

College Miscellany.

Dr. Runkle's Entertainment.

Dr. Runkle entertained the Literary Club at his home on Monday evening, Nov. 11. Prof. Pattee read a paper on "The Historical Romance," which was followed by a paper on "John Fiske's Life Everlasting" by Dr. Runkle.

Miss Anna M. Cooper.

On Monday evening Nov. 11, Miss Anna M. Cooper died in Williamsport, Pa. Her native home was in New Orleans, but the greater part of her life was spent in central Pennsylvania. She was lady principal of The Pennsylvania State College from 1879 to 1882. Her character as a lady and the social qualities that she possessed have won a warm spot in the hearts of her friends, who will be pained to hear of her decease.

The Poetical Works of Freneau.

The "Poetical Works of Philip Freneau," the poet of the American Revolution, are about to be issued by the Historical Association of the University of Pennsylvania. The work is complete and consists of two volumes, which contain a biographical sketch, bibliography, and notes by Professor Pattee. This collection of poems will appear upon the market about August, 1902.

The Thespians.

The cast of the new play, "The Russian Honeymoon," which has been selected this year, will be as follows:
Alexis S. E. Miller