

Course is increasing. The large crowd was highly entertained. The programme was in three parts. In the first of these Maro was the height of mystery. He made nothing become something in no time. A second glance! Ah, you were fooled again,—it was nothing still. Since Maro was occupied with those on the first floor, observers in the gallery could see a few movements not intended for the eye. Nevertheless very many other rapid movements were noticed by no one, and mystery was the result.

The second part of the programme proved Maro to be an impressionist artist of no mean skill. His musical novelty, "the Javona," came as near to a pipe-organ in richness of tone as is possible with instruments in which sound is not produced by wind. The music produced on the "Gogglepeg," a one-stringed instrument, suggests, as the next "less" article,—the stringless banjo.

When Maro again became the magician cards no longer retained fixed spots. They changed at will. In every number he was all that his managers claim—and that is a good deal.

The foot ball game with the Pittsburg professionals has been cancelled. The status of the case is as follows: Early in the spring Pittsburg twice offered $500 for the game and State refused. October 26, '02, Pittsburg offered $1,000 and 40 per cent. of the gross gate receipts and the offer was accepted, conditional upon the sending of a bond to State to guarantee payment. Pittsburg agreed to send the bond, but delayed in sending the bond and then offered $500 again. Of course, the offer was refused.

The customary Thanksgiving dance will be given by the senior class on December 5, 1902.

The first Friday after vacation was chosen, because previous arrangements had been made by the junior class for holding their banquet on the only other possible date.

As this is the last dance which the present senior class will give, it is their aim to make it the most remarkable social event ever held here, and a large attendance is expected.
