

The Free Lance.

Think not the passing grade too low
To measure all you think you know,
For many men as bright as you
In past exams failed to get through.
Don't think the damage fund a ruse,
For devilment a good excuse,
But let your actions through the year
Be such as keep your conscience clear.
And ever let it be your aim
To leave untarnished State's fair name.

Oct. 2, 1901.

A. R. DENNINGT

