described certain portions of a new gigantic testudinate, and for which he proposes the name "Archelon Ischycoc."

The specimen was discovered by Mr. Wieland during one of his recent geological excursions in South Dakota, and seems to be a very rare find and a valuable contribution to our knowledge in this special field. A very careful description of the different parts of the skeleton are given, and the paper as a whole reflects great credit on Mr. Wieland's ability as an investigator and writer.

Ex-'98. Mr. I. F. Ham is in the erecting shops of the Snow Pump Works, Buffalo, N. Y.

'95. Mr. Geo. E. Seibert is with the Steel Motor Co., Johnstown, Pa. During the dull months this fall he has been taking advanced work in designing under Prof. Heisler. Mr. Seibert expects to resume his duties with his employers in the near future.

'95. Mr. J. G. Fleck, of the Keystone Bridge Co., Pittsburg, Pa., recently spent a week visiting friends at the college.

'96. Mr. Chas. S. Gingrich was at the college during November, working on the design of a locomotive for Prof. Heisler. He has been with the Stearns M'f'g Co., at Erie, Pa., since July, and was recently transferred from the draughting room to the position of assistant superintendent of the works. He entered upon his new duties December 7th.

Ex-'96. Mr. Lester P. Phelps is a member of the firm of Carmen & Phelps, wholesale produce dealers, Allegheny, Pa.