

Thompson, '04, dressed as a bride, took the second prize, a "State" pennant. Tuholski and Shelby, both '03, gotten up respectively as an organ-grinder and a monkey, won jointly the third prize, a season base ball ticket. Shelby won an extra prize of forty-seven cents, which was dropped by the charitable on-lookers into his tin cup.

Grindley, '02, as the "Real Widow Brown," got fourth prize, a book of College views.

Prof. Leete and Dr. Taliaferro acted as judges.

General dancing was indulged in after the unmasking.

March 4th, a gymnastic exhibition, under the supervision of physical director Golden, was given in the armory. The program included gymnastic drill by the Sub-Freshmen class; fancy gymnastic work by the leaders class; a fencing bout between Sborigi, '03, and Clay, '04; fancy club-swinging by Messrs. Ansart and Cole; and a boxing bout, with blackened gloves, between Hewitt, '03 and Moroney '03. Considering the short time that the boys have been in training they really did themselves and their trainer much credit. The Cadet Band, under the leadership of E. E. Godard '03, rendered several very pretty selections. Proceeds were for the benefit of the track team.

Saturday, March 16, the regular mid-winter sports will take place, in the armory.
