

A NEW WALK FROM THE MAIN ENTRANCE
TO THE POSTOFFICE

Contributed

For a number of years Dr. Atherton and the faculty have made every effort to prevent the students taking a short cut across the campus, to and from the postoffice, but without avail. The grass has been trampled down and the wire fence so badly broken that it has become an eyesore. There seems to be but one remedy, a walk straight across the campus from the main entrance to the street. Such a walk would put an end to the necessity of anyone climbing the fence, and would at the same time be very convenient for these students rooming in the central part of town to go back and forth to their recitations.

THE PAN-AMERICAN EXPOSITION.

The dedication of the Pan-American Exposition on May, 20, was marked by imposing ceremonies befitting the importance of the event. The successful completion of the work of construction render it possible to present for the inspection of the world an exposition which is worthy of the opening of the twentieth century. Although ground was first broken on the 26th of September, 1899, it was not until last June that the first timber was raised as the beginning of the first building. Since that day a city of more than one hundred buildings has sprung into existence.

The Electrical, Mechanical and Civil sections of the Junior class have made arrangements to spend the latter part of June and the beginning of July in Buffalo. The heads of the respective departments will accompany them, and six days will be spent in purely technical work, after that the boys will be free to go where they please.