

'89; while the Legislative and Old Students' Committees were left the same as last year.

Prof. Reber reported for Legislative Committee stating that several communications were sent to the Alumni in the state to enlist their influence in behalf of the College, with their respective members in the Legislature; and that very hearty responses were received from all quarters, and effectual work was done. Much credit is due to the Alumni for the success of our legislation the past winter, and it is hoped that more effectual organization may be secured for the future.

Dr. J. F. Pond reported for the Committee on Old Students, recommending that certain non-graduating students be made eligible to associate membership. This departure or innovation extends the sociability of the student body to those who for sundry reasons could not complete their course at College, and having a lively interest in P. S. C. and her success will enjoy the coöperation with the Alumni to advance her interests in whatever way their position may suggest.

This motion was acted upon with the result that the following amendment to the constitution was passed:—

Art. II, Sec. 1 of Const.; Any person, who has been a student of the College department of The Pennsylvania State College for one year, and who has left said department in good standing, may, after three years, become an associate member of the Alumni Association with all privileges of the Association, except voting and holding office.

ALUMNI DINNER.

At the sound of the bugle call Tuesday noon, the Trustees, Delegates, and Faculty with their wives, and the Alumni and Seniors with their parents assembled in the Armory to partake of the Alumni Dinner. The tables were neatly set, and there was great abundance of edibles, and while the Stopper and Fisk Orchestra of Williamsport rendered several fine selections, the assembled four hundred feasted and forgot their hunger. After the dinner, Gen. James A. Beaver, as toast master, introduced the following speakers in his usual good-natured way:—Bishop J. H. Vincent, who spoke of the advantages of higher education in even the common pursuits of life; Dr. L. M. Colfelt, who depicted the rapid growth and advancement of the College; Senator Hertzell, of Juniata Co., who expanded upon the merits of the institution.
