STATE 0—WEST POINT 0.

State met the cadets at West Point on Oct. 16 in a game of two fifteen minute halves in which neither were able to score. State bucked the line magnificently, making good gains by pushing Cummings over the heads of the soldiers; while West Point made several pretty end runs. Frank Yocum had the misfortune to have his cheek bone crushed in the game. The line up was:—

STATE 0—PRINCETON 26.

The result of the first big game, with Princeton on Oct. 10th, was rather disappointing to State sympathizers. However, had the White and Blue received fair play the score would at least been much smaller. Craft played the most brilliant game of any of the men on either side, often breaking through the Tigers interference and tackling his man. Whitworth was very effective in getting around the end. The work of both men elicited surprise and admiration from the spectators.

The Tigers did most of their scoring in the first half. The first touchdown was made by Mattis on an end run. This was followed by three more to Hodgman's credit. In the remainder of the first half Princeton had trouble in gaining, owing to the fine work of Craft, State's left end. Score 0—
